IF YOU HAVE NOT ALREADY ORDERED STOCK OF THE NEW PINK ROSE

MISS KATE MOULTON

You had better "DO IT NOW" or you may get left.
All sold for March delivery; now booking for April and May.

ORDERS are coming in thick and fast. Do YOU know about this beautiful new hybrid tea?

A deep coloring and heavy foliage like American Beauty; ever-blooming, not a cropper; easy to grow; good for outside as well as under glass. Any Minneapolis or St. Paul florist will tell you all about it, or better still, come and let us SHOW you what the Middle West can do in producing a Rose which will stand unrivalled.

We are not putting on the market a new Rose about which we have no proof of its endurance; we have not been in a hurry. During the last three years this Rose has been circulating among the retail florists of Minneapolis and St. Paul and—well, JUST ASK THEM what they think of the Miss Kate Moulton.

We would like all growers to visit our greenhouses and see this Rose growing. Since that is impossible, we would like you to ask those who HAVE seen it to tell you what they think of it. Write to us for descriptive letter.

We are booking orders at the following prices, plants from 2½-inch pots:

100, $30.00; 500, $125.00; 1000, $200.00;
5000 and upward, $175.00 per 1000.

HE DID NOT HAVE TO WAIT ANOTHER YEAR

Consequently will have to show no reason. He was handicapped at that by distance and shortage of blooms. Aristocrat, as is well known, has practically all the buds pinched off to enable us to get more cuttings and to avoid a downfall next year. We will have 40,000 plants. Several thousand of these will be bloomed continually from September 1, 1906, to September 1, 1907.

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 7, 1906.

MR. R. WITTERSTAETTER, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Dear Sir—If it is possible to get 100 blooms of Aristocrat for the 15th, wire me Sunday, the 11th inst., and I will come to Cincinnati for them and take them to Toronto Horticultural Society's Carnation Exhibit for the 15th inst.

All the champion carnations that were shown at Boston will be there thinking to win the Challenge Cup which we have won two years in succession and if we win it again it becomes our property. Aristocrat can do it.

Yours respectfully,

Mr. James Hartshorne, Mgr., Joliet, Ill.

Dear Sir—Have only hundred Aristocrat only fair. If you come wire me.
Yours truly, (Signed) R. WITTERSTAETTER.

RESULT

Landed in Cincinnati on the 13th; packed every flower available of Aristocrat (no selection), left at noon, arrived at Toronto the 15th; flowers judged in the afternoon.

Cup Awarded to Aristocrat over all the Boston American Carnation Society's champions. The Gold, the Silver, the Bronze Medal winners were all there. We advertised the fact in advance that Aristocrat would be there with the GOODS; that Aristocrat would be there with both feet, so the Medal winners were prepared for the battle. Aristocrat has no excuse to offer.

NOW THEN—The output of cuttings next season will be limited. Would like to sell 100 cuttings to EVERY FLORIST in the COUNTRY, so as to have it widely distributed and thoroughly tried, as it is going to do well everywhere.

Ready January 1, 1907. Send your orders quick as our bookings will soon cease. Price per 100, $12.00; per 1000, $100.00.

MISCELLANEOUS SEASONABLE HINTS.

Preparations for Easter.

A remark by a son yesterday reminded me that we must be making calculations for the great event, Easter. I often think we prepare too much for this annual florists' harvest. An unfortunate who had little theology or reverence for mythology might think it the only day our products are in demand. By no means is this the truth; yet it has become a time when there is a national feeling of good will and exchange of sentiment, and practically it makes a serious difference to many florists whether their crops are in an attractive state or otherwise on that particular date. The "otherwise" man will often have to dispose of his stock at one-fourth the price it would have brought if in perfection when demanded. So we propose, in good time this year, to comment briefly on some of those plants that enter into the Easter trade.

Bulbous Stock.

Double tulips will want from twenty-four to twenty-eight days, yet much will depend on the weather. If a warm March is in store for us, they will be showing their leaves above their winter covering and would take much less time in the greenhouse, but should we get a frigid March, which is likely enough, then give them the time I have stated.

Last year we experienced a serious loss with that grandest of double tulips, Murillo. They looked fine and were in bud, when fifty per cent went off with a watery stem. The stem had the appearance of having been frozen and thawed out for an inch or less, just below the pair of leaves below the flower. By an incident we think we found the cause of the trouble and it may have occurred to others. They were brought from outside into a shady house and the pans were stood touching, and the tulips were allowed to grow eight or nine inches high, very densely, and without light or air. These were the ones that collapsed. A few dozen pans were put in a light house, where they had full sunlight, ventilation and air between the pans, and with these there was no loss.

Remember that Tournesol and Couronne d'Or need several days less in the greenhouse than the fine Murillo, which must be fully out before it assumes that beautiful, satiny pink blush which makes it so attractive.

Single tulips will want only eighteen days, Dutch hyacinths about fourteen days, and narcissi the same. Two weeks is plenty for Von Sion and Golden Spur. You should have forced and sold all your Emperor and Empress, because for so late an Easter they become too lanky in stem.

Rhododendrons.

Rhododendrons that are not showing movement of the buds should be brought from the cool house to one of 55 degrees, there to be kept well sprayed. If in a cooler house and showing signs of swelling buds, keep them there, for they will quickly expand their buds when given sunlight and a little higher temperature. It should be needless to say how much all these hardy shrubs enjoy the humid atmosphere that spraying produces. A hot, dry spell in the spring and our maples and lindens are almost dormant, but let a rain occur and a transformation scene follows. Lilacs will want about five weeks in a night temperature of 55 degrees.

Azalea Indica.

Azalea Indica, which is now such an important plant, will more than likely be too early. It must still be kept cool and shaded. Varieties differ greatly. If any plant is showing color it is more than early, because two weeks in a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees will bring it into full bloom. Some varieties need a little more heat, even at this early date, while others may need a perfect arrest of development, if that were possible.

Azalea Mollis.

Azalea mollis and the hybrid Ghent varieties can be brought into the greenhouse at once. Mollis is a true species, less fragrant than the Ghent varieties, but very profuse in flower. They want the same treatment and are much superior in quality when brought along was not a desirable first impression, so it is well to have your cannas two feet high and your caladiums one foot.

When you start them, fill a flat of three inches depth with sand or sandy soil, press the bulbs slightly in and place the flats a few inches above the hot-water pipes. They will make more of a jump in a week under these conditions than they would in a month on a bench in a 5-inch or 6-inch pot.

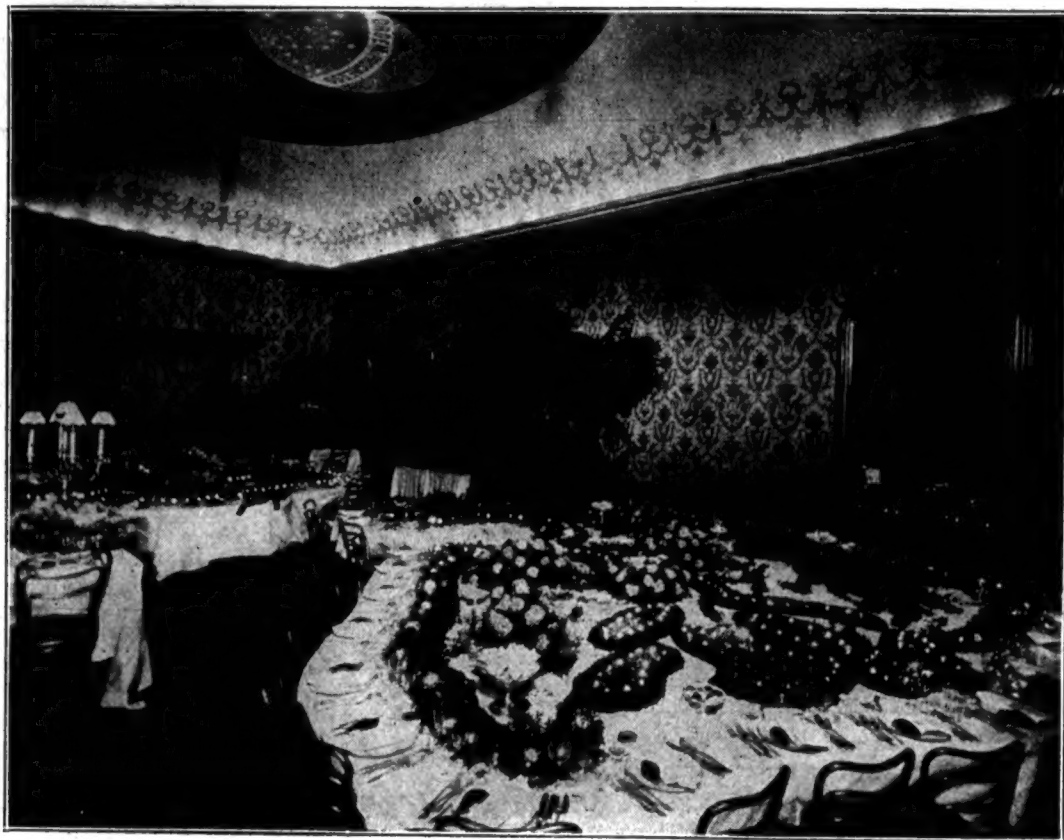

Lily of the Valley.

There is always a brisk demand for lily of the valley at Easter. As this is a flower that can be cut and kept in the cool for several days there is no need of it being late. Whether forced in a bed of sand, or in pots, as has been lately illustrated, allow three weeks.

Smilax.

There is one simple item in the economy of the average retail florist that the absence of has impressed me, and that is the old familiar smilax. There is no greenhouse where a retail business is done, big or little, but what can afford a few lineal feet for smilax. It would, perhaps, be superfluous to mention the many uses to which this pretty vine is put. No more in any case than when suddenly you get a surprise call for several designs. You have everything but smilax, and then there is hurry and scurry on this simple thing. It might have been sown before now and yet it is not late. Keep it, from the seed flat, growing by shifting, and plant out in six inches of soil on a low bench, on the ground preferred, early in July, and you can cut four crops in twelve months, and it will pay you as well as most things.

WILLIAM SCOTT.

in a moderate temperature, say 50 to 55 degrees.

Starting Caladiums.

Because it is time to start cannas, don't think it necessary to get the strong growing Caladium esculentum going. The third week in March is time for that. We frequently have found that in planting a flower bed on the first of June our caladiums were big and tall and over-shadowed the cannas. This

A SMALL & SONS DECORATION.

The illustration shows a noteworthy dinner decoration recently executed by J. H. Small & Sons, of Washington, D. C., at the Brazilian embassy in that city. The fine taste of Ambassador Nabuco was admirably carried out by the genius of the Smalls. The table arrangement was geographical, showing the two American continents. On the South American table were Brazilian orchids and other tropical flowers; on the table designated "North America," roses and carnations were prominent. A delicate and softening shade of light was shed over all by numerous tinted electric globes.

WHEN TO PLANT PANSIES.

When should I plant pansies so as to get them out as soon as warm weather sets in? Would you start them in sand or soil? Also would like to know if there is any other flower of this order, besides the one mentioned and sweet peas, that I could grow outside during the summer months? That is to say the flower has to be a pretty fair seller in the commission house, as those mentioned are.

S. S. S.

Pansies are generally sown in July and August and transplanted into beds of good, rich soil when large enough to handle, so that they get well established before severe winter sets in. They can be sown still later if intended to be protected during winter with glass sash. All of the above should be fine flowering plants at the earliest opening of spring and should be lifted from the winter beds and placed where they are to flower as soon as the ground is dry. For summer flowering you can raise most satisfactory plants by sowing the seeds at once. Sow in flats two or three inches deep in fine sifted soil, thinly, only just covering the seeds. When the little seedlings are large enough to handle, transplant into other flats of rich soil two inches apart and when winter is over remove the flats to a cold frame and plant out in open ground early in May. These winter-sown pansies will not make much show during the month of May, but from June on they will flower more vigorously and continuously than those raised the previous fall. The best summer beds of pansies we ever grew were sown in February. Besides pansies and sweet peas there is a long list of annuals and perennials that can be raised outside and find a moderate sale in all large cities. A visit to your commission houses would easily enlighten you on what is in demand.

The aster is certainly one of the most profitable, especially if you can get in a good crop very early, and again just before frost comes, as all flowers are scarce at that time.

the change, but the productive quality of the stock of Uncle John seems with some growers to be better than with their Golden Gate. It is a rose which can be grown cheaper than Bride and Maid and still brings more money. The accompanying illustration is from a photograph made at the Peter Reinberg establishment on December 20 and shows the crop in sight for Christmas. The sport originated here several years ago and the plantings have been steadily increased season after season.

HARDY FLOWERS.

There was a good audience present at the regular Saturday meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society on February 17, to hear E. O. Orpet speak on "Hardy Flowers." He spoke of the gradual advance of hardy flowering plants into popular favor in place of the overdone and tiresome carpet bedding, which for some time was the craze. More credit is due William Robinson, late editor of the London Garden, for bringing hardy plants into favor than any man living. His efforts have completely revolutionized flower gardening and have made available a wealth of excellent material which is more satisfying, more varied and more easily cared for than the beds of tender plants once almost exclusively depended upon for floral effects.

The proper preparation of the soil is necessary to grow hardy perennials successfully. The ground should be turned over eighteen inches deep and plenty of well rotted manure worked in. A continuous effective display of perennials in flower borders is difficult, but by the use of annuals to fill up gaps caused by plants dying down after flowering this may be easily overcome. For winter protection nothing is better than leaves. The speaker objected to the spreading of manure on the borders in the fall, owing to its unsightly appearance.

In aquilegias the North American sorts are best and the three best in his estimation are chrysantha, Canadensis and cærulea. For the disease attacking delphiniums and blasting the flower stems he recommends spraying with Ivory soap. He thinks the trouble really is caused by a mite. Delphinium grandiflorum treated as an annual is extremely useful, the blue being especially valuable. He likes some of the thalictrums and has found their foliage excellent to use with sweet peas for decorative purposes. The demand for peonies is remarkable. Growers in Holland and England are keenly alive to the demand here.

Perennial phloxes need rich ground. If the flower heads are cut off just before the last flowers fade the stems will branch out and give a nice new crop in October. Lupinus polyphyllus and variety albus are perennial and indispensable. By saving some of the annual sorts among them, a continuous crop of flowers may be had during the season. Lilliums dislike soil in which manure is incorporated. They like to have the roots cool and moist. Except for the small-bulbed sorts, he recommends planting them twelve inches deep. An ideal place for lilies is in rhododendron beds. The shade, leaf mulching and moist root conditions are ideal for them. The best lilies which may be depended upon not to run out are: L. auratum platyphyllum (this

THE VALUE OF RECORDS.

In all well regulated and up-to-date establishments there should be a system of record-keeping. It is not only essential to know where we stand at the end of the season, but it is of great value in preparing our plan for next season's planting. To know exactly how many blooms each variety produces in a season, and the returns from same when compared with other varieties, and also the superficial area occupied by each variety, must of necessity be of important use to every grower. But how useful and important this is, is known only to the grower who year after year makes it a practice to compile such statistics.

To keep a faithful record of the cut of each variety, a card should be prepared each week, with spaces for each day. This should be placed in the house and every bloom cut should be entered on it under its own heading and at the end of each month this should be copied into the journal for future reference.

In the sorting room similar cards should be used, which should show the exact number of blooms of each grade. Note should also be made of those varieties which are in best demand among the customers.

By this means we can, at the end of the season, with a little figuring arrive at a definite conclusion as to which of the varieties it is most profitable to plant. By rigidly following this plan our waste of space will be reduced to a minimum.

Record-keeping also embraces a system of recording each day's temperature, with remarks concerning amount of sunshine, moisture, etc., all of which should be carefully noted in the journal.

The night and day temperature at which each variety was grown should also be recorded, all of which may be of some utility in future. In fact, from the time the cutting or scion is taken from the bush until it has finished its entire season's work nothing concerning its pecuniary value or cultivation should be left unrecorded.

To derive full value from past experience a full description of the soils used, the nature of the compost, fertilizers and the amount and quality of the liquid food applied with a note of the results should also be recorded.

All this work requires a certain amount of time, but it is time well spent and will amply repay us by leaving no doubt in our minds as to the merits and demerits of each and every variety under our care, besides enlightening us as to whether our soil is suitable and our culture right or wrong.

probably has some speciosum blood in it), Hansonii, Batemanniae, tigrinum, tigrinum flore pleno, elegans, speciosum, album and Melpomene, Canadense, Henryi and superbum. He knows a grower who puts some 2,000 L. Harrisii outdoors each spring and has a grand show of them. It is necessary to dig the bulbs each fall, as they start to grow too early. None of the Californian lilies, pretty as they are, may be relied upon.

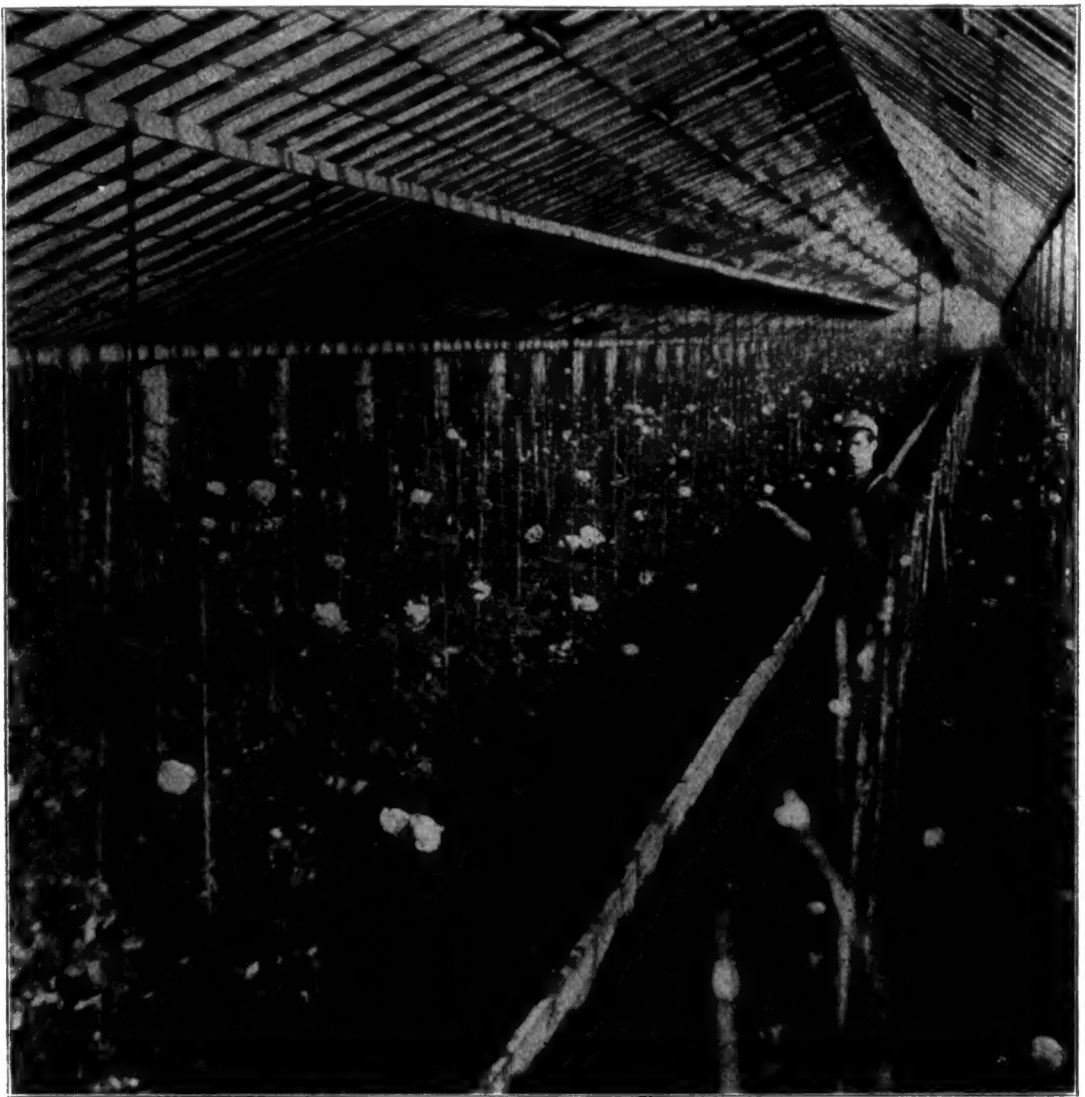

Owing to the attacks by field mice, he has been unable to keep digitalis, or Canterbury bell, outdoors during winter, and while many people grow Anemone Japonica grandly, he has to depend on pots for his flowers of each, as the plants do not do well in the open, always being cut down by an early frost ere blooming.

Among plants introduced in recent years some of the best are Campanula Moerheimii, Astilbe Davidi, Incarvillea Delavayi and Rehmannia angulata. Many of the numerous recent introductions by Veitch through E. H. Wilson from western China promise to be valuable. The present day demand is for planting in masses to secure telling effects. This method has its disadvantages, for it causes many gaps which are hard to fill with annuals. Personally he prefers mixed hardy borders.

In the discussion which followed, James H. Bowditch said if mass planting were well dovetailed no striking gaps would show when the various perennials are done flowering. Both mixed borders and massed planting are desirable. All depends upon the size of the beds and borders and effects needed. Duncan Finlayson said a good way to grow Anemone Japonica is to lift and store the roots each fall. In planting he dots Canterbury bells among them. When the latter are done blooming the anemones cover the ground nicely. Other beds may be treated in a similar way to secure a continuous mass display.

J. W. Manning spoke of Polygonum Baldschuanicum, saying it is hardy, really a shrub and attains a height of eighteen feet. Lycoris squamigera, also called Amaryllis Halleana, is hardy and a beautiful plant, with pink flowers resembling Belladonna lilies. Bulbs secured from Japan have not proved hardy, however. Even the rankest growing and quickest spreading sorts, such as Monarda didyma, Boltonia asteroides, Helianthus rigidus and Boccia cordata, have their places, but they must not be planted where they might smother weaker growing subjects. He said the number of varieties of perennials is perplexing. There are now 1,500 peonies listed, over 800 delphiniums, 700 irises and 1,000 phlox.

W. N. Craig spoke of the culture of eremurus, Anemone Japonica and other sorts. He recommends Lilium excelsum and L. Brownii as desirable kinds to grow. Papaver orientale in masses dotted quite thickly with Galtonia candidans make an effective continuous display. J. W. Duncan thought it a mistake to leave Lilium candidum out of any list of reliable hardy lilies. He also thinks L. tenuifolium a good sort to grow. He has had trouble with Anemone Japonica in southern Connecticut, owing to hot summers, but has found no difficulty with it near Boston. The grandest display of it he has ever seen, near Manchester, Mass., was undisturbed for years and merely secured a coating of leaves each fall. He read a list of bulbous plants recently recommended by a New Jersey writer for flowering outdoors from November to February, and said his experience has been that such sorts do not flower before April and May. W. N. C.

PRICE COMPETITION.

In a small town in Ohio there are two florists. One is the old established dealer, and the other a firm of young men just starting in business. There are several near-by towns connected by trolley and competition is keen. Several communications have reached the REVIEW commenting on the fact that the older florist is defending himself from competition only by cutting prices. From several sources his Christmas advertisement has been received. It read as follows:

"For Christmas give your wife, sweetheart or friend a bunch of our exquisite cut flowers or one of our extraordinary fine potted plants. You could not get her any more acceptable gift. Our flowers are all fresh, home-grown. Roses, $1 per dozen. Carnations, 50 cents per dozen."

One of the new firm writes as follows:

"No doubt your attention is at once attracted to the sure enough slaughter of prices. I am a young man just starting in business, having had about nine years' experience, gained by hard work with some of the best wholesale growers near Chicago before coming here. I saved a little money from my wages and, with a partner who had also saved his money, we built two small greenhouses. The last year before building I was with the man who is now fighting us by cutting prices. His business was begun a few years ago with a house 20x50 and now he has 10,000 feet of glass. At the time we began building he was retailing carnations at 85 cents a dozen and roses from $1 per dozen up and doing a nice business. When we were ready to begin, of course having to buy most of our flowers in wholesale markets, he cut prices down to one-third, selling carnations at 30 cents and roses at the same price. He is cutting the life out of the business here to put us out of business. So far we have not gone below 50 cents per dozen for carnations and $1 for roses, but the price cutting is beginning to tell on us. We have little capital and our opponent has considerable."

From a neighboring town comes a clipping of the Christmas advertisement quoted above and the following:

"Let me explain the situation: This town is our county seat; practically both towns are one; cars every fifteen minutes; nickel fare. One of my 'boys' that lives in that town, after working at a number of big places, came back home and worked with this man until the boy concluded he would start in for himself. He took a big slice of the business with him in a short time, doing his utmost to hold prices to a reasonably profitable basis, the other selling carnations at 25 cents, geraniums at $1 for sixteen fine, well-grown plants with three to six big growths and well bloomed, worth $2 of anyone's money; making the threat at the time that he would break up his competitors if it required a year or two to do it. The funny thing is that the other fellows got all their friends that rarely buy flowers to go and get the cheap stock for them. This has hurt all of us but as most of our work is wholesale we do not feel it much, only I do not like to see it, but as a close student of economics I smile through it all, knowing the ultimate outcome."

The same matter has come to the attention of Wm. Scott, who writes as follows:

"An enterprising young florist, but of years of experience from a small town and other tropical flowers; on the table designated "North America," roses and carnations were prominent. A delicate and softening shade of light was shed over all by numerous tinted electric globes.

WHEN TO PLANT PANSIES.

When should I plant pansies so as to get them out as soon as warm weather sets in? Would you start them in sand or soil? Also would like to know if there is any other flower of this order, besides the one mentioned and sweet peas, that I could grow outside during the summer months? That is to say the flower has to be a pretty fair seller in the commission house, as those mentioned are.

S. S. S.

Pansies are generally sown in July and August and transplanted into beds of good, rich soil when large enough to handle, so that they get well established before severe winter sets in. They can be sown still later if intended to be protected during winter with glass sash. All of the above should be fine flowering plants at the earliest opening of spring and should be lifted from the winter beds and placed where they are to flower as soon as the ground is dry. For summer flowering you can raise most satisfactory plants by sowing the seeds at once. Sow in flats two or three inches deep in fine sifted soil, thinly, only just covering the seeds. When the little seedlings are large enough to handle, transplant into other flats of rich soil two inches apart and when winter is over remove the flats to a cold frame and plant out in open ground early in May. These winter-sown pansies will not make much show during the month of May, but from June on they will flower more vigorously and continuously than those raised the previous fall. The best summer beds of pansies we ever grew were sown in February. Besides pansies and sweet peas there is a long list of annuals and perennials that can be raised outside and find a moderate sale in all large cities. A visit to your commission houses, would easily enlighten you on what is in demand.

The aster is certainly one of the most profitable, especially if you can get in a good crop very early, and again just before frost comes, as all flowers are scarce at that time.

ROSE UNCLE JOHN.

The growers in the vicinity of Chicago are steadily displacing the Golden Gate rose with its sport, Uncle John. The deeper color is the principal reason for the change, but the productive quality of the stock of Uncle John seems with some growers to be better than with their Golden Gate. It is a rose which can be grown cheaper than Bride and Maid and still brings more money. The accompanying illustration is from a photograph made at the Peter Reinberg establishment on December 20 and shows the crop in sight for Christmas. The sport originated here several years ago and the plantings have been steadily increased season after season.

HARDY FLOWERS.

There was a good audience present at the regular Saturday meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society on February 17, to hear E. O. Orpet speak on "Hardy Flowers." He spoke of the gradual advance of hardy flowering plants into popular favor in place of the overdone and tiresome carpet bedding, which for some time was the craze. More credit is due William Robinson, late editor of the London Garden, for bringing hardy plants into favor than any man living. His efforts have completely revolutionized flower gardening and have made available a wealth of excellent material which is more satisfying, more varied and more easily cared for than the beds of tender plants once almost exclusively depended upon for floral effects.

The proper preparation of the soil is necessary to grow hardy perennials successfully. The ground should be turned over eighteen inches deep and plenty of well rotted manure worked in. A continuous effective display of perennials in flower borders is difficult, but by the use of annuals to fill up gaps caused by plants dying down after flowering this may be easily overcome. For winter protection nothing is better than leaves. The speaker objected to the spreading of manure on the borders in the fall, owing to its unsightly appearance.

In aquilegias the North American sorts are best and the three best in his estimation are chrysantha, Canadensis and cærulea. For the disease attacking delphiniums and blasting the flower stems he recommends spraying with Ivory soap. He thinks the trouble really is caused by a mite. Delphinium grandiflorum treated as an annual is extremely useful, the blue being especially valuable. He likes some of the thalictrums and has found their foliage excellent to use with sweet peas for decorative purposes. The demand for peonies is remarkable. Growers in Holland and England are keenly alive to the demand here.

Perennial phloxes need rich ground. If the flower heads are cut off just before the last flowers fade the stems will branch out and give a nice new crop in October. Lupinus polyphyllus and variety albus are perennial and indispensable. By saving some of the annual sorts among them, a continuous crop of flowers may be had during the season. Lilies dislike soil in which manure is incorporated. They like to have the roots cool and moist. Except for the small-bulbed sorts, he recommends planting them twelve inches deep. An ideal place for lilies is in rhododendron beds. The shade, leaf mulching and moist root conditions are ideal for them. The best lilies which may be depended upon not to run out are: L. auratum platyphyllum (this probably has some speciosum blood in it), Hansonii, Batemanniae, tigrinum, tigrinum flore pleno, elegans, speciosum, album and Melpomene, Canadense, Henryi and superbum. He knows a grower who puts some 2,000 L. Harrisii outdoors each spring and has a grand show of them. It is necessary to dig the bulbs each fall, as they start to grow too early. None of the Californian lilies, pretty as they are, may be relied upon.

The same matter has come to the attention of Wm. Scott, who writes as follows:

"An enterprising young florist, but of years of experience from a small town in Ohio, sends me a clipping from his local newspaper and suggests that it is worthy of a few comments. It appears that there is some opposition in that town, or it would not be necessary to insert such large-typed ads and quote such very popular prices. My friend need not worry. Such attempts at gaining trade by underselling your contemporary and advertising such ridiculous prices are the weak weapon of a weak man and we have all in some degree suffered from such business methods. I hear less of it every year and there can be but one inevitable end.

"In this case we know that only very poor roses or carnations could be procured at wholesale for the prices quoted. Grow or offer for sale the best flowers and plants and charge accordingly and you need not worry about such opposition, and remember that with scarcely an exception neither you nor any other respectable florist ever lost a valued customer by charging a good stiff price for a first-class article. The price, if it did at the time seem rather extravagant, will be quickly forgotten, but poor quality at any price will neither be forgotten nor forgiven.

"The cutting of prices below those of old established firms is often the method

employed by beginners in ours as well as in other businesses. It is to them the simplest and strongest card they can play. However, it may work in other business, it never does in ours, and your opponent who is selling at a loss is slowly perhaps but surely going to the wall and the time will come when the fearless and square dealing man will have less opposition.

"A contractor remarked to the writer recently: 'Our firm will figure down to the lowest living profit and if another firm goes below that we are pleased that he gets the contract, for we know that he is crippling himself and will be less opposition in the future.'

"This is not philanthropy, but business, and nowadays business is made up of 100 per cent of self preservation and only a trace of philanthropy.

"Go ahead, my friend, and congratulate yourself that your contemporary is not made of more brilliant stuff and always remember that it is quality that will acquire and keep good trade and not low prices. The genius is not yet born who can sell high quality below cost and survive, and in conclusion, we believe there is less and less every year of the weak attempt to gain trade by cutting prices."

of such blooms, yet I doubt whether you will ever be able to cut all double blooms through the whole season. It goes without saying that the better the culture the less such blooms will appear. Strong, early cuttings, early planting and good culture in general will help to overcome it to a degree.

Cardinal is a great improvement over Estelle in that way, as it never comes single, though it resembles Estelle a great deal in general habit, etc. Unless you have had extraordinary success with Estelle in the past, I would advise you to drop it and plant some of the newer scarlet varieties, as they will pay you much better and with less trouble.

A. F. J. BAUR.

A NEW YORK PLACE.

William Y. Velie and Fred A. Velie are proprietors of the Valley View Greenhouses, Marlborough, N. Y. The town is a pretty one, on the Hudson, within easy shipping distance of New York, where most of the product finds an outlet. Marie Louise violets and fancy carnations are the crops grown in the five houses, which have a total glass area of 25,000 square feet. One of the accompanying illustrations shows an outside view of the plant, the other an inside view of a house of Enchantress carnations, the house 35x175, about 6,000 plants in all. As it has done everywhere, Enchantress has given splendid results here, probably better than any other variety. The houses are Lord & Burnham material, embodying that firm's devices. The illustration gives a good view of the ventilating apparatus, especially the worm which operates the shaft.

THE NEW MONEY ORDER.

The new form of money orders adopted by the United States postoffice department, is an improvement over the form now in use. On the left-hand side of the new order is a column of figures commencing at $1 and running in fives to $100. The clerk at the issuing office will tear this out so that it will show the number next higher than the amount for which the order is issued; this will prevent the raising of the amount of the order above the amount indicated in the column of figures. With the old orders the figures could be erased and others substituted; even if an order of this sort could not be cashed at a postoffice, it might be passed on an individual. Another radical change in the order is that the address of the person to whom the order is made out is to be placed on the order as well as his name.

SORTS TO GROW WITH LAWSON.

Will you kindly give us a list of carnations that will grow in the same house with Lawson? We grow one house of carnations to supply our local trade and want white, pink, scarlet and crimson. Now, Lawson gives us splendid blooms and is in all ways satisfactory, but we wish for a lighter pink, also something of the color of the old Daybreak. If you can give us a list that we can grow with Lawson and do reasonably well, we shall be greatly obliged.

H. F. H.

I will take it for granted that you grow your Lawson in about 55 degrees and will make my list accordingly. To start with, you can get the Lawson sports in every one of these colors, except crimson, and if Lawson is entirely satisfactory with you as a pink, the others will be equally so in their respective colors. There are White Lawson, which has been on the market two seasons and has come to stay; Variegated Lawson came out last year, Red Lawson came out in 1904, and there is a light pink Lawson of the Daybreak shade coming out this season.

Harlowarden will do very well in the same house with an occasional light dose of wood ashes to stiffen the stem, which is liable to come a trifle weak in such a high temperature. If you will run your house at 52 degrees there are plenty of varieties that will thrive in that temperature. Vesper, Lady Bountiful and The Belle are all fine. Enchantress is the best light pink. In scarlet the ideal has not yet been reached, but Cardinal is doing well almost everywhere and we hope to get something out of this season's introductions. In a pink lighter than Lawson there is nothing up-to-date except those coming out this season. Fiancee was expected to fill the want for this color and may do it yet, but it will have to do better than it has this season.

TROUBLE WITH ESTELLE.

What is the cause of Estelle carnations bringing about fifty per cent semidouble flowers? The others are perfect. The plants are in a fine, healthy condition, medium heavy soil, temperature 52 degrees to 55 degrees. Is this variety subject to this fault? They are raised from late cuttings, also late planted in the house.

M. B.

Estelle has always been more or less subject to this trouble and, while under certain conditions it would produce less

AMONG THE GROWERS.

H. A. Stevens Co., Dedham, Mass.

H. A. Stevens Co., at East Dedham, Mass., grows some of the best carnations seen in the Boston market. Five houses are devoted to their culture and while some sorts were off crop when the writer called, there was plenty of bloom. A very pretty sport of Variegated Lawson, somewhat different from the one sent out last season by F. R. Pierson Co., fills several benches, and the firm finds a good demand for rooted cuttings. Mrs. Patten is also grown, but Mr. Stevens says Variegated Lawson outblossoms it with them in the proportion of five to one. Another Lawson sport, of Enchantress color, is being grown and is well liked. Both Enchantress and Fair Maid are grown as light pinks, Lawson still filling the bill as a dark pink. Manly was very prolific as a scarlet, although a few of the more shy blooming Flamingo are still retained. Boston Market was head and shoulders over other whites. The Queen did not look so well as at other places I have visited. Lady Bountiful is found too slow and, while a fancy flower, is not considered profitable. Harry Fenn is grown as a crimson. Quite a number of promising seedlings were noted.

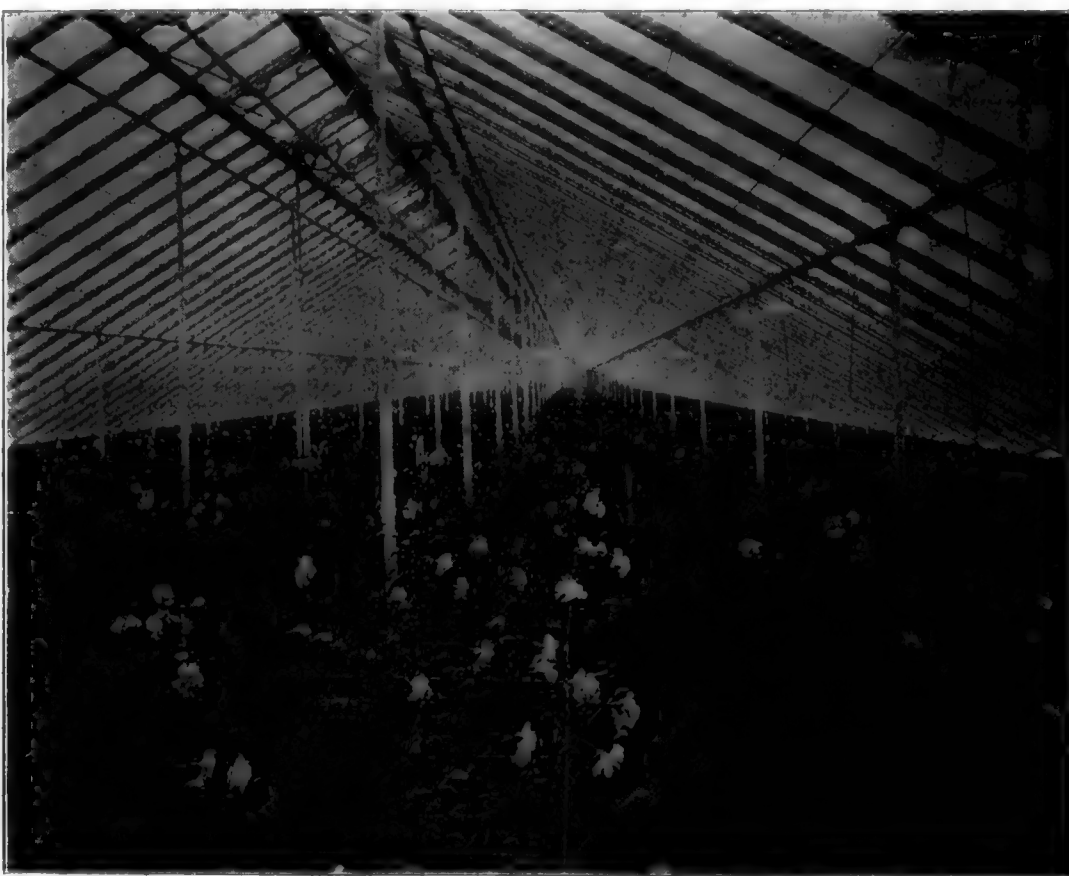

A good collection of peonies and herbaceous phlox are grown in a field near-by. For these a good demand is found. A large cellar is devoted to mushrooms. Pure culture spawn is used exclusively and the crops are excellent. Flowers grown are sold at the Music hall market, Boston.

Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass.

We found Peter Fisher busy potting off rooted cuttings. His house of these could hardly be improved upon. We wish every grower who sells cuttings were as careful in selection as Mr. Fisher and there would be fewer complaints about the quality of stock of novelties being sent out. Plants in all the houses looked surprisingly well, more especially when it is remembered that they were grown outside in an almost rainless summer and were worried by cutworms so that they were in many cases little more than bare sticks when housed. This year stock will all be planted from pots directly into the benches, indoor culture being the only sure solution for last year's worries.

We were especially interested in Beacon, which tied with Robert Craig for a bronze medal in the S. A. F. class at Boston. As seen growing it looked to us much brighter than on the exhibition tables, where it seemed to us to take on something of a brickish hue. In color it is one of the light scarlets, nearer to Victory than John E. Haines. A 300-foot bench of it was a magnificent sight, being smothered with bloom, carried on good stiff stems, which held the flowers erect. Hardly a burst calyx was seen. Mr. Fisher will plant a 300-foot house of it next season and will probably introduce it in 1907. One prominent carnationist wanted his order booked for 20,000 as soon as he had seen it growing.

Evangeline looked very well. A number of the plants, however, show bursting tendencies. No cuttings are being taken from any of these and it is hoped to overcome this defect. The salmon color is pleasing and it sells quickly at the stores, it being necessary to hide it to fill the demands of special customers.

House of Enchantress Grown by Velie Bros., Marlborough, N. Y.

We do not like the shade as well as Enchantress, the only trouble with the latter grand sort being that it does so well everywhere that people will soon declare it is too common and demand a different shade. Seedling No. 500, a deeper shade than Enchantress, is in our estimation destined to be a better thing than Evangeline and will be heard from later. Ruby will not be grown again as a crimson. Its color is a little too dark, but a very warm colored seedling of a lighter shade will take its place. In the seedling house scarlets loomed up prominently. There were a dozen or more really good ones, some promising yellows, and other shades were also noticed.

Among standard varieties Lady Bountiful looked well. White Lawson, however, is considered much more profitable, the flowers of the latter being particularly liked for funeral work. Mrs. Patten is the whole show in its class and carried a heavy crop. In scarlets a few Flamingo are still grown. Some Victory and John E. Haines were also on trial. The best type of the latter is hard to beat as a perfect scarlet, but it needs considerable selection to secure it. Enchantress looked grand, as it does almost everywhere this season. The least said about Fiancee the better. Here it is a complete failure and will be dropped.

RADISHES AND LETTUCE.

I have two greenhouses with solid beds four feet wide, of the violet pit type, which have had plants growing in them since September 1. I want to know how to enrich the soil, which is quite poor, of a sandy, loamy nature. In one house I want to sow radishes as soon as the radishes I am pulling now are all out, and in the other I want to plant cauliflower and lettuce. As I have no rotten barn-yard manure I would like to know if I could use sheep manure with safety and how to apply it; also, how many pounds to put to the 100 square feet of bench. Do you think I could use manure from a hen-coop to advantage without risk?

S. H. S.

Cauliflower and lettuce ought to do all right in soil fertilized with sheep manure at the rate of fifty pounds to 100 square feet. Procure the unpulverized article as the pulverized is often adulterated to a considerable extent, therefore of uncertain strength. It should be well worked through the soil and, if very dry, the bench should receive a good watering after working in the manure and be allowed to stand for about three days before the plants are set into it. For radishes half the above-mentioned quantity of manure will be sufficient, but it should be worked in so that the manure will not be mixed in the surface soil. Within two inches of the surface will be close enough to the radishes to insure their coming out clean and well shaped, which they would not do should the bulbs come in direct contact with the manure. The best way to do this is to remove two inches of the surface soil, work the manure in the bed, then put the two inches of clean soil back. Should your beds require to be raised a little you could work the manure in the soil as it stands at present, then procure enough fresh soil to give a covering of two in Ohio, sends me a clipping from his local newspaper and suggests that it is worthy of a few comments. It appears that there is some opposition in that town, or it would not be necessary to insert such large-typed ads and quote such very popular prices. My friend need not worry. Such attempts at gaining trade by underselling your contemporary and advertising such ridiculous prices are the weak weapon of a weak man and we have all in some degree suffered from such business methods. I hear less of it every year and there can be but one inevitable end.

"In this case we know that only very poor roses or carnations could be procured at wholesale for the prices quoted. Grow or offer for sale the best flowers and plants and charge accordingly and you need not worry about such opposition, and remember that with scarcely an exception neither you nor any other respectable florist ever lost a valued customer by charging a good stiff price for a first-class article. The price, if it did at the time seem rather extravagant, will be quickly forgotten, but poor quality at any price will neither be forgotten nor forgiven.

employed by beginners in ours as well as in other businesses. It is to them the simplest and strongest card they can play. However, it may work in other business, it never does in ours, and your opponent who is selling at a loss is slowly perhaps but surely going to the wall and the time will come when the fearless and square dealing man will have less opposition.

"A contractor remarked to the writer recently: 'Our firm will figure down to the lowest living profit and if another firm goes below that we are pleased that he gets the contract, for we know that he is crippling himself and will be less opposition in the future.'

"This is not philanthropy, but business, and nowadays business is made up of 100 per cent of self preservation and only a trace of philanthropy.

"Go ahead, my friend, and congratulate yourself that your contemporary is not made of more brilliant stuff and always remember that it is quality that will acquire and keep good trade and not low prices. The genius is not yet born who can sell high quality below cost and survive, and in conclusion, we believe there is less and less every year of the weak attempt to gain trade by cutting prices."

of such blooms, yet I doubt whether you will ever be able to cut all double blooms through the whole season. It goes without saying that the better the culture the less such blooms will appear. Strong, early cuttings, early planting and good culture in general will help to overcome it to a degree.

Cardinal is a great improvement over Estelle in that way, as it never comes single, though it resembles Estelle a great deal in general habit, etc. Unless you have had extraordinary success with Estelle in the past, I would advise you to drop it and plant some of the newer scarlet varieties, as they will pay you much better and with less trouble.

A NEW YORK PLACE.

William Y. Velie and Fred A. Velie are proprietors of the Valley View Greenhouses, Marlborough, N. Y. The town is a pretty one, on the Hudson, within easy shipping distance of New York, where most of the product finds an outlet. Marie Louise violets and fancy carnations are the crops grown in the five houses, which have a total glass area of 25,000 square feet. One of the accompanying illustrations shows an outside view of the plant, the other an inside view of a house of Enchantress carnations, the house 35x175, about 6,000 plants in all. As it has done everywhere, Enchantress has given splendid results here, probably better than any other variety. The houses are Lord & Burnham material, embodying that firm's devices. The illustration gives a good view of the ventilating apparatus, especially the worm which operates the shaft.

THE NEW MONEY ORDER.

The new form of money orders adopted by the United States postoffice department, is an improvement over the form now in use. On the left-hand side of the new order is a column of figures commencing at $1 and running in fives to $100. The clerk at the issuing office will tear this out so that it will show the number next higher than the amount for which the order is issued; this will prevent the raising of the amount of the order above the amount indicated in the column of figures. With the old orders the figures could be erased and others substituted; even if an order of this sort could not be cashed at a postoffice, it might be passed on an individual. Another radical change in the order is that the address of the person to whom the order is made out is to be placed on the order as well as his name.

SORTS TO GROW WITH LAWSON.

Will you kindly give us a list of carnations that will grow in the same house with Lawson? We grow one house of carnations to supply our local trade and want white, pink, scarlet and crimson. Now, Lawson gives us splendid blooms and is in all ways satisfactory, but we wish for a lighter pink, also something of the color of the old Daybreak. If you can give us a list that we can grow with Lawson and do reasonably well, we shall be greatly obliged.

H. F. H.

I will take it for granted that you grow your Lawson in about 55 degrees and will make my list accordingly. To start with, you can get the Lawson sports in every one of these colors, except crimson, and if Lawson is entirely satisfactory with you as a pink, the others will be equally so in their respective colors. There are White Lawson, which has been on the market two seasons and has come to stay; Variegated Lawson came out last year, Red Lawson came out in 1904, and there is a light pink Lawson of the Daybreak shade coming out this season.

Harlowarden will do very well in the same house with an occasional light dose of wood ashes to stiffen the stem, which is liable to come a trifle weak in such a high temperature. If you will run your house at 52 degrees there are plenty of varieties that will thrive in that temperature. Vesper, Lady Bountiful and The Belle are all fine. Enchantress is the best light pink. In scarlet the ideal has not yet been reached, but Cardinal is doing well almost everywhere and we hope to get something out of this season's introductions. In a pink lighter than Lawson there is nothing up-to-date except those coming out this season. Fiancee was expected to fill the want for this color and may do it yet, but it will have to do better than it has this season.

TROUBLE WITH ESTELLE.

What is the cause of Estelle carnations bringing about fifty per cent semidouble flowers? The others are perfect. The plants are in a fine, healthy condition, medium heavy soil, temperature 52 degrees to 55 degrees. Is this variety subject to this fault? They are raised from late cuttings, also late planted in the house.

M. B.

Estelle has always been more or less subject to this trouble and, while under certain conditions it would produce less

AMONG THE GROWERS.

H. A. Stevens Co., Dedham, Mass.

H. A. Stevens Co., at East Dedham, Mass., grows some of the best carnations seen in the Boston market. Five houses are devoted to their culture and while some sorts were off crop when the writer called, there was plenty of bloom. A very pretty sport of Variegated Lawson, somewhat different from the one sent out last season by F. R. Pierson Co., fills several benches, and the firm finds a good demand for rooted cuttings. Mrs. Patten is also grown, but Mr. Stevens says Variegated Lawson outblooms it with them in the proportion of five to one. Another Lawson sport, of Enchantress color, is being grown and is well liked. Both Enchantress and Fair Maid are grown as light pinks, Lawson still filling the bill as a dark pink. Manly was very prolific as a scarlet, although a few of the more shy blooming Flamingo are still retained. Boston Market was head and shoulders over other whites. The Queen did not look so well as at other places I have visited. Lady Bountiful is found too slow and, while a fancy flower, is not considered profitable. Harry Fenn is grown as a crimson. Quite a number of promising seedlings were noted.

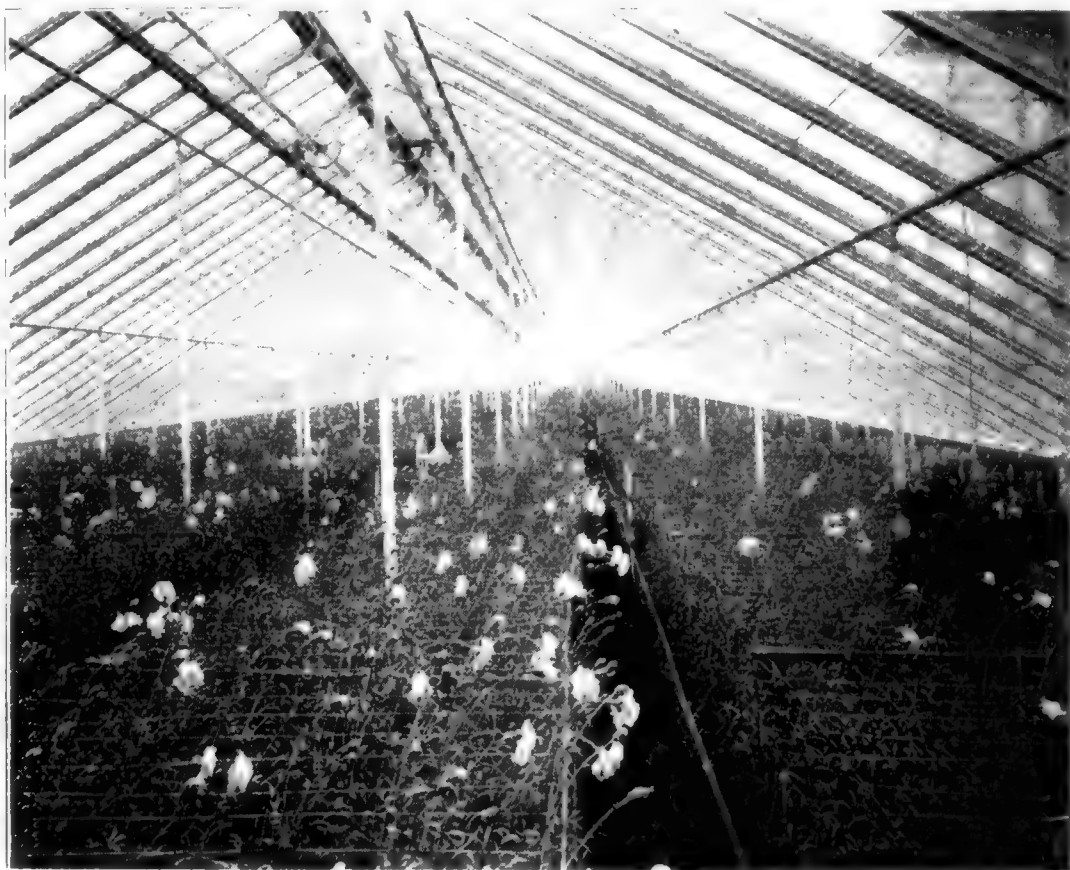

A good collection of peonies and herbaceous phlox are grown in a field near-by. For these a good demand is found. A large cellar is devoted to mushrooms. Pure culture spawn is used exclusively and the crops are excellent. Flowers grown are sold at the Music hall market, Boston.

Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass.

We found Peter Fisher busy potting off rooted cuttings. His house of these could hardly be improved upon. We wish every grower who sells cuttings were as careful in selection as Mr. Fisher and there would be fewer complaints about the quality of stock of novelties being sent out. Plants in all the houses looked surprisingly well, more especially when it is remembered that they were grown outside in an almost rainless summer and were worried by cutworms so that they were in many cases little more than bare sticks when housed. This year stock will all be planted from pots directly into the benches, indoor culture being the only sure solution for last year's worries.

We were especially interested in Beacon, which tied with Robert Craig for a bronze medal in the S. A. F. class at Boston. As seen growing it looked to us much brighter than on the exhibition tables, where it seemed to us to take on something of a brickish hue. In color it is one of the light scarlets, nearer to Victory than John E. Haines. A 300 foot bench of it was a magnificent sight, being smothered with bloom, carried on good stiff stems, which held the flowers erect. Hardly a burst calyx was seen. Mr. Fisher will plant a 300-foot house of it next season and will probably introduce it in 1907. One prominent carnationist wanted his order booked for 20,000 as soon as he had seen it growing.

Evangeline looked very well. A number of the plants, however, show bursting tendencies. No cuttings are being taken from any of these and it is hoped to overcome this defect. The salmon color is pleasing and it sells quickly at the stores, it being necessary to hide it to fill the demands of special customers.

House of Enchantress Grown by Velie Bros., Marlborough, N. Y.

We do not like the shade as well as Enchantress, the only trouble with the latter grand sort being that it does so well everywhere that people will soon declare it is too common and demand a different shade. Seedling No. 500, a deeper shade than Enchantress, is in our estimation destined to be a better thing than Evangeline and will be heard from later. Ruby will not be grown again as a crimson. Its color is a little too dark, but a very warm colored seedling of a lighter shade will take its place. In the seedling house scarlets loomed up prominently. There were a dozen or more really good ones, some promising yellows, and other shades were also noted.

Among standard varieties Lady Bountiful looked well. White Lawson, however, is considered much more profitable, the flowers of the latter being particularly liked for funeral work. Mrs. Patten is the whole show in its class and carried a heavy crop. In scarlets a few Flamingo are still grown. Some Victory and John E. Haines were also on trial. The best type of the latter is hard to beat as a perfect scarlet, but it needs considerable selection to secure it. Enchantress looked grand, as it does almost everywhere this season. The least said about Fiancee the better. Here it is a complete failure and will be dropped.

Manure from the hen-coop is pretty hot stuff, but an excellent fertilizer when properly prepared. It should be composted with an equal quantity of soil, or, better still, half-rotted leaves, and be allowed to stand for at least six months, being turned over occasionally so as to work the heat out of it. The compost could be applied at about the same rate as recommended for sheep manure, but, after application, I would advise taking a crop of cauliflower off the bench first, then plant lettuce without applying any more. The crop of cauliflower will tone the soil down sufficiently to leave it in nice condition for the lettuce to take hold. This latter crop, being of a softer and less gross feeding nature, would not take kindly to such a strong manure if it were applied directly before planting, but the cauliflower will stand a richer soil without any risk of injury,

NEW CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

[A paper by C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., read at a meeting of the Morris County, N. J., Gardeners' and Florists' Society, February 14, 1906.]

It has been asserted that while American raisers of new varieties concede the palm for size to the imported kinds, yet the American varieties are the only ones adapted for average commercial culture.

Is this statement true? I say hardly so, because a walk through the New York cut flower district during the chrysanthemum season shows us the following kinds being shipped in in quantity and all of them are imported varieties: October Sunshine, Alice Byron, Cheltoni, Nellie Pockett, Mrs. Coombes, and our own great and only W. Duckham. There are others, but I have quoted enough to show that the foreigners do get a show in the wholesale markets of the country.

I have had it stated to me that Timothy Eaton is an English instead of a Canadian seedling, but in the absence of any proof I refuse to credit it. The fact is that a valuable new variety may originate in any country but, in the case of some raisers, the French particularly, one has to buy so much chaff to find even one grain of wheat that the game is not worth the candle.

Why Australian Varieties Do Well.

It has been stated that the reason the Australian varieties do so well here is because they are accustomed to strong sunlight and being grown and flowered entirely outside, have more native vigor.

I am just now collaborating with a hybridizer in California, where, I understand, almost identical conditions prevail, and, if it is a matter of climatic condition, we hope to be producing some William Duckhams and Beatrice Mays in a year or two. The strongest reason, to my mind, why the Wells-Pockett kinds have done so well is because of the rigid selection of the best kinds from an immense number of seedlings. Thus the present list, Mrs. Partridge, Mrs. Heaume, Mrs. Knox, E. J. Brooks, etc., some twelve kinds in all, are the pick of over 97,000 seedlings. In the face of a pruning down like that one would say they must all be wonders and, candidly, I do believe they are the best list this firm has ever sent out.

How different is this wholesale method from the conditions under which our own hybridizers have to work; where, the plants being grown inside and taking up valuable space, a few hundred seedlings seem a very large batch to handle!

Hybridizing is largely a gamble, anyway, and a Col. Appleton may appear in your one single dozen plants, but the chances are against you and the law of averages will tell in the long run.

Novelties of the Year.

In looking over the new things of the year we will give first place to the American seedling, Morton F. Plant. This made its first, and almost its only, appearance at our own local show, and we should be duly proud of the fact. This coming year, when the experts from other localities have it to work with, some phenomenal flowers are bound to be shown. Call it an improved Viviani-Morel, but twice the size at least that I ever saw Morel, and we have in a few words a very good description of Morton F. Plant, with the addition that the foliage and stem are facsimiles of Col. Appleton. Honor to whom honor is due! And we owe a good deal to the Daille-douze brothers for this grand variety.

Next on the list is Beatrice May and it is certainly a beauty. This variety has developed one serious fault, from my own point of view, which is that it is altogether too modest and shy in producing stock, making the dissemination slow and unsatisfactory. I had hoped to make some money out of Beatrice but, in the language of the poet, " 'Twas ever thus. Since childhood's hour I've seen my fondest hopes decay." And a most vigorous hunt over three continents fails to reveal any stock to speak of.

As a keeper this variety is second to none. It kept for three weeks on the plant in perfect condition and some of the flowers after being exhibited and scored by the C. S. A. committee kept in water some three weeks longer. The way Beatrice May finished up for me last year is about as near perfect as I ever expect to see a white chrysanthemum.

Two Good Reds.

Perhaps the next best thing as an all-round variety in its color is Mrs. Henry Partridge. Red varieties are almost without exception prone to burn in bright sunlight, but Partridge will not damp one petal. Almost everyone likes W. R. Church, but so many complain of its poor growth. Partridge will give you the Church color and in addition is a grand, dwarf, stocky grower. I tried it on every bud from August 10 to the end of September and it was good on every one, the late buds showing, as was natural, a much thinner flower.

Another very dwarf variety that showed similar color to Partridge on first opening was Mary Ann Pockett, but it soon faded to an Indian red. This variety was so very dwarf that I did not take any notice of it all summer and the flower when it developed was a most agreeable surprise. Mary Ann Pockett will be a very valuable variety to grow in pots or on a front bench where head room is restricted.

While on the dwarf varieties (and the splendid dwarf habit is one of the strongest qualities of the Wells varieties every year) I would mention May Seddon. It had no chance to prove itself this year, as my stock did not come till late, and it is so very dwarf that it must have a long season of growth to do it justice. Do not, I beg of you, keep on propagating this variety too late this year. Give it a fair show and if it comes with you as it has been grown, eleven inches across and eleven inches deep, you will have a prize-winner in the white classes.

Mrs. Dunne a Fine Grower.

Mrs. John E. Dunne is a fine grower and a fine variety, one that will give you 100 per cent of good flowers. The color is old rose, very striking and beautiful, and reminds me of the old Chenon de Leche, for years a great favorite with me. Dunne will run up four to five feet with good culture and a crown bud around August 20 will give you the best flower.

Another sterling sort, in that every flower comes good, is Mrs. G. Heaume, a splendid clean grower, three to four feet high. The color is pretty much the shade seen in Queen Alexandria, a salmony bronze, one of the kinds commonly called off color, but I am free to confess that everyone who saw it in my houses liked it.

Mrs. Wm. Knox, when first expanding, looks distinctly an aristocrat, as every petal falls naturally into its proper place, but I am sorry to have to confess that the neck is hardly strong enough to hold erect the large spreading flower. In the short vase classes it is a winner, as it gives a flower with as large a spread as F. S. Vallis and a far neater appearance.

Richardson an Immense Grower.

T. Richardson is an immense grower and will make a stem like a young tree. Do not overfeed this variety, as it has such a tremendous root action it is easy to overdo it. The color is the same shade as Enchantress carnation, a point to be considered in classing it as a pink. A bud the last week in August is to be preferred to an earlier one.

Mrs. J. J. Thompson was called the most artistic flower in the Philadelphia show and if it were not necky I would say grow it largely. In the short vase classes, or classes where a support is allowed, it is one of the most striking varieties ever set up. We have had varieties before that have been termed ostrich plume, but never one that so closely resembled an ostrich plume in the exquisite twist and curl of the petal.

A Sterling Commercial Sort.

Mrs. George Beech will be a sterling sort for the commercial grower and while rather late for an exhibition flower is far ahead of Yellow Eaton and others of the class for November shows. I notice it mentioned very prominently in English periodicals as a grand Christmas variety. Beech is a yellow sport from Mrs. Swinburne, a variety that you may recall I sent out last year and which will be largely grown next year as a late white, for it has made good everywhere.

Leslie P. Ward, which I named after our patron and fellow townsman, is one of the most beautiful combinations of color I have seen, being old rose with golden tips to the petals. It is an Australian seedling and was exhibited as No. 50. To get the lovely color of this variety at its best do not take a bud before September 1 if you can help it, as earlier buds, while they produce larger flowers, do not show such fine color.

M. G. Rival is a French sport from Paola Radaelli, which was a fine thing, but a poor, undecided color. Rival is a fine deep yellow, deeper in color than Col. Appleton, and will be of good service, as its growth is fine in every way.

Other Good Australians.

There are several other good kinds in the Australians, G. J. Brooks, Merstham Crimson and W. Wells, but time and space forbid of going into them in detail. The last named will probably show up much better this coming season than it did last, because stock was limited and I experimented over a wide range of buds to find the best one.

The introductions of other disseminators I cannot speak of with any degree of knowledge, not having seen any of them to speak of. The F. R. Pierson Co.'s Glenview, a bronzy red, is a good one and well worth a trial.

Nathan Smith and H. W. Buckbee both have their usual list of new seedlings, but I cannot speak on them, not having seen them, and we must wait for another year to pass judgment.

Valuable Object Lesson.

You may, perhaps, ask what is the use of buying in new kinds every year when so many of the older ones are so fine. If you are an exhibitor you must keep up with the times and keep buying the best.

A valuable object lesson was given at the Philadelphia show, where, in the special classes, every prize-winner was a new variety, or not over two years old, and there were lots of the older varieties competing. The obvious lesson is that while progress may be slow, nevertheless it is progress all the time, and the end is not yet by any means.

C. W. Ward says it takes nearly a thousand years to add an inch to the size of a carnation. Progress in the chrysanthemum is very much faster than that; if you will look back and see what has been done in the past twenty years it is really startling, and, while improved methods of culture have brought out a good deal, careful and systematic hybridizing is bringing out very much more.

Our exhibition last year was the best we ever had and the flowers were certainly the largest we ever had staged. This coming fall I know we shall make more progress in this direction and the varieties we have been discussing this evening will have no small part in the grand procession.

Col. E. H. R. Green.

THE SOUTHWEST.

Great as has been the commercial and industrial development of all sections of the United States in the past half dozen years, no portion of our country has made greater strides than the south, that section in which floriculture has been slowest to assume proportions of importance; and of the south, that great area west of the Mississippi has progressed fastest of all. It is just beginning to be realized that in the southwest lies an empire rich in all the possibilities of fruitfulness which are attractive to strong, resourceful men of large affairs. Everyone at all familiar with the florists' business knows that the demand for flowers comes after the call for the necessities has been supplied and that the business in which we are engaged may struggle along for years during the pioneer period but always goes forward at a leap in any community when its people have worked their way to a position of prosperity and are ready for some of the pleasures of life.

For the development of the southwest a great measure of credit must be given the railroads and to one railroad man a considerable part of the development of floriculture is likely to be due. Col. E. H. R. Green went to Texas known only as the son of Hetty Green. He has attained a position of prominence in the railroad affairs of the country, being president of the Texas Midland and interested in many other enterprises.

A number of years ago Col. Green became interested in floriculture and in 1903 organized the Green Floral and Nursery Co., with himself as president, Eugene Corley secretary and V. Viaille manager. They built six houses 24x150 on Mr. Green's farm at Terrell and have done well. The business in the south has grown immensely in the last few years, hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of cut flowers being shipped from the north in the absence of local supply, and Mr. Green is going ahead with the building of a big new cut flower plant on his place just outside of Dallas, where he makes his home. Material has been ordered for seventeen houses. Nine are to be each 28x200, five 21x100 and three 10x100. A part of the plant is to be iron frame, built by the Burnham-Hitchings-Pierson Co. The roof material for the cypress houses comes from the Lockland Lumber Co. The range is to be completed by July 1.

The plan is to devote the entire establishment to cut flowers for wholesaling to the florists of the southwest, who now draw the bulk of their supplies from Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago, and whose requirements are expected to steadily increase, especially when it is possible to secure stock within a few hours of home. The range is to be added to as the territory is developed. The plant trade will not be touched at present, but adjoining the greenhouses a nursery of twenty-five acres is being established and will be ready next fall.

inches. First class radishes can be grown in two inches of clean sand if the soil below is sufficiently enriched to support the crop. The roots reach down into the richer soil and procure the necessary nourishment, while the bulbs develop clean and nice in the sand.

The compost

could be applied at about the same rate as recommended for sheep manure, but, after application, I would advise taking a crop of cauliflower off the bench first, then plant lettuce without applying any more. The crop of cauliflower will tone the soil down sufficiently to leave it in nice condition for the lettuce to take hold. This latter crop, being of a softer and less gross feeding nature, would not take kindly to such a strong manure if it were applied directly before planting, but the cauliflower will stand a richer soil without any risk of injury.

Why Australian Varieties Do Well.

It has been stated that the reason the Australian varieties do so well here is because they are accustomed to strong sunlight and being grown and flowered entirely outside, have more native vigor.

I am just now collaborating with a hybridizer in California, where, I understand, almost identical conditions prevail, and, if it is a matter of climatic condition, we hope to be producing some William Duckhams and Beatrice Mays in a year or two. The strongest reason, to my mind, why the Wells Pockett kinds have done so well is because of the rigid selection of the best kinds from an immense number of seedlings. Thus the present list, Mrs. Partridge, Mrs. Heaume, Mrs. Knox, E. J. Brooks, etc., some twelve kinds in all, are the pick of over 97,000 seedlings. In the face of a pruning down like that one would say they must all be wonders and, candidly, I do believe they are the best list this firm has ever sent out.

How different is this wholesale method from the conditions under which our own hybridizers have to work: where, the plants being grown inside and taking up valuable space, a few hundred seedlings seem a very large batch to handle!

Hybridizing is largely a gamble, anyway, and a Col. Appleton may appear in your one single dozen plants, but the chances are against you and the law of averages will tell in the long run.

Novelties of the Year.

In looking over the new things of the year we will give first place to the American seedling, Morton F. Plant. This made its first, and almost its only, appearance at our own local show, and we should be duly proud of the fact. This coming year, when the experts from other localities have it to work with, some phenomenal flowers are bound to be shown. Call it an improved Viviani-Morel, but twice the size at least that I ever saw Morel, and we have in a few words a very good description of Morton F. Plant, with the addition that the foliage and stem are facsimiles of Col. Appleton. Honor to whom honor is due! And we owe a good deal to the Daille-douze brothers for this grand variety.

Next on the list is Beatrice May and it is certainly a beauty. This variety has developed one serious fault, from my own point of view, which is that it is altogether too modest and shy in producing stock, making the dissemination slow and unsatisfactory. I had hoped to make some money out of Beatrice but, in the language of the poet, "Twas ever thus. Since childhood's hour I've seen my fondest hopes decay." And a most vigorous hunt over three continents fails to reveal any stock to speak of.

As a keeper this variety is second to none. It kept for three weeks on the plant in perfect condition and some of the flowers after being exhibited and scored by the C. S. A. committee kept in water some three weeks longer. The way Beatrice May finished up for me last year is about as near perfect as I ever expect to see a white chrysanthemum.

Two Good Reds.

Perhaps the next best thing as an all-round variety in its color is Mrs. Henry Partridge. Red varieties are almost without exception prone to burn in bright sunlight, but Partridge will not damp one petal. Almost everyone likes W. R. Church, but so many complain of its poor growth. Partridge will give you the Church color and in addition is a grand, dwarf, stocky grower. I tried it on every bud from August 10 to the end of September and it was good on every one, the late buds showing, as was natural, a much thinner flower.

Another very dwarf variety that showed similar color to Partridge on first opening was Mary Ann Pockett, but it soon faded to an Indian red. This variety was so very dwarf that I did not take any notice of it all summer and the flower when it developed was a most agreeable surprise. Mary Ann Pockett will be a very valuable variety to grow in pots or on a front bench where head room is restricted.

While on the dwarf varieties (and the splendid dwarf habit is one of the strongest qualities of the Wells varieties every year) I would mention May Sedon. It had no chance to prove itself this year, as my stock did not come till late, and it is so very dwarf that it must have a long season of growth to do it justice. Do not, I beg of you, keep on propagating this variety too late this year. Give it a fair show and if it comes with you as it has been grown, eleven inches across and eleven inches deep, you will have a prize-winner in the white classes.

Mrs. Dunne a Fine Grower.

Mrs. John E. Dunne is a fine grower and a fine variety, one that will give you 100 per cent of good flowers. The color is old rose, very striking and beautiful, and reminds me of the old Chenon de Leche, for years a great favorite with me. Dunne will run up four to five feet with good culture and a crown bud around August 20 will give you the best flower.

Another sterling sort, in that every flower comes good, is Mrs. G. Heaume, a splendid clean grower, three to four feet high. The color is pretty much the shade seen in Queen Alexandria, a salmony bronze, one of the kinds commonly called off color, but I am free to confess that everyone who saw it in my houses liked it.

Mrs. Wm. Knox, when first expanding, looks distinctly an aristocrat, as every petal falls naturally into its proper place, but I am sorry to have to confess that the neck is hardly strong enough to hold erect the large spreading flower. In the short vase classes it is a winner, as it gives a flower with as large a spread as F. S. Vallis and a far neater appearance.

Richardson an Immense Grower.

T. Richardson is an immense grower and will make a stem like a young tree. Do not overfeed this variety, as it has such a tremendous root action it is easy to overdo it. The color is the same shade as Enchantress carnation, a point to be considered in classing it as a pink. A bud the last week in August is to be preferred to an earlier one.

Mrs. J. J. Thompson was called the most artistic flower in the Philadelphia show and if it were not necky I would say grow it largely. In the short vase classes, or classes where a support is allowed, it is one of the most striking varieties ever set up. We have had varieties before that have been termed ostrich plume, but never one that so closely resembled an ostrich plume in the exquisite twist and curl of the petal.

A Sterling Commercial Sort.

Mrs. George Beech will be a sterling sort for the commercial grower and while rather late for an exhibition flower is far ahead of Yellow Eaton and others of the class for November shows. I notice it mentioned very prominently in English periodicals as a grand Christmas variety. Beech is a yellow sport from Mrs. Swinburne, a variety that you may recall I sent out last year and which will be largely grown next year as a late white, for it has made good everywhere.

Leslie P. Ward, which I named after our patron and fellow townsman, is one of the most beautiful combinations of color I have seen, being old rose with golden tips to the petals. It is an Australian seedling and was exhibited as No. 50. To get the lovely color of this variety at its best do not take a bud before September 1 if you can help it, as earlier buds, while they produce larger flowers, do not show such fine color.

M. G. Rival is a French sport from Paola Radaelli, which was a fine thing, but a poor, undecided color. Rival is a fine deep yellow, deeper in color than Col. Appleton, and will be of good service, as its growth is fine in every way.

Other Good Australians.

There are several other good kinds in the Australians, G. J. Brooks, Merstham Crimson and W. Wells, but time and space forbid of going into them in detail. The last named will probably show up much better this coming season than it did last, because stock was limited and I experimented over a wide range of buds to find the best one.

The introductions of other disseminators I cannot speak of with any degree of knowledge, not having seen any of them to speak of. The F. R. Pierson Co.'s Glenview, a bronzy red, is a good one and well worth a trial.

Nathan Smith and H. W. Buckbee both have their usual list of new seedlings, but I cannot speak on them, not having seen them, and we must wait for another year to pass judgment.

Valuable Object Lesson.

You may, perhaps, ask what is the use of buying in new kinds every year when so many of the older ones are so fine. If you are an exhibitor you must keep up with the times and keep buying the best.

A valuable object lesson was given at the Philadelphia show, where, in the special classes, every prize-winner was a new variety, or not over two years old, and there were lots of the older varieties competing. The obvious lesson is that while progress may be slow, nevertheless it is progress all the time, and the end is not yet by any means.

C. W. Ward says it takes nearly a thousand years to add an inch to the size of a carnation. Progress in the chrysanthemum is very much faster than that; if you will look back and see what has been done in the past twenty years it is really startling, and, while improved methods of culture have brought out a good deal, careful and systematic hybridizing is bringing out very much more.

Our exhibition last year was the best we ever had and the flowers were certainly the largest we ever had staged. This coming fall I know we shall make more progress in this direction and the varieties we have been discussing this evening will have no small part in the grand procession.

THE SOUTHWEST.

Great as has been the commercial and industrial development of all sections of the United States in the past half dozen years, no portion of our country has made greater strides than the south, that section in which floriculture has been slowest to assume proportions of importance; and of the south, that great area west of the Mississippi has progressed fastest of all. It is just beginning to be realized that in the southwest lies an empire rich in all the possibilities of fruitfulness which are attractive to strong, resourceful men of large affairs. Everyone at all familiar with the florists' business knows that the demand for flowers comes after the call for the necessities has been supplied and that the business in which we are engaged may struggle along for years during the pioneer period but always goes forward at a leap in any community when its people have worked their way to a position of prosperity and are ready for some of the pleasures of life.

For the development of the southwest a great measure of credit must be given the railroads and to one railroad man a considerable part of the development of floriculture is likely to be due. Col. E. H. R. Green went to Texas known only as the son of Hetty Green. He has attained a position of prominence in the railroad affairs of the country, being president of the Texas Midland and interested in many other enterprises.

A number of years ago Col. Green became interested in floriculture and in 1903 organized the Green Floral and Nursery Co., with himself as president, Eugene Corley secretary and V. Viaille manager. They built six houses 21x150 on Mr. Green's farm at Terrell and have done well. The business in the south has grown immensely in the last few years, hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of cut flowers being shipped from the north in the absence of local supply, and Mr. Green is going ahead with the building of a big new cut flower plant on his place just outside of Dallas, where he makes his home. Material has been ordered for seventeen houses. Nine are to be each 28x200, five 21x100 and three 10x100. A part of the plant is to be iron frame, built by the Burnham Hitchings Pierson Co. The roof material for the cypress houses comes from the Lockland Lumber Co. The range is to be completed by July 1.

The plan is to devote the entire establishment to cut flowers for wholesaling to the florists of the southwest, who now draw the bulk of their supplies from Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago, and whose requirements are expected to steadily increase, especially when it is possible to secure stock within a few hours of home. The range is to be added to as the territory is developed. The plant trade will not be touched at present, but adjoining the greenhouses a nursery of twenty-five acres is being established and will be ready next fall.

Col. Green never does anything by halves. He is throwing his whole energy into his greenhouses enterprise and already has two houses up to shelter stock as it arrives. While on a recent trip to Chicago much of the rose and carnation stock was bought. A large system of waterworks is being built. In the spring Col. Green will put up a residence at the farm. At present he lives in Dallas and goes out to the farm, two miles away, in a big automobile bright and early each morning. Automobiling is one of his hobbies and his machines are one of the wonders of the town.

THE RHINEBECK INDUSTRY.

Fifteen years ago there were three violet growers in Rhinebeck. A thousand square feet of glass covered their plants. The superiority of the product created a growing demand, of which others took advantage and today the number of owners of violet houses in and near Rhinebeck village is ninety-two. These violet growers own 437,850 square feet of glass. Under their roofs 712,000 plants are producing about 35,000,000 flowers annually, representing a total income of $175,000 for an average season's production. The assessed value of all violet property, as shown by the tax books, is $68,241, but the real value is in excess of $200,000.

In the 140 houses about 300 people are employed, except during the summer, when the young plants require very little attention. The average house is 24x150 and in such a house 6,000 plants are set out. The average plant yields fifty flowers in the season, so it will be seen that 300,000 blooms are picked and marketed from an average house. Good stock on an average brings the grower 50 cents per hundred.

It takes about twenty tons of coal to keep such a house at the right temperature, which should not exceed 60 degrees in the daytime and not go lower than 40 degrees at night. First pickings are made in September and the season usually ends in April.

Rhinebeck violets are superior because they are larger, have longer stems, a better color and a more lasting fragrance than any others on the market. It is a distinction of which Rhinebeck may be proud. Shipments are made largely to New York City. Chicago comes second, with Philadelphia and Buffalo third, and a few are sold in Detroit and Cleveland, with some going to Washington.

People often ask if the industry is likely to be permanent. As long as the soil lasts in and about Rhinebeck there will be violets. The soil seems to be just right to develop the plants and make them what they are. Authorities on the subject say that there will always be a demand for violets because they cannot be obtained for nearly six months in the year. This cannot now be said of many other flowers raised for market.

The violet industry has been a great boon for every resident of Rhinebeck. It affords employment for men and women, boys and girls, and has placed hundreds of thousands of dollars in circulation in the village and town of Rhinebeck. The growers come from almost all the different walks of life, except some of the professions. There are in the following list literally "butchers and bakers and candlestick makers." To many it will be an interesting compilation:

MEETINGS.

The board of directors of the Society of American Florists will convene at Dayton, O., on Monday, March 5, for its annual session preparatory to the August convention. All the members of the board are expected to be present, together with the officers and a number of leading members of the society.

Word comes from James N. Cole, in the name of the Peoria Florists' Association, that the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, which had been called for Peoria, March 3, has again been postponed, to March 9.

SWEET PEA COUNTESS SPENCER.

During the last few years a great and ever-increasing number of sweet pea novelties have appeared. Scarlet Gem and Henry Eckford are, perhaps, the two which have been the greatest advances in color. Countess Spencer, however, although displaying no new shade, may safely claim to be one of the most valuable of all recent introductions.

Countess Spencer is a sport from Prima Donna, but is of a deeper shade than the latter, the color being a deep, rosy pink, with a distinct edging of a much darker shade of rose. Its shape, however, is its chief characteristic, and perhaps its most beautiful feature, for in form it differs from all varieties of sweet pea previously introduced. The standard is broad, perfectly upright, not hooded, but waved or crinkled from the apex nearly to the center of the flower. The wings are of good shape and are very well expanded. There is no variety of sweet pea larger than Countess Spencer, and it excels all other first-class varieties in the number of four-flowered stems it produces. The general growth and habit of the plants are everything that can be desired.

Perhaps a brief history of the variety will be interesting. Countess Spencer, as stated above, originated as a sport from Prima Donna. Like most florists' flowers which sport, says a writer in the Gardener's Magazine (London), this variety, when it sported, did so on the grounds of several growers, among whom must be mentioned Mr. Cole, gardener to Earl Spencer; Mr. Eckford, the sweet pea specialist; and Mr. Unwin, of Histon. Mr. Sydenham, of Birmingham, acquired the stock from Mr. Cole, and sent the bulk to be grown for him in California. In 1904 it was first issued to and grown by the general public.

Mr. Eckford preserved his sport, which was identical with that of Mr. Cole, and distributed it in 1905 under the same name, Countess Spencer. This stock has kept almost perfectly true, thus differing from the other.

Mr. Unwin's sport, while having the true Countess Spencer's form, was several shades lighter than the others. It was distributed in 1905 by Messrs. Watkins & Simpson under the name of Gladys Unwin. After having been very widely advertised, both in the British Isles and in America, it was very widely grown during its first year, and seems to have come fairly true. There is no doubt that Gladys Unwin is a very good variety, but its color does not seem to last very well when the flowers are picked. From last year's experience, it does not seem to be so valuable a variety as the true Countess Spencer, and I notice that Thomas Duncan, the well-known sweet pea grower, of Duns, has expressed, with some warmth, the same opinion.

A Typical Rhinebeck Violet House, Showing Arrangement of Beds and Pipes.

The stock of Countess Spencer distributed by Mr. Sydenham, owing, possibly, to the fact that almost all known artifices had been resorted to to increase it rapidly, was very much inclined to sport, so much so that in 1904 only a small percentage came true, the remainder being in some cases valuable varieties having the beautiful Countess Spencer form, but different colors, and in others, and perhaps the majority of cases, varieties of little value.

Some growers seem to regret that Countess Spencer has proved to be so sportive, but I cannot see that much other than good can accrue from this fact; for, instead of one excellent variety, we now have a number, all having the magnificent Countess Spencer form, but giving many varied shades of color. This feeling of satisfaction is accentuated by the fact that in 1905 non-sporting stocks of Countess Spencer were distributed, thus showing that with some growers at least the variety had been fixed.

THE READERS' CORNER.

Another Dose for Rats.

I will give you my scheme for getting rid of rats in greenhouses. I was bothered several weeks with them eating tomatoes, before trying this very simple and effective remedy. Take three parts corn meal and one part plaster of Paris, mix thoroughly and place where the rats can get at it in places frequented by them. Two doses cleaned them out for me and no bad after-results, as they seem to have gone outside the houses in quest of a final resting place. I tried cats but they would not tackle the large rats; besides, it is hard for a cat to get at them where there are so many places to hide. This remedy is worth trying, as it is inexpensive and simple.

C. D. G.

I am having trouble with one of my neighbors in regard to the smoke and gas from my furnace entering his house. Have any other florists who read the REVIEW had a like experience? If so, I would like to have them tell their experience in the REVIEW. Would especially like to hear from New York state growers, as the laws of this state may be different from others. I am using soft coal.

C. L. W.

CONCRETE FLOORS.

In making boiler room floors of concrete, the concrete should be deposited in layers of from four to six inches and thoroughly tamped before it begins to harden. The tamping required will depend upon the consistency of the mixture. If mixed very dry, it must be vigorously rammed to produce a dense mass, but as the proportion of water increases less tamping will be found necessary. Concrete should not be dumped in place from a height of more than four feet, unless it is again mixed at the bottom. A wooden incline may be used for greater heights. Rammers for ordinary concrete work should weigh from twenty to thirty pounds and have a face not exceeding six inches square. A smaller face than this is often desirable, but a larger one will be less effective in consolidating the mass. When a thickness of more than one layer is required, as in foundation work, two or more layers may be worked at the same time, each layer slightly in advance of the one next above it and all being allowed to set together. For a boiler room floor there should be a slight incline to a well where water may be pumped out.

To give a neat appearance to the finished work, a dressing of cement mortar is spread over the concrete, well worked in, and brought to a perfectly smooth surface with straight edge and float. This mortar should be mixed in the proportion one part cement to two parts sand.

For general use the following mixtures are recommended: One part cement, two parts sand, four aggregate, for very strong and impervious work; one part cement, two and one-half parts sand, five aggregate, for ordinary work requiring moderate strength; one part cement, three parts sand, six aggregate, for work where strength is of minor importance.

WHITE VINCA.

I desire to know if there is anything of a plant known as a white vinca and if it is possible to get it. I have seen white foliage on Vinca variegata; that is the reason I am asking your opinion.

D. F. S.

The variegated form of Vinca major or trailing species will sometimes send out a growth that is entirely white or pale yellow. This could not be perpetuated, as the plant would not have the vitality to grow. Vinca rosea is of erect habit and is tender and useful only as a summer bedding. Its flower is variable, mostly rosy purple and often pure white. Any particular variety of Vinca rosea can only be perpetuated by cuttings.

The Market.

All the pretty girls have put on sack-cloth and ashes, the large balls are over and society has given up the business of entertaining. The result is a gradually declining market, with probability of a further drop next week. So far carnations and bulbous flowers have most felt the lessening demand. Roses are still so far from plentiful that values have been fairly maintained. Orchids are abundant and of fine quality. Sweet peas are becoming an important factor. They have never been finer at this season and are exceptionally good value for the money. One commission merchant, S. S. Pennock, offers four different colors in twice that many shades. The lower prices of violets have increased the demand and business in these dainty flowers is better than for some weeks past. While roses are still scarce, American Beauties are becoming a little more plentiful. Edw. Reid filled orders for 800 specials in Baltimore and Washington last week.

It is interesting to note that figures based on last year's business show that the returns from the sale of cut flowers during Lent fully equal those of the six weeks previous. More stock is sold at lower prices. It is also interesting to note that the street men paid higher prices last Saturday than ever before known in this city. These fakirs paid in many instances $3 a hundred for select carnations, took them in large quantities and returned for more. Under these conditions the street industry is an important factor in the cut flower business during times of overproduction in certain lines.

The Assembly Ball.

There is a vast difference in the style of decorating. The old idea of decorating was to conceal ugly corners, or imperfect places on the wall. This was often done with plants that were imperfect themselves, the name of "decorative" stock being given to plants that were not good enough to be classed as perfect specimens. The result of this style of decorating frequently led to overcrowding, plants necessarily being massed closely in order to give the effect and to conceal their imperfections. The higher style of decorating consists in using perfect plants in such a way as to show their symmetry, the beautiful proportions of a plant properly placed heightening the effect of a beautiful ballroom, parlor, or stairway.

This idea, which may be fairly considered as the advanced form of decorating, found expression in the decorations arranged by John P. and Edward Habermehl for the last Assembly ball, held on February 23 in the Bellevue-Stratford. The beautiful ballroom, massive stairway and handsome anterooms were never seen to better advantage than on this occasion. The features of the decoration were a magnificent specimen of Cibotium Schiedeii and the pyramid azaleas, beautifully flowered. Pink was the predominating color in flowers. Green was used to great advantage in forming the stage-setting for the orchestra of ninety pieces. The arrangement of flowers on the supper tables differed from former years. The low vases were abandoned. Fully 100 tall vases were used. Each vase was filled with a handsome bouquet of fancy flowers, one variety, American Beauties, Bridesmaids, white lilac, snapdragon, Easter lilies and fancy carnations, the high vase idea being intended to allow the guests to see each other clearly, while the effect on entering the room was much enhanced.

Sharon Hill.

Alex. B. Scott, managing partner of the firm of Robt. Scott & Son, rose grower, forcer of Easter plants, grafter (in the pure, not the wicked sense), gardenia specialist, American agent for the firm of Alex. Dickson & Sons, Belfast, Ireland, and producer of miscellaneous plants for the mailing business of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., is unquestionably one of the coming men.

Mr. Scott's ambition has steadily increased his place at Sharon Hill until to-day it is one of the largest and most interesting places near Philadelphia. An immense range of glass was added last Ireland remain after their journey over the sea. Among these varieties is the far famed Betty, exquisite in coloring, almost unrivaled as an outdoor rose, though not desirable as a cut flower.

Dorothy Perkins will make her debut here next Easter. The plants are grown somewhat in the style of Crimson Rambler for forcing. They look well.

I neglected to say that among the Richmonds was one plant that has shown a tendency to climb. It is being watched with interest. I might write a great deal more of interest about this place, to me one of the most fascinating of the many I visited, but lack of space compels me to close with merely a mention of the great amount of grafting that is being done. The young plants, both grafted and own root, are full of vigor.

Various Notes.

C. C. Pollworth and Mrs. Pollworth, of Milwaukee, spent a day in Philadelphia on their way home. The fact that their wedding cards did not reach us until after they departed interfered with the time-honored custom of rice and old shoes.

The many visitors to M. Rice & Co. these days find a large and complete line of both supplies and ribbons.

Albert Harvey & Sons, Brandywine Summit, have decided to build three trussed houses 21x200. The order has been placed with the Burnham-Hitchings-Pierson Co., through their representative, D. T. Connor. This is virtually a new style of house in the carnation district, there being no ridge or purlin supports. The same representative has placed an order for Benj. T. Allen, of 304 Wister street, Germantown, for a house 20x100, with stone sides, to be used as a conservatory.

Wm. A. Walton, of Oxford, has been very successful with Carnation Gov. Wolcott. He believes this variety to be the greatest white. His stock seen at the Flower Market is very fine.

The Leo Niessen Co. has an exceptionally nice lot of cattleyas, also white and pink orchids in quantity.

Wm. Didden, of West Philadelphia, continues to send fine shipments of Helen Reid carnation to Edw. Reid. Mr. Reid believes this carnation to be in the front rank of shipping varieties. By some it is preferred to Mrs. Lawson, which it resembles in color.

Berger Bros. are handling some very fine Princess of Wales violets.

Eugene Bernheimer is handling exceptionally fine Princess violets, in quantity; also single and double stocks, pink and white. The best double pink this week measured about thirty-six inches and was the best ever seen in the market.

Sam'l S. Pennock's new office is a credit to our profession.

Jos. Black & Son, Hightstown, N. J., are sending a fine lot of Enchantress and Lawson carnations to the Flower Market.

Wm. J. Moore has been handling fine sweet peas in quantity.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons decorated the Academy of Music for the Philopatrian ball on Monday night. They also had the decorations for the Maennerchor on Tuesday.

H. H. Battles has been making a hit with his baskets of spring flowers.

Wm. J. Baker is handling a very fine grade of Emperor daffodils. They are grown by Theo. Edwards, of Bridgeton, N. J.

Please send the numbers I have missed by not being prompt; I simply was very busy and neglected it, for I certainly enjoy and profit by every number. I shall in future be more prompt and have no hard feelings because you stopped the paper; I well know you must have some system.

season for Beauties, while later, in the fall, another range was put up for Crimson Rambler and Dorothy Perkins roses for Easter forcing. This will be supplemented, as before mentioned in the REVIEW, by another range of short-span houses to be erected for Beauties next spring. Literally, this range is for Richmonds, as the increase will be in that rose and not in Beauties, but nothing is too good for the American Beauty, so the new houses will be planted with that rose, while some of the older Beauty houses will be devoted to Richmonds.

Killarney will also be more largely grown. Mr. Scott is much pleased with this Irish favorite, the preference being given to grafted plants over those on their own roots. Regarding the older varieties, grafted Bridesmaids looked exceptionally well and are in full crop at present. Brides had been pruned and were making good growth; two-year-old plants. Beauties had been grown in beds, as an experiment. Mr. Scott had always favored benches in the past. I am under the impression that the new houses will be planted in benches with this rose.

The gems of the whole collection were 200 Irish roses, imported last fall, now on trial, part in Liberty and part in Bridesmaid temperature. There are twenty-seven varieties in all, and each will be given a thorough test, to decide whether the good qualities noted in Henry I. Faust, of Merion, has been sending great quantities of fine Adiantum Croweanum (hybridum) to Edw. Reid.

Wm. Swayne, of Kennett Square, is cutting nice flowers of the new scarlet carnation sent out by A. B. Davis & Son, of Purcellville, Va. PHIL.

Rose Night.

The next regular meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia will be held Tuesday evening, March 6, and will be known as rose night. All the novelties or new candidates for public favor among the queen of flowers are hoped for and expected, among them Miss Kate Moulton and Queen Beatrice, or any other new variety of merit. Please bring same, or forward them prepaid by express, if not convenient to come with them, in care of David Rust, Horticultural hall, Broad street, above Spruce, Philadelphia, Pa.

EDWIN LONSDALE, Sec'y.

TWIN CITIES.

The Market.

Trade has been very good. The majority could have done more but for the scarcity of stock. All varieties of roses have been hard to get. Carnations have been coming fairly well and the quality is certainly good. Our leading stores have had no difficulty in getting $1 a dozen and in some cases $1.50 a dozen for them. Violets have been in great demand and one safely can say that there has been an increase of fifty per cent in the sale of them this year over a year ago. The single varieties are in great demand and it is a hard matter to find a dealer that handles very many doubles. Bulbous stock is both good and plentiful. Prices have kept up nicely, although some of the department stores are gradually working into the special sales.

Minneapolis.

Will & Son will increase their plant by 75,000 feet of glass. This, with what they now have, will give them in the neighborhood of 150,000 feet, which is possibly the largest plant in this section. The new glass is now mostly on the ground, coming from Sharpe, Partridge & Co., Chicago.

Donaldson's have not as yet been able to grow sufficient to supply their retail trade.

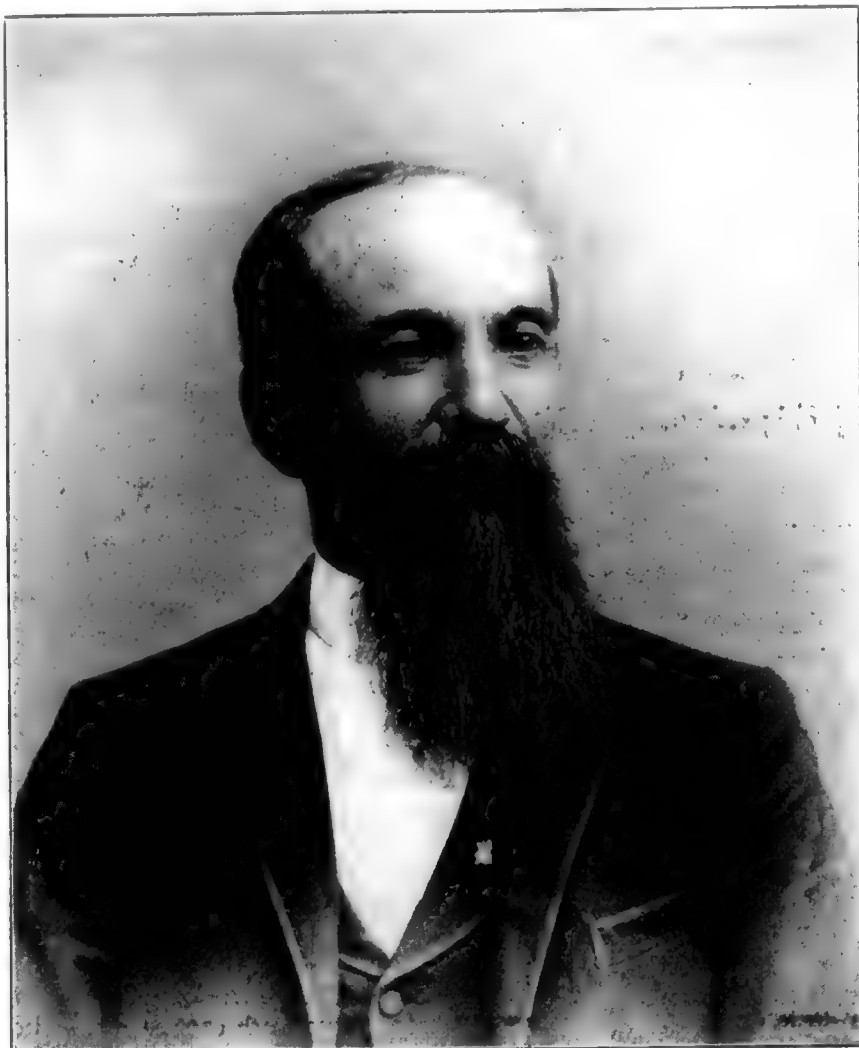

Rice Bros. report a good trade, and so far have been able to get good stock. Their demand is not only local, but large shipments are made daily into the smaller towns. The care they take in selecting good stock for their trade no doubt will well repay them.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. is sending in large numbers of tulips, jonquils and daffodils, also fine stock of the new pink rose, Miss Kate Moulton. John Monson says he contemplates adding three or four new houses this spring.

St. Paul.

The L. L. May & Co. greenhouses are crowded with plants for the Easter trade. They have had fine success with the Killarney rose. It is the only place in this section where this variety is grown in large numbers. Mr. Hoffman, manager of the retail department, reports a large trade the past week.

The Swanson Floral Co. has two large weddings for this week. Gus Colberg looked quite worn out after working until 2 a. m. Sunday, to get out a large number of designs for the early train.

J. C. Rennison.

R. C. Seeger is cutting some very nice roses and carnations, but has none to sell wholesale, getting only a sufficient number for his retail trade.

The bogus check man is still in this locality and it seems he is very partial to florists, not less than four of our dealers having been victimized within the past two weeks.

The social event of the past week was a ball given by the Minnesota Boat Club. The decorations were furnished by two of our florists for advertising purposes only. FELIX.

OBITUARY.

Death of J. C. Rennison.

In the sudden death of J. C. Rennison, which occurred at his home at Sioux City, Ia., on February 24, the trade lost one of its best known members. Mr. Rennison had spent a lifetime of hard work in the greenhouse business. He was one of the oldest members of the Society of American Florists, a regular attendant at the conventions, a wide traveler, a hale fellow well met in spite of his 67 years and he numbered as his friends probably as many of those in the trade as any one whose occupation is not traveling and making friends.

Mr. Rennison's death came without warning. A week ago he fell on an ice-coated sidewalk, suffering a blow upon the head which caused a blood clot which resulted in his death. He had not been thought seriously injured until the morning of his demise.

J. C. Rennison was born in Newburg, N. Y., in 1839. His training in gardening began while he was a boy, in the employ of Dr. Grant, on Iona Island in the Hudson, where grapes were grown.

He was in the florists' business in Newburg when the civil war broke out. Mr. Rennison organized a company in Newburg and served until the end of the war. In 1863 he was commissioned for his services captain in the Twenty-fifth New York Cavalry. His regiment fought the campaigns of the Army of the Potomac and was with Sherman on his march to the sea.

At the close of the war Mr. Rennison married and located at Bloomington, Ill., where he conducted a nursery business for seven years. He then removed to Chicago and engaged in market gardening for nine years, going thence to Sioux City and establishing the business which he has conducted up to the present time. At the time of starting at Sioux City the product of the greenhouses was Marechal Niel, Papa Gontier and Safrano roses and pot plants, the latter being a large part of the business. Mr. Rennison was a thorough grower and in recent years has been very successful with the carnation and chrysanthemum and also with the rose, considering the unfavorably light character of the soil in his locality.

The establishment has grown steadily since 1882 and it is stated that the plant is worth $40,000. Arrangements have recently been made to enlarge the glass and to locate the retail department in a new and well appointed corner store down-town. The business will be carried on by the widow and children, Walter S. Rennison and Fannie L. Rennison.

The funeral was held February 26, conducted by the Christian Scientists. The Grand Army and the Knights of Pythias were largely represented and the local members of the trade were present. A number of floral designs were sent by those in the trade at a distance.

CARRICK, PA.—Wm. C. Klein has only recently returned from a prolonged southern trip.

MARSHALL, MICH.—Z. G. Blakeslee has just completed a house 20x80 feet and will stock up for the local spring trade.

COLUMBUS, O. — Valentine's day brought a heavier demand than in former years, violets being especially sought. Beauties, too, are much in demand.

SADDLE RIVER, N. J.—J. G. Esler, secretary, states that the Florists' Hail Association now insures more than 24,000,000 square feet of greenhouse glass. Some of this is in extra one-half and extra whole insurance and Mr. Esler estimates that the mutual protection covers approximately one-third the glass in the country.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

There was steady retrogression throughout last week. Starting strong on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday already saw the weakening tendency, and by Friday and Saturday conditions were the most unfavorable which have prevailed in weeks. Roses were the only things which held their values. The supply in this department has not at any time since the holidays been more than equal to the demand. All other items required price concessions to clean out stock and Saturday night found the market with large quantities of carnations, bulbous stock and, especially, violets to carry over. Sunday did not make any impression on the surplus. The New Orleans Mardi Gras business was notable, but only for its absence. The shipments south were much less than in recent years, possibly because prices were considerably above the normal level for this season, but probably largely because the mild winter is affording a large supply of outdoor flowers at the south. Mississippi jonquils reached this market February 20. Heretofore about March 12 has been the usual date of first arrival.

Saturday was an exceedingly unpleasant day and the retailers bought almost nothing. Many of them had, on Friday evening, stocked heavily on carnations and violets, which they were unable to dispose of either Saturday or Sunday, and which they had on hand Monday morning. This naturally gave this week a poor start so far as local business is concerned. The cold weather is serving to check receipts, but nevertheless there is a large surplus of bulbous stock and an ample supply of carnations, so that averages will show a considerable falling off. Violets suffer especially. Roses hardly hold their own, but nevertheless prices are well above normal. Quality is excellent in every department.

The Deamud Company.

With the opening of the doors this morning the business of John B. Deamud passed to the John B. Deamud Co., for which application for a charter has been made. Mr. Deamud is to be president of the corporation, Wm. Kyle vice-president and Miss Emmett secretary. Mr. Kyle has for many years been with the Kennicott Bros. Co. and is one of the best liked young men in the market. Miss Emmett has had charge of Mr. Deamud's books for a long period. The new firm proposes to considerably extend the business.

At Poehlmannville.

Fred Frillman, for seven years book-keeper for the Poehlmann Bros. Co., most of the time employed at the greenhouses at Morton Grove, but spending a part of each week at the city store, died February 21 of pneumonia. He was 43 years of age and leaves a wife and three children.

Fred Kaeding has been arrested, charged with the theft of $580 in currency, which John Ahrens, a gardener at Adolph Poehlmann's plant, had hoarded in a trunk at their boarding house.

Various Notes.

There was much regret at receipt of the tidings of the death of J. C. Rennison, which came to hand February 24.

There was a meeting Wednesday afternoon at the office of the Benthey-Coatsworth Co. to discuss further plans for the Peoria convention of the State Florists' Association, which has been postponed to March 9. Chairman James Hartshorne presided. The carnation exhibition of the Chicago Florists' Club takes place March 8 and a large party will go directly from the club meeting to the train for Peoria.

George Keller & Sons' pottery at 361 Herndon street was visited by fire on the morning of February 28. The damage was sufficiently great that it is thought it will take thirty days to get back into shape to ship orders for pots.

C. M. Dickinson is again suffering with rheumatism, and Flint Kennicott is able to be about only with the use of his cane.

Klehms' Nursery is having exceptionally good results with the Novelty tulip this year. They are sending Kennicott Bros. Co. 800 to 1,000 a day, finely colored and as like as peas in a pod.

E. C. Amling is receiving Glendale carnation from W. J. & M. S. Vesey. The flowers are fine and it takes well. The retailers say it has fine keeping qualities.

Harry Rowe expects to move next week to his new store at 42 Monroe street, in the Palmer House block, where he will have very fine facilities. J. Bruckner, recently with A. Lange and now doing business as the Majestic Florist, has made a lease on Mr. Rowe's old store from May 1.

W. E. Lynch calls attention to the fact that most common ferns now being shipped are slightly frozen and should be placed in a cool place, without being dampened, to thaw out gradually.

Ed Kanst was the speaker before the Gardeners' Union at its meeting Wednesday evening.

A. L. Vaughan is at New Orleans this week.

Peter Reinberg is having an exceptionally large cut of short Beauties at present. Beauty crops in general are on the increase.

The Florists' Club's carnation show March 8 will be held at room 531 on the fifth floor of the Atlas block, in the room recently vacated by Joseph Ziska.

N. J. Wietor has been fully occupied the last ten days in the management of St. Henry's annual church bazaar, which came to an end on Tuesday.

J. A. Budlong reports a good New Orleans demand last week.

Last Saturday Weiland & Risch began grading for their new range of glass, which will exactly double their plant and which will be, like the present range, all devoted to roses.

The Retailers' Association met last Thursday evening in Handel hall. Reports were made as to progress in the association's various enterprises.

A. L. Randall Co. is handling apple blossoms and bridal wreath spiraea from Emil Buettner.

Bassett & Washburn do quite a retail business at Hinsdale, where many of Chicago's business men reside, and had a large wedding decoration on Monday.

The Chicago Rose Co. had a shipment of Scottii ferns last week, which sold out very quickly.

One of the local dailies with a penchant for scare heads found some of its favorite material last week in the settlement of differences between Amelia Schafer and John Assa.

ed an entire page to Nellie C. Moore, with a portrait of Miss Moore and a picture showing her at work in the greenhouses. It would have been complete had it pictured her wholesaling her cut at the Flower Growers' Market.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, report a big increase in their sales of boilers and say conditions are such that they anticipate a much larger increase. They have booked orders from all parts of the country, including points as far west as Washington and Idaho.

Lester Partridge, of Sharpe, Partridge & Co., says that the demand for greenhouse glass is entirely unprecedented. Sales have been heavy in car lots and the market is steadily stiffening. Mr. Partridge says that before the season is over jobbers will be paying a premium to get greenhouse glass to fill orders.

Among the week's visitors were Paul Berkowitz, of Bayersdorfer's, Philadelphia, who was accompanied by Mrs. Berkowitz and who met here Martin Reukauf, of the same house; W. G. Mathison, of the Dayton Floral Co., Dayton, O.; E. E. Petersen, Denver, buying material for 15,000 feet of new glass; J. A. Evans, Richmond, Ind.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The past week about wound up the weddings, receptions and dinners, as Lent is here. The west end florists were especially busy. The weather was favorable for the decorators. The downtown florists also had a good word to say for business; the counter sales and funeral work kept them very busy all the week.

Extra fancy stock of all kinds has been scarce, roses particularly so. Not near enough came in for the demand and prices were high for the grade of stock that was obtainable. Long fancy Beauties sold well. Plenty of short-stemmed stock was on hand, but very poor. Carnations held up well and the market had enough to fill all orders, both local and shipping. Quality is very fine. Lawson and Enchantress are in most demand.

Bulbous stock of every variety is in the market, with daffodils, tulips and Paper Whites a drug. Dutch hyacinths and valley are selling well. Harrisii and callas are somewhat scarce. Violets glutted the market last week, but sold well at cheap prices. The bulk of them were Californias. The market is well supplied with greens.

Various Notes.

The growers are all busy, looking after their Easter stock, and report lilies looking well, with very little disease among them. Messrs. Sanders, Windler, Schray, Beyer and Jablonsky are well stocked up.

W. E. Burrows, of Pilcher & Burrows, spent a few days at his old home in Peoria.

Fred Ammann, of Edwardsville, spent a day in town the past week and reports everything in first-class shape at his place.

Fred Foster was in Louisiana, Mo., a few days last week buying horses. He reports business good at his down-town store.

Henry Emmons, of Belleville, was in Peoria last week attending the funeral of his brother.

The Ellison Floral Co. had a busy time last week, with no less than four large receptions.

Siegle & Burke on Saturday opened their new store at Sixth and Locust streets and report a big trade in violets and carnations.

Frank Ellis writes that he arrived safe in Panama and that he will return home March 8.

The Eggeling Floral Co. has opened its new store at Delmar and Kings Highway, and is making attractive displays in the show windows.

John Cannon, of Webster Groves, called last week and reports that the date of his marriage to Miss Watson is not yet set, but will let the boys know in plenty of time. John has a very sore right hand, which is causing him much trouble.

Mr. Haddecker, of Kirkwood, is sending F. M. Ellis a big lot of extra fine California violets.

A. S. Halstead, president of the St. Clair Floral Co., Belleville, is building a new residence on his place, to be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Cestor Halstead.

F. C. Weber had a very attractive show window the past week, showing fancy cut stock and blooming plants.

Carl Beyer reports that they are happy now that their boiler is again in good working order. They will have a fine lot of blooming plants for Easter.

Next Thursday afternoon the club's big rose meeting will take place. The exhibition will be large. The attendance should be equally as large as the last one when over half the membership turned out. The trustees will be on

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business has been exceedingly brisk. Both Valentine's day and Washington's birthday helped create quite a demand for a variety of flowers. Violets sold in larger quantities than in former years for these holidays.

The weather has been quite mild, with a good deal of sun, being very favorable for roses and carnations, which have improved considerably in quality, but are still very scarce. White roses, especially, are scarce. Carnations are coming in larger quantities, white and Encantress sell readily at $2.50 to $3 per hundred; Lawson bring $2 per hundred. Red carnations were in big demand the past three weeks. Tulips and daffodils are a glut at present. Smilax and other greens are not overplentiful.

Among the Retailers.

Beginning a visit to the retail stores with the Detroit Floral Co., we find Robert Flowerday a very busy man. He is seldom seen among the trade except on meeting night, as he has his hands full looking after a large span of glass as well as the store. Mrs. Flowerday is an able assistant, looking after the store when her husband is busy elsewhere.

Wm. Brown is doing a nice business, getting his share of the funeral and decorative work. He also has the able assistance of his wife, who always wears a smile, no matter how long she has to keep the coffee warm, waiting for William to finish some design.

From here we go diagonally across the avenue, where we find E. A. Feters; although the youngest firm in Detroit, they by no means do the least business. The tasty window displayed by this enterprising firm is a great drawing card and should set an example for all retailers. Mr. Feters always keeps his window just a little ahead of the times, and no doubt it serves as a gentle reminder to many passers-by. Miss Feters is also a great help looking after the books.

George Leadley is the next down the street. He makes good use of a large show window, always showing a good, fresh collection of flowers and blooming plants.

At Sullivan's it is the same old song; work until you cannot rest. It is a wonder Norman does not get thin. With sleeves rolled up to his elbows, he is generally making up some design. Mrs. Sullivan is always on deck, wearing a pleasant smile for all comers.

Taking a jaunt up a side street we find Schroeter's, head over heels in funeral work, this being their long suit, although they get their share of the decorative work also. Having a 100-foot house in connection with their store, they are always able to display a fine collection of plants in season. It is easily to be seen that Mr. Schroeter's hobby is orchids and, judging from the perfect blooms on his plants, he stands alone as an orchid grower among Detroit's florists.

On the next corner is Breitmeyer's elaborate new store, where an extra large force of help is always kept busy. Among a number of decorations this firm had charge of were those for the banquet tendered Secretary of War Taft by the board of commerce, spring flowers in red and white predominating. F. Danzer, their window trimmer, deserves great credit, the five large show windows being always tastefully decorated. The fountain attracts an unusual amount of at-

Wholesale Florists and Florists' Supplies

SEVERAL REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BUY YOUR FLORISTS' SUPPLIES FROM US

I. We have just opened the Florists' Supply Department and every article is new and free from soil or damage.

II. No article will ever be shipped from our house unless it is in perfect condition and as represented.

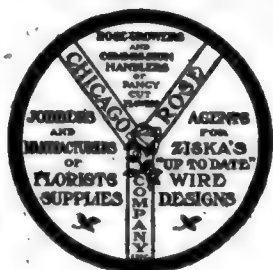

III. Buyers of our Supplies are given to understand and are respectfully requested to return at our expense any article that is not satisfactory on arrival.

IV. We are the largest Cut Flower Supply House in the West and we do not rely entirely upon the profits of the Florists' Supply Department.

V. We have no salesmen on the road, thereby saving you one profit which we give you in the form of quality, as our goods are our only salesmen and must talk for themselves.

Talk is cheap and these few remarks mean nothing to you or us unless you can see a vein of truth between the lines and avail yourself, by at least writing for our catalogue and giving us one order.

tention, with its collection of gold and other fish. Especially is this a great treat for the public when it is zero weather outside.

At Taepke's we find Manager Walter Taepke a busy young man. They have a large share of the funeral work, especially among the Germans. Their own houses keep them pretty well supplied with roses and carnations, though at times the commission house is pressed into service. The Taepkes are prominent members of the Concordia Singing Society.

A mile farther up the street we find R. O. Koehler doing a nice business at his new store. Besides doing considerable funeral work, Mr. Koehler handles a large assortment of plants.

Just opposite police headquarters is the Bemf Floral Co. Although the manager, Albert Pochelon, is one of the shortest members of the club in stature, he is by no means the least in point of activity. This establishment reminds one of a kitchen cabinet. Although utilizing but a small piece of property, everything is arranged so conveniently that they carry about as complete a stock as anyone in town.

Last, but not least, of the down-town florists, is the McHugh Floral Co., on Michigan avenue, doing a nice business, running mostly to funeral work.

Various Notes.

Theodore Siebenhuener, for the past seventeen years in the employ of Breitmeyer's Sons, died suddenly February 23, aged 43 years. His loss will be keenly felt by the Breitmeyers, having been one of their most trustworthy employees. For twelve years Mr. Siebenhuener had charge of the greenhouse alongside of their old store and since the erection of the new building he looked after the plant department.

The regular meeting of the Florists'

Club was held Wednesday, February 21, being fairly well attended. There being no special subject assigned for the evening the question box was pressed into service, bringing forth a number of interesting discussions. Next meeting we will have Messrs. Dodson and Larsen with us.

NORTHERN TEXAS.

The past week has been one of continuous rain, making it a hard proposition to grow good stock and causing social functions to lapse, so that business is not as brisk as formerly. Stock is showing the effects of the continued wet, cloudy weather and a little sunshine would be gladly welcomed by the growers. All the growers in this section report splendid business on Valentine's day, which is one of the florists' harvest days. Christmas and Valentine's days are the days here, while Easter there is but very little done except with some churches.

Decoration day in the north marks the closing of the planting season and is generally observed there; here it isn't even thought of, and no effort is made to keep stock that long, as the planting season ends a month or more earlier. The planting season commences about the middle of March and ends about May 1. All the growing must be done before the latter part of June, for, after that until the last of September, everything stops growing except vincas, which enjoy the heat and bloom luxuriantly. Asters, gladioli, tuberose, dahlias and, in fact, nearly all soft-wooded stock must be grown in shade houses to get good results.

Roses out of doors are at their best in October and November. Geraniums, except in sandy soil, do not do well, and, if grown at all in this kind of soil, must be grown in the coolest place that can be found. We have four different kinds of soil here: light sandy, dark sandy, gray loam, and what is known here as black waxy; the latter soil is considered the most valuable and farms of that variety of soil command the best prices. Land is very cheap, considering the prices obtained north, but whatever growing is done must be done early in the spring or late in the fall. Vegetables, with the possible exception of sweet potatoes, will not keep in this climate, and the man will be lucky who can devise a means to keep vegetables during the winter.

The plant of H. O. Hannah & Son, of Sherman, recently caught fire from some unknown cause, but supposed to be due to defective electrical construction. The fire occurred early in the morning, and destroyed the boiler room and a large stock of seeds and bulbs which were stored there. Fortunately, the wind was blowing away from the greenhouses and there was very little loss to growing stock. Mr. Hannah carried no insurance.

C. C. Mayhew, manager of the Texas Nursery Co., of Sherman, was one of the visitors from this section at the carnation convention at Boston.

The event of the season in a social way here is the annual reception given by the Kidd-Key Female College, of Sherman, on Washington's birthday. Mrs. Key, the head of the institution, used this year over 200 pounds of smilax, from fifty to sixty palms, 200 roses and about 400 carnations, not saying anything of various pot-plants for decorative purposes. H. O. Hannah & Son have filled the bill now for a number of years and have filled the order again this year.

Mr. Smith, of the firm of Smith & Fetter, is on a business trip in the east, and was last heard from in New York.

James Eastwell, of the same firm, is taking a short vacation, which leaves Mr. Pruzen in charge of the store, with more work than it seems possible for one man to look after.

H. R. Carlton, the originator of the Herrick violet, is sending the Cleveland Cut Flower Co. some of the finest blooms seen this season, and the demand is larger than the supply. The Herrick violet is certainly a very free bloomer;

Mr. Bowditch, of Alliance, called Saturday and introduced his friend, Mr. Scott, of Chicago, to the trade. Mr. Scott is with Poehlmann Bros. He says their stock is very fine this season and the cut good.

Club Meeting.

On Monday evening the Cleveland Florists' Club held its carnation exhibit in the club room. A fine display of cut flowers was shown by the following growers:

Fred Burki, Pittsburg, Pa., twenty-five blooms each of Flamingo, Lady Bountiful and Fred Burki; this exhibit arrived in fine condition, and made a grand show.

F. R. & P. M. Pierson showed a vase each of Variegated Lawson, Winsor and Helen M. Gould, all of which were greatly admired by the members who commented on the keeping qualities of these varieties as shown by their long journey and the fact that they were shipped Saturday afternoon, not arriving at the hall until 7 p. m. Monday.

Bate Bros. staged a vase each of Red Lawson, Mrs. Patten, Fred Burki, White Lawson, Cardinal, Lawson, Enchantress, a very dark sport of Enchantress and a salmon sport of Enchantress. All of these blooms were fine, but not grown for exhibition purposes, being selected from the daily cut.

Merkle & Son, of Mentor, O., exhibited a vase each of Fred Burki, White Lawson, Lawson and Enchantress, and they were all fine.

The Ohio Floral Co. showed a fine selection of Lawson, Enchantress and Flamingo; a vase of white sweet peas that were extra fine. Their vases of Brides, Golden Gates and Maids were the finest the writer has ever seen on exhibition in this city. Their growers certainly deserve great credit for what they have accomplished.

Mr. Coe, of Coe Ridge, showed a fine vase of Albertini which is one of the best producers and money makers he has.

Mr. Blacksmith, our Miles avenue florist, had a fine vase of Enchantress and Lawson. He makes a specialty of growing carnations.

John Kelley, gardener for Mr. Wade, who has the finest private houses here, staged a vase of Princess narcissus and a fine vase of Lawson.

H. R. Carlton, of Willoughby, showed a fine vase of his single violet, Governor Herrick, which he claims to be the freest bloomer grown, many plants producing 250 blooms in a season. Its keeping qualities are fine; he has a good thing.

R. Wasco, of Glenville, had a beautiful vase of Princess of Wales, with large flowers and 12-inch stems. Mr. Wasco makes this violet a specialty and is having good success with it.

The Cleveland Cut Flower Co. showed one of their hand sprayers for using tobacco extracts to exterminate green fly and red spider on all greenhouse plants. Many of the largest growers are using it with good success, and they were called on to express their opinions on it, which led to quite an interesting talk on bug exterminators.

A committee of three, consisting of A. Graham, Sr., Ed. George and Mr. Myers, was appointed by Pres. Bloy to report on the exhibits and they complied in a very able manner.

Mr. Kennedy made a very eloquent plea for more of these exhibitions, and advocated the holding of a large flower show at least twice a year for the benefit of the public. This was ably seconded by Chas. Schmidt, who said these shows always helped business and made many new customers. It is bound to come; and why shouldn't the florists interest the public in the goods they have to sell as well as the automobile manufacturers, or grocers in their pure food shows, which are such great successes here every year? Cleveland is getting to be a large city, but it does not commence to use the quantity of flowers that many smaller towns of less wealth use.

I SHALL not be without the REVIEW.—
EDW. MATTHES, Woodside, N. Y.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Lent began on Wednesday. Its shadow was cast before. The market began to feel its influence on Monday. Beauties fell to 60 cents each for the best and all other grades suffered in unison. Brides and Maids fell from $15 to $12 and then to $10 per hundred for the best and are likely to stay there. Violets were not in demand and 50 cents will likely be top for some time to come. Carnations, too, felt the strain and all grades retrograded about twenty per cent from last week's quotations.

Orchids were none too plentiful and good cattleyas easily held at 60 cents each. Bulbous stock was enormous in shipments and weak in price. Lilies, when perfect, touched 15 cents each. The early distribution of the Easter plants is ill-advised. It seems like rushing the season. By Easter these will have lost their prestige and it may not be a "plant Easter" after all. Window decoration is growing in beauty and competition is keen. The weather is spring-like. With the advent of March the winter is over before it had begun. We gladly speed the parting guest.

Various Notes.

Orchid night, ladies' night, collation, illustrated lecture by Prof. Nash, music and dancing ought to make the next meeting of the New York Florists' Club, March 12, a corker.

Jos. A. Manda, of South Orange, is reported ill with typhoid fever. This comes in a bad time for Mr. Manda, just as he is beginning his new enterprise in orchid growing.

On Wednesday of this week George T. Powell lectured on "Insects Injurious to Vegetation" at the American Institute.

A. H. Funnell, secretary of the Huntington, L. I., Horticultural Society, announces a carnation exhibition there next Tuesday evening, March 6, at which prizes will also be given for the best display of roses, violets and plants.

Clem Pollworth, of Milwaukee, with his characteristic modesty, failed to notify the trade in New York of his matrimonial intentions in time for a proper send-off by his floricultural friends here. But he has the best wishes of the New Yorkers.

Henry Siebrecht, Sr., is suffering with an attack of the grip. Real estate in and near New Rochelle has advanced 100 per cent in value during the past year. Henry Siebrecht, Jr., has made some purchases lately that have more than doubled in price in less than thirty days.

McManus is handling some fine stock of Phalænopsis Schilleriana.

Another Washington wedding since that in the White House was handled by Small & Sons last week, for which the demand for orchids was heavy. The price holds very steady and the supply is decreasing.

Saltford had a large shipment of camellias from the south on Monday, which were in excellent condition and sold rapidly.

Interesting changes in the official departments of some of the wholesale houses on Twenty-eighth street are noticeable.

Wm. Duckham, of Madison, returned from Europe by the Cedric on Friday, after a very enjoyable trip.

ready opened his lately acquired head-quarters and is greatly pleased with the change. Abundant room makes it one of the best wholesale stores in the city.

The Geller Co. has just received an importation of 20,000 sea moss for artificial ferneries. The imitation is perfect, the demand large.

Grant, of Small & Sons, was at Erie this week, putting up a decoration.

Donohue, of West Twenty-ninth street, had charge of the decorations for the silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Benedict last Friday. Alma Ward carnations, special Brides and gardenias were the flowers used and 120 covers were laid. With the addition of ground glass and "silver rain" which covered the entire decoration, the effect was most unique and charming.

At McConnell's the outdoor display has been as full and Eastery as if the holiday had arrived. Last week apple trees in full bloom in tubs, rhododendrons, large forsythias, acacias, hydrangeas, magnolias, Azalea mollis, Baby Ramblers, lilacs, azaleas, pots of tulips and hyacinths combined to remind one that Easter is less than seven weeks away. Richmond rose is a favorite here and is used extensively. At the Washington's birthday dinner at George Gould's, a most beautiful effect was produced by the use of large cherry trees in bloom and fruit, set in large, low baskets with red roses as a base, while full-sized axes were made entirely of Richmond roses. The tables were 6x14 feet and were none too large for the display.

Another original decoration was that made by Thos. Young, Jr., at the University Club on Saturday evening. The occasion was a farewell banquet to twenty members of the club leaving the following day on the Coronia for Europe. An exact counterpart of the big steamer was made in violets with white and yellow daisies for the upper decks and narcissi for the port-holes. The water was represented by mignonette, with valley and hyacinths, neatly arranged to signify the foam. The shore line was traced in green moss with narcissi as the crest of the waves breaking. Every detail was carried out perfectly. Four rows of port-holes were shown, while at one end of the table New York City and Long Island were illustrated and at the other end Genoa and Gibraltar. The boat was three feet high. The whole effect was most interesting and creditable to the artist who designed it.

Hitchings & Co. will have their offices at 1170 Broadway. The firm, besides its Jersey City factory, has purchased twenty-eight acres in Elizabeth, N. J., and will at once erect there a model greenhouse manufactory, foundry, planing mill, etc. The Jersey Central and the Pennsylvania will run their tracks to the center of the works. The firm will also here be close to the waterway shipping conveniences. The idea is to build a community for the employees, with cottages and all conveniences. A mutually satisfactory dissolution of the Burnham-Hitchings-Pierson Co. has been made and each firm will now conduct an absolutely distinct business as before the union last July.

The Market.

The past week proved to be a most satisfactory one all around. Prices held up until Saturday, when they softened somewhat. Owing to the continued warm and clear weather, more suggestive of April than February, there has been a heavy increase in the output, particularly in the case of violets, carnations and bulbous stock, while we never saw sweet peas so abundant at the season. American Beauty roses are still scarce, realizing $6 a dozen for the best. The new crop, however, will soon be in. Brides sell well, short stems making $5, extra select up to $2 per dozen. Maids and Chatenay vary from $4 to $12. Liberty goes from $5 to $16. Other roses continue in rather short supply.

Carnations have dropped a little all around. This is not to be wondered at, considering the tremendous output coming in. Prices vary from $1.50 to $4, only the poor stock making the lowest price, from $2 to $3 being the average price. Violets are arriving in tremendous quantities. Prices vary from 30 cents to 60 cents, a few extras still making 75 cents. With a continuation of this warm weather the singles will soon run out. They are now making heavy foliage, a sure sign of the beginning of the end. Sweet peas are seen at all prices, from 25 cents to $1, and the quality is even more varied than the prices would indicate. Narcissi and tulips are in oversupply. The average is $1.50 per hundred on these. Lilies and callas are very abundant and cheaper. Green stock remains in good demand. Pot-plants are arriving in quite large numbers and meet with a fair demand.

Various Notes.

Prof. H. F. Hall, of Durham, N. H., spoke at Horticultural hall on February 24 on "Vegetable Breeding." A good discussion followed, some of the lecturer's statements being criticised.

At the last club meeting, in addition to exhibits named in the last number of the REVIEW, there was a scarlet sport from Carnation Harlowarden from Mrs. J. P. Snow and a very good scarlet from John Murchie, Sharon, Pa., which arrived, unfortunately, in poor condition. Robert Marshall showed a fine basket of Dendrobium nobile.

Prospects for the coming meeting of the American Rose Society are excellent and preparations for it are well advanced.

H. H. Barrows & Son report a big sale already for their new Nephrolepis Whitmanii. It will be introduced this spring and will, I think, prove the most popular of the family. They will make a special exhibit of it at the spring show in Boston.

H. J. Jenner, president of the Seed Trade Bowling League, states that the R. & J. Farquhar team won the late league contest with the Schlegel & Fottler team second. On the programs distributed on the occasion of the late banquet the last named team was given as the winners, with J. Breck & Sons second.

WASHINGTON.

State of Trade.

Lent comes on apace, but it does not seem to hold so many terrors for the fashionable set as in days of yore. Church canons seem to be relaxing and, anyway, I doubt if the use of flowers ever was a serious offense. But even if the church were obdurate on this point it would have little effect on statesmen, particularly those independent souls like Speaker Cannon, who gives a dinner to the Gridiron Club March 17.

There were a great number of events requiring decorations during the past week and plenty of orders are booked for the present. Stock is plentiful and of good quality, the most marked improvement being in Bride and Bridesmaid roses. All fine carnations are soon taken, the retail price keeping well up to $1 per dozen. Violets retail at from 25 cents to $1 per bunch of fifty blooms, all depending on quality and freshness. Both tulips and jonquils move freely but indifferent grades of the latter are going for a song, or less. Cut Harrisii lilies are in fair supply and soon taken.

There is a lively movement in all good pot stocks. Azaleas of fine quality are plentiful and sell well, as do lilac, rhododendrons and hydrangeas. Primroses and hyacinths in pans continue to move freely. The quality of spiraea thus far seen is indifferent but it sells.

Various Notes.

The Gude Bros. furnished a large and elegant decoration at the home of Gen. and Mrs. W. F. Draper February 24, the occasion being a fancy dress ball given by Gen. and Mrs. Draper to their young daughter, Miss Margaret Draper. American Beauty roses predominated, there being baskets and vases of them in every available space throughout the drawing rooms, with banks on the mantels.

This firm is now handling a very fine line of Prof. Wolters and other azaleas, as well as numerous other plants, and a large stock of cut flowers, all grown at their own greenhouses.

The Growers.

The Washington Florists' Co. is making a fine exhibit of Enchantress carnations and pot-plants, the stock being grown at the greenhouses of J. Louis Loose, president of the company.

A misunderstanding has arisen in regard to the rose Columbia, which was originated by William Clarke, of this city. It was merely on exhibition at George H. Cooke's store, he not being at present engaged in growing. He was greatly pleased with Mr. Clarke's rose

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The annual banquet of the New Bedford Horticultural Society was held at the Mansion House on Wednesday evening, February 21. The tables were handsomely decorated with plants from John Garthley and, among the cut flowers, vases of Winsor carnations from Peter Murray and Jahn's new white seedling carnation were conspicuous. In spite of the very wet weather there was a good attendance and all present spent a most delightful evening. Frank E. Barrows proved an able and witty toastmaster. The mayor of New Bedford, Thomas Thompson, made an excellent address, which was warmly applauded.

Other speakers were President William Keith, James F. M. Farquhar, T. J. Grey, W. N. Craig, Emmanuel Sullivan, W. F. Turner, Joseph Forbes, H. A. Jahn and James Garthley. The president stated that two years ago the membership was fifty-five. It is now 110 and prospects for the future are bright. It was announced that H. A. Jahn will speak on dahlias at the next meeting and that Messrs. Farquhar will deliver a stereopticon lecture on bulb growing in Holland during March.

Mayor Thompson has shown his good sense by selecting two members of the Horticultural Society to fill vacancies soon to occur on the park board. President Wm. Keith will be one of the members. The mayor believes that practical men will be better on this board than those who know nothing about trees. We read a communication from the present park commission congratulating New Bedford citizens on the freedom of their city from moth pests. If the commissioners only knew what a brown tail moth's nest looks like they could find plenty of them in their city limits.

At James Garthley's, on the H. H. Rogers estate in Fairhaven, there is a fine display of seasonable flowers. A house of cinerarias was extra fine. There were also good lots of cyclamens, azaleas, Primula Obconica and other sorts.

At Peter Murray's the Winsor carnation, which was raised here, is doing well. White Lawson is the only other sort grown. A fine assortment of such stock as amaryllis, lilliums, Dutch bulbous stock, azaleas, libonias, etc., were seen. Some fine baskets of cœlogynes are in flower and Mr. Murray cannot get over his old orchid love, for we noticed quite a collection of little dendrobies coming on. Retail trade is very good this season.

New Bedford is well provided with florists. There are some thirty-seven possessing greenhouses. Sorry we had only time to visit a few during a brief stay. We were surprised to find that so few of these belonged to the Horticultural Society. It seems to us that their own best interests would be advanced if they joined it.

New Bedford is sometimes called a "cactus dahlia town." Certainly the dahlia is in full swing here and some wonderful cactus creations are said to be in the embryo stage. W. N. C.

POUGHKEEPSIE.

The Annual Dinner.

The eighth annual banquet of the Dutchess County Horticultural Society, at the Nelson House, on the evening of Washington's birthday, was one of the most enjoyable and successful in its history. Of its 305 members, about half sat down to a spread worthy of the city and the society in a banquet room beautifully decorated with the best flowers of the expert growers of this famous center of floriculture.

The officers of the society are Charles J. Reynolds, president; Thomas B. Conner, vice-president; George W. Sweet, treasurer; N. Harold Cottam, secretary. In its membership are numbered the leading ministers, lawyers, doctors and merchants of Poughkeepsie, as well as all the leading gardeners of that section.

President Reynolds announced the society's finances as sound and the balance on the right side of the ledger for the first time in its career. The novelty of two toastmasters added to the interest of the occasion. These were the Hon. Frank B. Lown and Frank Hasbrook, and the stories they told and the manner and elaborateness of their introductions of the speakers kept the crowd in constant good humor. The speakers were Geo. L. Spratt, John R. Van Warner, Lewis Stuyvesant Chandler, Prof. Jordan, of the Government experiment station at Geneva, and the Rev. Wm. Euchler. The song by Prof. King and the recitations by Richard O'Connell and Mr. Mattern added greatly to the evening's enjoyment.

Various Notes.

To visit the florists of Poughkeepsie and the violet growers within a few miles of that city would easily use up a week, so that in the few hours at our disposal we were unable to see them all.

The showing of violets at Thos. DeVoy & Son's is superb, maintaining the reputation of this firm for a quarter of a century. A stock of the famous Telegraph geranium will be ready for the spring demand and a house of lilies shows perfect condition. Preparations are also made for the usual tomato and lettuce distribution later on. Mr. DeVoy, Sr., is in fine health at 73 years.

The marriage of Miss DeVoy will take place on Saturday and the wedding bouquet will naturally be home-grown violets. Mr. DeVoy thinks there will be no surplus of violets because of the continued increase of greenhouse building in Dutchess county and says the field is widening so rapidly and the calls from Chicago, Philadelphia and other cities are so persistent that no possibility of the supply exceeding the demand need be feared.

Near the plant of DeVoy & Son is the establishment of Isaac Fricker, where a general assortment is grown under about 20,000 square feet of glass.

The Pinehurst Conservatories, 35,000 square feet, are well worth a visit. Here Wm. G. Saltford reigns and every flower grown is utilized in the retail store on Main street, where his two sons conduct a large and profitable business. His seedling carnation, the flowers of which average four inches, will be exhibited at Toronto and offered to the trade in the spring of 1908. Its color is between Lawson and Enchantress and great things are expected of it. George Saltford, of New York, is a brother of W. G. Saltford.

Richmond and Killarney are the popular roses this year with the thousand Vassar girls, the Saltford boys tell me.

Mrs. W. J. Lynch presides at her fine store, assisted by her three sons, and with a record of thirty-five years in the same neighborhood may well be called one of the pioneers. Twenty greenhouses, 30,000 square feet of glass, are drawn upon for the daily needs.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., W. H. Grenell, Saginaw, W. S., Mien.; First Vice-Pres., L. L. May, St. Paul; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland. The 24th annual meeting will be held at Toledo, O., June 26-28, 1906.

THERE were 425 bags of clover seed on the last boat from Liverpool.

THERE is report of poor germination in some lots of eastern-grown onion seed.

AUGUST RHOTERT confirms the report of a scarcity of lily of the valley pips in Germany this year.

GROWERS of peas and beans, having arranged for the most part for placing their acreage for the coming year's pea crop, report that their energies will have to be put forth now in finding an acreage for beans.

THE Cash Buyers' Union, a large Chicago mail order house reported to be planning to follow the lead of Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward & Co. and go heavily into the catalogue seed trade, passed into the hands of a receiver February 26, the postal authorities having inspired the action of creditors.

THE large general merchandise mail order houses that recently added seeds to their lines, find it quite difficult to keep up with their orders. They report that the seed line differs from the others in many instances, not the least being the fact that seeds are not a manufactured commodity in the sense that other things are.

CLOVERSEED was weaker on the Toledo market at the close of last week. The demand was active, but offerings seemed liberal. Shipments were active. Exports for the week were placed at 1,906 bags, as against 1,778 bags last week and 1,175 bags a year ago. Alsike receipts were 6,331 bags, against 10,166 bags a year ago, and 5,001 bags two years ago. The close was steady. Closing: Cash, $8.62; February, $8.62; March, $8.65; April, $8.57. Prime alsike, $8.15; prime timothy, $1.62.

WATKINS & SIMPSON, the London seedsmen, have offered a ten guinea cup for the best exhibit of annuals and plants usually treated as annuals, grown in pots (sweet peas excluded), to be shown at the meetings of the Royal Horticultural Society of Great Britain in 1907. The cup is presented with the idea of showing what interesting and charming plants there are among this common class of flowers when well grown and with plenty of room individually.

A WRITER in a widely read gardening magazine says that the sole object of seedsmen in urging early orders is to relieve themselves as much as possible during the rush at the height of the season. The opinion is that of one forgetful that "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," where some other fellow's bright catalogue may catch it. Again, the average seedsmen never fails to have all he can do in late March and April and counts as clear gain all the increase he can show in the record for January and February.

THE seed planting season is hardly begun and such small surpluses as have developed should therefore startle nobody.

THE market gardeners' seedsmen at the different centers report the season's business up to the present much better than last year. It is thought that the unusually mild weather is the cause.

IN general reports at hand show the business of the year to be fully up to the normal. Here and there reports are made that there is more than a sufficient quantity of available stock for the expected needs of the locality and that a feeling of doubt as to the outcome of the season prevails. On the other hand, the conditions are reported just the reverse in other localities. Bookings for shipments from the coming crop continue to come in, in a way that satisfies the growers, and present business from the jobbers' standpoint is all that could be desired. None of the mail order seedsmen is complaining.

EUROPEAN SEED NOTES.

The adverse weather conditions commenced with a poor harvesting season, many crops, especially the more tender vegetable and most flower seeds being very short in consequence, and it is now, when the orders are being made up and the wholesalers are up to their eyes in work, that the fullest effect of the shortage is felt. There is a considerable quantity of yearling seed on hand of many articles, which keeps prices down to a fairly normal level.

One of the novelties of the season which gives every promise of merit is the new tomato, Rev. Laycock. Many leading houses have placed orders for seeds with the raiser. Also inquiries are being received from America, among them one from Prof. W. W. Tracy, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

To look at the advertisement columns of the too numerous gardening journals, one would suppose the trade of retailing seeds is overcrowded; the number of firms advertising is prodigious and it is hardly credible how they all get sufficient custom to make it pay. A leading feature is the penny packet trade. Almost every sort of flower and vegetable seeds is obtainable in penny packets, even the latest novelty in packets containing perhaps not half a dozen seeds; in fact, there are one or two firms that supply every article in seeds in penny packets and have no higher price.

Sweet peas are the predominating feature just now. They are being advertised for all they are worth and to an ordinary mortal it must seem hardly credible that there is any shortage in sweet pea seeds. Most of the postal trade is done on the packet system, so that if an article runs short the retailer needs only to reduce the quantity in a packet and the buyer still gets his packet. The real shortage will be most felt by the high class firms that cannot afford to have second rate seed on the premises.

MAJOR BRASLAN, OF SAN HOSAY

The Mercury, of San Jose, Cal., heard that Chas. P. Braslan had just returned from a three months' trip among the seedsmen of the east and sent a reporter to the headquarters of the Seed Growers' Co. to interview him. Major Braslan is reported as "having nothing in particular to impart," but an appeal to his local pride brought forth the following interesting observations:

"The seed trade is sharing in the general prosperity of the country. The demand is in excess of the supply. There is going to be a great development of the California seed business in the not distant future, not only along present lines, but in the way of larger variety of product. The east wants seeds which it cannot get with certainty unless California steps into the gap. Take what we call vine plants, for instance; beans, melons, cucumbers and others of that class; there is room for big expansion in that direction out here. The eastern supply is not reliable."

"Where has the trade been looking for such seeds?" asked the reporter.

"To certain states of the middle west and north, but the crop in those sections cannot be depended upon. It is liable to be nipped by frost, drowned by rain, etc. California can produce all those seeds to the best advantage, without the drawbacks experienced there, and the development is sure to come."

"There is great public interest in California. You may think I am talking foolishly, but the fact is that the name of this city is one of the worst obstacles it has to contend with in the east. It disguises us. The people see San Jose in print, but they do not recognize it as 'San Hosay' in conversation. Tell them that you come from the Santa Clara valley, and it is all right. They recognize that; but say that you are from 'San Hosay' and the question is: 'Where is that? Never heard of it before.' If you undertake to explain to them that 'Jose' is pronounced 'Hosay,' life is too short."

"The ignorance of these easterners is something awful," commented the reporter.

"Well, I don't know about that. We feel pretty big out here among ourselves, but we are pretty small when we get east."

THE PUBLIC VIEW.

The following is probably a fair statement of the public view of the matter of the government publication of the names of those who sell adulterated seeds. It is an editorial from the Breeders' Gazette, which reaches many thousands of farmers:

It is not surprising that sellers of adulterated seeds should object to the secretary of agriculture publishing their names. Some of them are innocent of intentional wrong-doing. That is, they do not add the inferior seeds with which adulteration is accomplished. But they buy without exercising sufficient care and sell without adequate examination of the seeds which they buy. Few, if any, seedsmen raise all the seeds they sell. They must depend on others to raise and clean much of their stock, but they cannot escape responsibility for filling orders with adulterated stocks, because the same examination which enables the secretary of agriculture to discover adulteration will enable them to find it and thus protect themselves and their patrons. The law authorizes the secretary to publish the names of seedsmen whose wares are found adulterated. Question as to his right thus to do has been raised, but the attorney general has advised the secretary of agriculture that it is lawful for him to make such publication, and he will likely continue the good work in this direction that he has begun. The adulteration of seeds is easy and the temptation is great. The public commercial conscience has been thoroughly proved these latter days to be very elastic. It is time to substitute rigidity for elasticity in conscience. Publicity of wrong-doing is a wholesome and effective remedy.

NOVELTIES.

In a review of the new plants, flowers, etc., of 1905, the Horticultural Advertiser, a most discriminating English exchange, says among other things:

"Hybridizers and raisers of new roses are more numerous than ever before, but the list of novelties this season is not long. Lady Gay leaped into popular favor with almost unequalled rapidity while another climber, the Philadelphia Rambler, bids fair to dethrone Crimson Rambler from its position at the top of its class."

"The carnation holds its ground well as a whole, and the American section of the tree race has had quite a boom. At present transatlantic seedlings have naturally secured the bulk of the awards, among the best being Fair Maid, the Cardinal and Lady Bountiful; but a number of English raisers are hard at work, and we shall soon see the results of their energies."

"Of dahlias we might name the following half-dozen as comprising the cream of the new sorts: H. Shoesmith, Mrs. Macmillan, Peach, the Pilot, Ivanhoe and Victoria. Of the singles Stromboli was the most notable."

OUR CARNATION BANDS

Will save you many a dollar, because they make split flowers salable.

Your Aster, Miss Kate Lock, is the finest I ever grew. The largest and most perfect flowered Aster on my grounds this year and that is saying considerable, as I had seed from Italy, Germany, France, England, California, Canada and the United States.
REV. J. R. LAWRENCE, Prop.

Mention The Review when you write.

"The only new things in greenhouse flowering plants likely to be commercially useful are the red balsam, Impatiens Holstii, and Cutbush's improved Erica Wilmoreana, with the pretty ivy pelargonium, Hon. Mrs. Boyle.

"The novelty of the season in sweet peas is without doubt Henry Eckford, the brilliant coloring of which took the spectators by storm when first exhibited. Helen Lewis, Queen Alexandra and Evelyn Byatt also promise well.

"The additions among annuals are very few, but three good things obtained recognition. Eschscholtzia Carmine King, very distinct and a fine advance; Centaureas Bride and Bridegroom, two of the prettiest annuals we have seen for years, and Godetia Schamini double blush."

DIFFICULTIES OF IMPORTING.

We were surprised to read, on page 668 of the REVIEW, the remarks of the correspondent G., and cannot understand the difficulty which appears to exist in the importation of azaleas and rhododendrons as well as general nursery stock. Per steamer of February 3 we consigned our first American shipment of this year. It consisted of general nursery stock, including rhododendrons and azaleas and went to a state on the Pacific coast. A shipment to the same place dispatched on February 10, 1905, reached its far distant destination in perfect condition and we do not doubt for a moment that the second one will go through safely. Of course, we see that special attention is paid to packing all shipments to distant countries. The ball of earth is well supplied with moist moss tied with canvas and packed in cases with ventilating holes. The tied up roots are packed at both ends of the case, not allowing them to come in contact with the foliage of the plants in any way. Every two rows of plants we peg down with strong laths of wood nailed in at the two sides of the case in order to prevent the plants shifting while on their journey.

For California we should advise shipment from Holland not later than the end of February or the first week in March. From previous experience we are prepared to guarantee the safe arrival of our plants and shrubs at any point in the United States and see no reason why stock should not be regularly imported by your growers with perfect satisfaction to all concerned.

H. DEN OUDEN & SON.

NOTES FROM ENGLAND.

We are just now experiencing the long wished-for cold snap. This is having a marked effect for the good in the cut flower trade, prices hardening considerably in several markets, supplies being kept back somewhat. The outdoor daffodils, etc., would have been in before the forced bulbs were even half through had the mild weather continued.

French mimosa has been excessively plentiful this year. It has not only been retailed on the London streets but has reached the small towns of the provinces in considerable quantities.

It is noticeable how infrequently the green and variegated leaved aspidistras have been seen the last year or so. There does not seem to be a profitable demand even for what small quantities have been on offer, but prices asked by the continental exporters have been, until recently, excessively high, on account of shortage of stock. Some time ago aspidistras were very popular with the English public, principally as room plants where gas was used, but of late years the public taste is quite against anything at all stiff and straight, something more in the way of ferns, asparagus, etc., being preferred.

tarders of valley for export at Hamburg, states that owing to the excessively small crop of really first-class pips suitable for retarding harvested last autumn, a much less quantity is on hand than usual for the year's supply of frozen pips and some high prices may be expected, both for retarded pips and also for cut valley, as well as a much larger proportion of second and third grades. MILWAUKEE.

Business continues brisk and the supply is fair in all seasonable lines. Roses are about the only shortage and good stock in light colors finds a ready market. Bulbous stock is now coming in abundantly and prices realized are fair, considering the quantities on the market. Violets are showing the effect of the warm weather the past week and are diminishing in size. There are plenty of azaleas, primulas and other blooming plants on the market but the demand is light.

The Florists' Club gave a ball to members and friends and the affair was well attended.

C. C. Pollworth is back at his desk again after a ten days' trip in the eastern cities.

gun. Already one silver cup has been presented for competition to be placed on carnations.

A choice assortment of well grown carnations was exhibited by S. J. Trepp, Glen Cove; also two pots of cyclamen which were exceptionally fine, receiving the society's certificate of culture. The same gentleman exhibited a vase of his fine seedling carnation which has been called Maxwellton. It is a pure white, of good size, substance and shape and looks like a "taker." More will certainly be heard of it.

F. E. Conine, Stratford, Conn., was a visitor and made some appropriate remarks.

The Market.

Trade during the last week has been on the whole good, with a considerable amount of funeral work, which has kept the white stock cleared up with the exception of white tulips, of which there has been a considerable oversupply. White roses and white carnations have been for the most part scarce. A few dull days, with mild weather, had the effect of making a few of the carnations soft. Greens are scarce, especially asparagus, which is nearly cut out. Southern smilax has been used more freely this season than ever before, and to good effect. The quality has been fine. This may be accounted for by shipments coming in during mild weather.

Among the notable features in decoration was the banquet tendered to Sir Wilfred Laurier by the reformers of Ontario. The floral decorations were put up by Miller & Son, of Bracondale, and consisted principally of a huge bank of Easter lilies, lilac, pink azaleas and cinerarias, filled in with Boston ferns. The table decorations consisted of mixed cut flowers. J. S. Simmons had the Masonic banquet at the King Edward, Dunlop and Tidy had several luncheons at McConkey's, the Toronto Club and elsewhere.

Various Notes.

Lampert & McArthur, who opened about Christmas at 275 Yonge street, were sold out by the bailiff February 21. We notice that many new growers are contemplating starting in the business this coming season. The most notable is a new stock company which is capitalized at $40,000, with $10,000 paid up. This company has already purchased its land and will start building operations shortly. The plant will be located up Yonge street, in what is known as Bedford park district. Albert Houle, who for years has been foreman for John H. Dunlop, is the manager and grower. He should make a success of this venture as he has had all the practical experience in rose growing that could be desired, and has shown himself a man of ability. We understand that the plant is to be entirely given over to rose growing.

D. J.

THE REVIEW will send the Pronouncing Dictionary on receipt of 25 cents.

PACIFIC COAST.

THE Smyrna Park Nursery Co., Ceres, Cal., has received 10,000 Calimyrna fig trees from the Roeding nursery at Fresno, Cal.

PASADENA, CAL.—The Pasadena Gardeners' Association is planning an important flower show April 6 to 8. The officers are A. T. Hansen, of the Central Nursery, president; John Blake, vice-president; Herbert E. George, of Altadena, secretary; Mr. Junich, treasurer.

VARIETIES OF ROSES.

The list of roses grown under glass in the largest places near San Francisco has dwindled down until there are not over half a dozen different varieties forced. Perle des Jardins was grown here with fair success by various wholesalers several years ago, but for a long time it has not been in favor and has been generally discarded. As a consequence the retail dealer has to get along without much of a supply of that particular color and orders for yellow roses are generally refused. Some Sunset and a few beds of Sunrise are to be found but only on rare occasions.

With large flowered varieties there is also but little to select from. American Beauty has proven the only lasting sort. Ulrich Brunner has been tried. Mrs. John Laing and Queen of Edgely have also been given considerable house room but have finally been thrown out. The first two kinds mentioned are not to be relied on regarding blooming qualities and the latter, although free enough, does not seem to be a popular shade of color.

We have a somewhat larger selection of pink sorts. I find Bridesmaid to be, however, planted more generally than ever this season. Several seasons ago Mme. Caroline Testout gave it a very close run for popularity but is at present considerably behind in the race. There are several reasons for this, the principal one being that the public appears to prefer the former rose. Belle Siebrecht has a few adherents and occasionally some grower plants a bed of Papa Gontier or Rainbow but the flowers are rarely seen in the shop windows. Mme. Chatenay has been planted here in several places and with fair success, but the public are not yet well enough acquainted with it to make it very popular.

Of the white kinds Bride has outdistanced everything and was planted very heavily last season. Kaiserin is in great favor with some growers and is a popular variety, but as a winter bloomer it does not rank with Bride and as a consequence it is not as much depended on. Ivory has not given as much satisfaction here as in other parts of the country and will not be generally planted the coming season.

Of the bright red sorts Liberty has at present the lead although some growers seem to prefer the older Meteor—the balance are in the favor of the other, however, and there is nothing at present in the field to take its place.

None of the true hybrids are forced here to any extent. I refer to roses of the Genl. Jacqueminot type. Souv. du Pres. Carnot was planted extensively a few years ago, but at present it is not seen in any quantity.

Cecile Brunner is the only polyantha variety forced at all and it does not seem to be a well paying proposition either.

This is about all the kinds that have been grown here for the past five years and not over six of them together represent at least ninety per cent of the contents of the various rose growing establishments in the vicinity of San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The continued rainy weather enjoyed by this locality for the past week has interfered to a considerable extent with business and everything in the flower line is moving rather slowly. Flowers of all descriptions are in abundance with the possible exception of fancy roses and they are rather a scarce article.

Bulbous stock is a glut at present, although the season for it is rapidly drawing to a close. Violets are to be had in endless quantity at almost any price. Freesias and Roman hyacinths hold their own and valley has dropped to about $2.50 per hundred, with only a very scarce demand.

Wild maidenhair, which is now very plentiful, has taken the place of everything else in that line, smilax being scarce as well as asparagus.

Carnations are in heavy supply and the prices range from $1.50 to $3 per hundred. Considerable native greens are being used in decorative work around town and this, with a very fair supply of funeral orders, represents the bulk of the trade at present.

Various Notes.

Geo. Rosmarin, the well-known Alameda florist, has written an open letter to the Improvement Association of that town, protesting against the purchasing of trees to ornament the streets from Japanese nurserymen.

James Tait, for many years employed as a gardener at the State University greenhouses, died February 17, aged 49 years.

J. T. Murphy, the head gardener at Sutro Heights, with a force of ten men, is rapidly getting the grounds in shape for the spring flower beds. About 50,000 border plants of various kinds will be used this season.

THE OLDEST GARDENER.

The Hon. Frank B. Lown, one of the toastmasters at the Dutchess County banquet, at Poughkeepsie, February 22, paid the following tribute to the oldest gardener of that section, David Gindra, now in his seventy-fourth year and beloved by all who know him:

"We laymen are proud to meet our friends, the gardeners, on this our annual feast night. We have with us many who are successful and prominent in their profession, but we have with us one who is the faithful family servitor which is fast fading out. One who has practiced his gentle art so long that the children who knew and love him are now gray and grizzled men.

"One whose life has been passed in the honored and faithful service of one family, whose deft fingers fashioned the wedding and christening favors for the blushing bride and the blooming matron, and laid the choicest blooms on each inanimate breast that was borne from the home of his employers. He has buried them all and he now stands alone in the lengthening shadows and they lengthen apace.

"Faithful, constant, steadfast, I ask you, all gentlemen to arise and drink the health of the dean of the profession—the trusted servant and the faithful friend—the oldest gardener among us, David Gindra, of Rosenlund."

I would like to congratulate you on the phenomenal results obtained from my advertisement. I have sold several hundred thousand Asparagus plumosus nanus seeds. The REVIEW surely does the work.—F. GILMAN TAYLOR, Glendale, Cal.

WINNIPEG, MAN.—The Rosery, which opened for business December 1, 1905, has now taken over the old established business of H. E. Philpot, lately conducted by Ormiston & Griffith. The stores now occupied by both the Rosery and Ormiston & Griffith will be given up and a commodious new store opened at 325 Portage avenue. The business will continue as The Rosery under the management of Mr. Butchart.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Pres., E. Albertson, Bridgeport, Ind.; Vice-Pres., Orlando Harrison, Berlin, Md.; Sec'y, Geo. O. Seager, Rochester; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester. The 31st annual convention will be held at Dallas, Texas, June, 1906.

THE business of Chas. Fremd, Rye, N. Y., who died a few weeks ago, is being continued by his sons.

E. ALBERTSON, Bridgeport, Ind., president of the American Association of Nurserymen, was a Chicago visitor February 24.

THE increase in landscape work in the middle west has occasioned a brisk demand for men capable of handling the varied problems presented.

MANY nurserymen are pushing Ligustrum Regelianum, or at least working up stock of it, in the belief that it has a bright future as a hedge plant.

HOLLANDERS who are traveling in the west are offering many leading sorts of peonies, including Festiva maxima, at a concession from last year's prices.

THE U. S. Department of Agriculture has issued a circular on the pocket gopher, which occasionally does considerable damage to stock in nursery rows.

NURSERYMEN will be interested in The Natural Replacement of White Pine on Old Fields in New England, a bulletin just issued by the Department of Agriculture.

THE French nurserymen are finding in the United States a steadily increasing outlet for their surpluses, and the Holland growers are paying more and more attention to the American department stores.

THE proceedings of the American Forest Congress at the Washington meeting January 2 to 6, 1905, have just been issued in the form of a volume of 474 pages. The first pages are devoted to an address by President Roosevelt.

It is stated that on two cars of nursery stock shipped since the new Official classification went into effect there was a saving of $70 freight on each car. Of course these were long shipments, but it gives an idea of the value of the concession to the trade.

THE Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn., took charge of the few living branches of the old Franklin elm when it was cut down two years ago and have now turned over to the city for replanting in its parks four vigorous young trees propagated from the original stock.

J. C. ALDEN and F. J. Littleford have formed a partnership and purchased the Austin nursery at Downers Grove, Ill. Mr. Alden has been identified with the nursery business of A. B. Austin for twenty years. Mr. Littleford, whose grandfather established the present business fifty years ago, has been employed at the nursery for a year.

A. W. BROWN, of Watertown, Wis., L. Ada Lyman and G. W. Thompson, of Oconomowoc, Wis., are incorporators of the White Elm Nursery Company, of Watertown, Wis., which has secured a charter with capital stated as $40,000. The company takes over the real estate

ROGERS & MCGILL are now proprietors of the Spaulding Nursery and Orchard Co., Spaulding, Ill.

FREIGHT CLASSIFICATION.

President E. Albertson and W. C. Reed, chairman of the transportation committee of the American Association of Nurserymen, are this week issuing to the trade a circular showing complete tables of the classification of freight in the several classification territories into which the United States is divided by the railroads. Since the last shipping season the transportation committee has secured important changes in classification which will effect large savings in freight for every nurseryman. The schedules of classification are issued that the trade may be fully informed, with the suggestion that shippers call the attention of their local freight agents to the changes and thereby ensure for themselves the full benefits of the work of the committee.

The circular is accompanied by a letter to non-members of the Association, as follows:

Enclosed herewith we are handing you a complete table of freight classifications of nursery stock, etc., now in effect in all of the different general classification districts throughout the United States. It will pay you well to familiarize yourself fully with this, and to fully post your freight agents in regard to same, for unless you do call their attention to it they are very likely to overlook these items in their large or complete tables, and charge you up the rates without noticing the difference.

We call your special attention to the reduction of fifteen per cent from second-class rates on trees in boxes in the Official territory (Illinois and the states east to the Atlantic and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers), and to the changes in the minimum carload weights in Western (northwest from Chicago and west of the Mississippi to the Rocky mountains, except Texas and parts of Oklahoma, etc.) and Southern (south of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi) classifications. Also that in the Western Classification bales now go at actual weight in consignments of 100 pounds, or over, regardless of sizes of individual bales.

By these changes in classification there will be a very large saving in the nurserymen's freight bills, and an expansion of territory that can profitably be covered by them, and a bringing closer together of buyer and seller.

This saving of freight probably amounts to $50,000, or more, per year, as there are a number of firms to each of whom the saving will be from $1,000 to $5,000 per year on box shipments in the Official territory alone, while in the Western a saving of twenty per cent on all small cars, and in the Southern a saving of twenty per cent in minimum weight on all cars—not counting the other changes that have been made.

Now, to those parties who receive this letter and are not members of the American Association of Nurserymen, we wish to say we are sending you this table of classifications that you may have the benefit of same, and to call your attention to the very great and valuable work that is being done by the Association through its committees who give their time to the work without compensation, and often at loss of time from their own business.

This freight table is an evidence of only one line of the work that is being done by the Association, as much time has been devoted to legislative matters, and there is now before the legislative committee a work that will take years to accomplish, and which is of great importance and value to the nursery business. There are also other matters in the hands of other committees.

Thousands of dollars have been spent by the association in the expenses of these committees, etc., but the returns to the trade will be tens of thousands of dollars annually, and of which you will share.

Now, to carry on this work as it should be, will cost thousands of dollars. This year our treasury was exhausted, and a call had to be made for voluntary contributions, to which we are glad to say an exceedingly liberal response was made—realizing the importance of the work the leading members contributed from $5 to $50 each. Our membership is not more than one-fourth what it should be, and the principal source of revenue is the membership fee, which is only $3 per year. Now are you doing your part? Remember, on box shipments alone in the official territory you are saving this $3 on every $20 of freights paid, or $15 on every $100, while in other territories from 4,000 to 10,000 pounds on each car—sufficient to pay your membership for many years, besides the other benefits.

We would like to have all of you attend the meetings of the Association when possible, but even though you may not be able to attend, you should aid in the work by having your names on the membership roll and with your membership fees, and though you may not attend the meetings you will still receive the benefits of this work, and the reports of the association, which will be worth many times the membership fee.

In future bulletins will be issued whenever there is anything special to report, revised freight tables, etc., sent out, but these will be sent to members only, and to secure them you should at once become members.

Then follows an urgent request that the $3 membership fee be forwarded at once to Geo. C. Seager, Rochester, N. Y., and that all gather at the thirty-first annual meeting, at Dallas, Tex., June 13.

The classification circular states that the committees having charge of the Transcontinental (Pacific coast) and Southwestern territories accept the Western classification, so that a 36-foot car now takes a minimum of 16,000 pounds and a 40-foot car a minimum of 20,000 pounds all over the United States.

Attention is called to the fact that to secure the lowest rates values claimed must not exceed 5 cents per pound in Western territory and 3 cents per pound in the Southern territory.

The trade is urged to "favor such legislative supervision of railroads as will eliminate all favors in the way of shippers' passes, rebates, etc. The question of rates is being adjusted with development of business. Fair treatment of the railroads by you will be reciprocated by them."

Copies of the circular with full classification tables will be sent to any applicant by either Mr. Reed, Mr. Albertson, or the REVIEW.

STORING TREE SEEDS.

Numerous packages of forest tree seeds are being received by the Forest Service in Washington, from the several nursery stations throughout the west where seedlings are being grown for planting on forest reserves. These seeds will be used in carrying on extensive storage tests to determine the best methods of preserving seeds of the several species most commonly used. The more important species are western yellow pine, jack pine, Coulter pine, knob-cone pine, red fir, white fir and incense cedar.

The work in Washington is in coöperation with the seed testing laboratory, and the seeds will be stored dry, in cool basements, in cold storage, and in hermetically sealed jars. Corresponding tests will be carried on at the nurseries on the western forest reserves, and the comparative results are expected to show not only which method of storage is best, but in which locality seeds retain their vitality longest. In view of the rapid increase in forest planting operations, particularly in connection with planting on denuded watersheds, this work becomes of high importance.

TAKING into consideration the general information the REVIEW gives and the usual reliability of the advertisements it prints, I consider it would be poor business policy to do without it when it can be had for the small sum of $1 a year.—W. G. NEGLE, Beaumont, Tex.

Some People have taken our advice as published in these columns recently and are buying My Maryland for trial. We reiterate here—if it succeeds with you as it does with us, it will prove the best white carnation you ever grew. Despite the variety's apparent failure in several places, we strongly advise all growers to give it a trial. We have been frank about its faults as developed in other places. We doubt if these will develop in many places.

Jessica we believe, will succeed generally and will prove to be the best red and white variegated ever disseminated. Few varieties show as strong constitution as this one does and it is a wonderful producer. Extra fine stock of both varieties ready now. R. O., $2.50 per doz.; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000. Pot plants, $3.00 per 100 extra.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Last week's business was up to the standard. All kinds of cut flowers were in great demand and good prices were received. Tuesday the local market was cleaned up of all the available stock and many orders had to be turned down. Some excellent tulips are being offered this week, with only a fair demand. Funeral work has used up a great many flowers this week. Last week's business on the whole shows an increase over the previous week.

Various Notes.

Last Friday the entire wholesale business of the Chas. A. Shaeffer Floral Co. passed into the hands of W. A. Bastian, the former manager. Mr. Shaeffer has built up a large business, but came to the conclusion that the two branches of the business could be more successfully conducted under separate managements and decided to dispose of his wholesale business. He will now devote his attention to his retail trade. The new wholesale business will be conducted under the name of the Western Cut Flower Commission Co. KAY-SEE.

CRESTLINE, O.—J. A. Rosengren says the people "love" to see the flowers at the greenhouse, but it is almost impossible to make them understand that flowers will look just as good or better at their homes, hence not much is doing yet.

COLUMBUS, O.—Carnations and roses are in good demand. J. R. Hellenthal is cutting some choice lilacs, lilies of the valley, daffodils, tulips and Dutch hyacinths. Lilies, Ramblers and hydrangeas are as fine a lot as could be found in the state. He will this season build a carnation house 30x140 feet, with all the latest improvements. Most of the material has arrived and he will build as soon as the weather opens up. His Enchantress are a grand sight, one mass of buds and flowers, with good stiff stems. The Queen is his best white; Estelle he likes better than Flamingo; Lawson is the best pink. He will try several hundred of the new ones this season. Five houses are crowded with bedding plants. He is waiting for the weather to warm up to make some hotbeds to get room to shift about 18,000 geraniums. The rose houses are in good shape and he is cutting a good crop of Brides, Maids, Golden Gate, Ivory and La Detroit. C. M. J.

INDIANAPOLIS.

Business has been good all along the line and everyone seems well satisfied with the season so far.

At the February meeting of the State Florists' Association, it was decided to hold a spring show in April and the committee, A. F. J. Baur, H. W. Rieman and Geo. B. Wiegand, have decided on April 9 as the most suitable date. Easter stock will be in great shape by that time and a grand show will undoubtedly be the result. The premium list is in the hands of the printer and will be mailed as soon as it is ready. The new carnations and roses are especially desired at this show. Introducers please take notice.

A. B.

The regular meetings in connection with the association are held on the first Tuesday evening in the month at the State House, Indianapolis, Room 11. The next meeting will be held March 6, 7:30 p. m. E. G. Hill will address the members on his recent trip to Europe. Final arrangements will be made to hold a spring flower show April 9, at which both plants and cut flowers will be exhibited. Printed lists will be sent to the trade later. As the show is in charge of a committee composed of A. F. J. Baur, Henry Rieman and Geo. B. Wiegand, its success is assured.

F. SYDNEY SMITH, Sec'y.

BOWLING GREEN, KY.—Mrs. Hubert Graham, proprietor of the City Greenhouse, has been ill for some time.

CHAMBERSBURG, PA.—Wm. B. Reed's office, packing shed, potting shed, etc., were destroyed by fire recently, entailing a loss of $2,000. The loss on building was covered by insurance. Mr. Reed is safely housed again and will be in fine shape for trade again in a little while. Mr. Reed thinks a fire at a greenhouse at any time is bad enough, but wants to be excused when it comes to a fire on a cold night in winter again, exposing the stock to the elements.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—H. W. Koerner has worked seven years on a strain of gladiolus, hand pollinating selected flowers, until he has obtained stock of remarkable strength. The stock is used for his regular retail trade and won the first premium at the Wisconsin State Fair last year. He fertilized so many flowers last summer that he gathered from four pounds of seeds several hundred thousands. Mr. Koerner is also at work on peonies, dahlias and asters.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Kentucky Society of Florists held its carnation and rose show February 21 and the display brought out quite a large number of people. The show was free to the public.

The Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., showed fine blooms, one vase each of Skyrocket, Daybreak, Lawson, Glendale, Red Lawson, Fiancee, White Lawson, Imperial and No. 49, red.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind., showed Glendale.

Backer & Co., Billerica, Mass., sent seedlings.

A. B. Davis & Son, Purcellville, Va., sent Red Sport.

H. A. Jahn, New Bedford, Mass., sent seedlings.

Sea Cliff Nursery, Sea Cliff, N. Y., showed carnations, Long Island Beauty, and sweet violets, Princess of Wales.

H. Weber & Sons, Oakland, Md., sent Jessica and My Maryland.

John Hartje, Indianapolis, Ind., showed Candace.

H. R. Carlton, Willoughby, O., sent sweet violets, Gov. Herrick.

Jacob Schulz' display consisted of Lawson, Lady Bountiful, Lieut. Peary, Enchantress, Cardinal, Variegated Lawson, fine Bride and Bridesmaid roses, mignonette, forget-me-not, sweet peas, marguerites and a very fine collection of pansies in pots, which was admired by everybody.

C. H. Kunzman made one of the finest displays of carnations ever seen here. His Lawson, Enchantress, Prosperity, Lady Bountiful, Fiancee, No. 38, a fine red, and a vase of seedlings were admired for the size of bloom. He also showed a fine lily of the valley.

Mrs. C. B. Thompson made a fine display of Enchantress, Flamingo, Lawson, Lady Bountiful, lilies of the valley, violets, American Beauties and Mme. Chatenay.

A. R. Baumer's display consisted of Enchantress, E. A. Nelson, Joost, Lady Bountiful, Lawson and Nelson Fisher.

R. Fischer, Great Neck, L. I., N. Y., showed Freesia Purity and Abundance, white.

Minneapolis Floral Co., Minneapolis, Minn., showed the new rose, Miss Kate Moulton, which was the center of attraction. The color of the rose is grand; good stem and foliage. H. L.

PIERCETON, IND.—F. A. Knull has sold his property at Larwill, Ind., and removed to this place. He will remove his greenhouses to the new location and add enough glass to make 4,000 square feet. He looks forward to much improved business here.

DENVER.

State of Trade.

Business has been exceptionally good the past two weeks, with three holidays, Lincoln's birthday, Washington's birthday and St. Valentine's day, the last two being exceptionally good for the florists. Valentine's day was the best in the history of the city, developing almost into a Christmas rush, so great was the call for flowers. No violets could be obtained after 12 o'clock and the same could almost be said of roses and carnations. Beauties, being especially scarce, commanded good prices.

Several decorations for Washington's birthday helped the good work and the end of the week saw the Kirmess given for the D. A. R. by the society people, who gave many dinners before and after each performance. The great number of bouquets presented to the ladies taking part cleaned out the large up-town flower shops each night.

The funeral of the late Gen. Fred Walsen, one of the oldest residents of Colorado, called for quantities of the best flowers and some very elaborate design work.

Stock has shown very little improvement, either in quantity or quality. The general run of carnations is good but not plentiful. Brides and Maids are fair but if one wants select stock some tall hustling has to be done. Other rose stock is scarce. Bulbous stock has sold well and has been more plentiful. Violets are not so abundant, and the demand the past two weeks exceeded the supply.

Various Notes.

E. E. Peterson is in Chicago buying material for two new greenhouses, which he will erect at once.

The Gallup Floral Co. must move from the present location, as the ground has been sold to the gas company. As yet they have not decided on any permanent location.

Geo. Zimmer, for some time past with the Colfax Avenue Floral Co., has severed his connection with that firm and gone to Omaha to go into business with his brother.

One of the best floral decorations of the season was put up by the Daniels & Fishers' Stores Co. on Tuesday for C. A. MacWillcox, who is a member of that firm, on the occasion of his marriage to Miss Roberts. The wedding was one of the society events of the season.

POT RHODODENDRON.

Rhododendron Cunningham's White, a comparatively dwarf, free-flowering variety continues to gain in popularity year by year, it being employed probably to a greater extent than any other variety for flowering in pots, according to a writer in the Gardeners' Magazine. For this purpose its naturally compact habit, and profusion of bloom, stands it in good stead, while it forces readily, and under glass the blossoms are of a purer white than they are in the open ground. I have several times noted it in good condition in Covent Garden market during the present season, and compact, well-flowered plants seemed to meet with a ready sale. Botanically, Rhododendron Cunningham's White is but a form of R. Caucasicum; indeed, it is by some known as R. Caucasicum alba. Apart from its value as a pot plant, it possesses the desirable quality of being outdoors seldom injured by spring frosts, though it is among those that expand their blossoms moderately early in the season.

HARRISBURG, PA.—Chas. Schmidt reports Valentine's day a record breaker. He sold over 15,000 double violets and all the others had equally good business. Gus Hanson has obtained some fat contracts from the highway department and is reported buying an automobile. J. D. Brenneman has finished his new house. It is reported he will gradually drop the retail end of his business and devote all of his attention to the wholesale plant trade.

Greenhouse Heating.

DIFFERENCE IN COST.

What difference in the expense bill for coal would there be between heating one even-span greenhouse forty to fifty feet wide, 150 feet long, with four feet of the side walls glass and three feet double boarded and papered, or two even-span greenhouses each twenty to twenty-five feet wide, connected, no middle walls, each 150 feet long, with three and one-half feet of side walls double and papered? W. E. B.

While the large even-span house will contain a volume of air about twenty-five per cent greater than the two connected houses, yet I doubt if the large house will require much more fuel than the smaller houses. In fact, the same amount of radiation would be supplied in either case. Temperature changes will be less rapid in the large even-span house than in the small houses because of the greater volume of air contained. The cost of constructing the large even-span house will be slightly less than that of the two smaller houses because of the saving of one gutter and posts and the ventilating sash and lifting apparatus for one house. L. C. C.

BETTER RESULTS NEEDED.

We have a horizontal tubular boiler forty-eight inches in diameter, fourteen feet long without dome; forty 3-inch flues, brick set, jointed to a stack fifty-six feet high and thirty-four inches internal diameter by a breeching eight feet long and eighteen inches in diameter. Grates are four feet square. There are two 4-inch openings on top and thence two 4-inch pipes supply the houses, returning to the boiler at the rear end and also to a receiver which is exhausted by a Bundy return trap. The fuel used is Iowa steam nut coal and we consume an enormous quantity with but mediocre results. Our object in writing is to find some method by which we can get good results for less money. The amount of glass surface to heat is 13,240 square feet. Would a reducing valve be any advantage (we have a 4-inch Globe valve on each supply pipe), or would a vacuum system give better results? Is the boiler too small? How many feet of pipe will it carry? Incidentally, is it necessary during the dark days of winter to have heat under the rose benches where solid benches are used, or will sufficient piping along the sides of the benches to keep the houses at the proper temperature be enough? A. L. W.

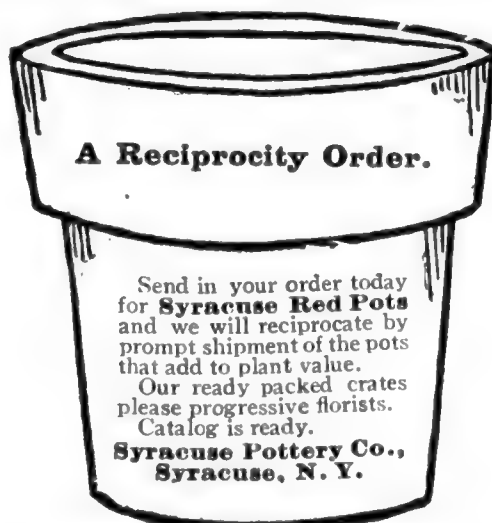

I judge from what you say of the glass area in your plant that the boiler is sufficient. If you had stated the size of the houses and their relation to one another I could have given more accurate suggestions. The boiler in question is about forty-five horse-power and capable of caring for about 4,500 square feet of radiation. I judge that 3,500 square feet should be ample for your plant. The only possible defect I can think of in this plant is that possibly the boiler is working under the disadvantage of too little piping in the houses. Have you sufficient radiation? The boiler is big enough to give good results. The other possible loss is in imperfect firing.

I should not attempt to grow roses on solid beds unless perhaps it were Beauties. Most economical methods of rose growing are those where ample bottom heat is used. The crop is too dependent on the season when grown on solid beds. Solid beds are all right for cool stuff like carnations, violets and lettuce, but not for roses of the class of Bride, Bridesmaid or Gate. The normal house temperature for roses grown on solid beds does not provide the root temperature the plants receive when maintained at the same temperature with the plants on elevated beds. There is no one factor in rose growing of so much importance as proper root temperature and moisture. L. C. C.

TO STOP LEAKY JOINT.

Will some one tell me how to stop a leaky joint in a 4-inch hot-water pipe without shutting down or draining out the water? I have had no trouble with leaky joints before, although the plant has been in use six years. The trouble in this case seems to be expansion and contraction of the line of pipe which prevents the cement from setting. This line of pipe is seventy feet long and consists of 4-inch boiler flues connected with sleeve couplings and cemented the usual way with oakum and Portland cement. This particular joint now seems to take up all the expansion and contraction since it broke loose. C. J. B.

You can remedy the defect in your heating pipe by having a blacksmith make you two clamps, each consisting of two pieces of ¼x1-inch iron, shaped to fit tightly about the boiler tubes. The two U-shaped pieces of each clamp should have a projecting point through which a hole is drilled to admit a bolt which when drawn up will clamp the collars firmly about the tubes. Place a collar about two inches from the end of the sleeve on each of the two tubes, bring the projecting ends of the collar in line and, with a long-threaded bolt passed between them, draw the joint firmly together. If the joint is then well packed it will give no further trouble.

BOILER AND FLUE.

I would like to know how many 3-inch or 3½-inch flues fourteen feet long, low pressure steam, are required to heat four greenhouses, connected, each 22x80 feet, five feet to plate and twelve feet to ridge. There is double glass in the west gable and eighteen inches of glass in the sides; also a house 6x88 feet, twelve feet high at the end of the four houses, six and one-half feet to plate; also a work room above the furnace room, 20x30 feet. We must still have a surplus. Two of the houses are to be kept at 65 degrees, two at 55 degrees and the end house at 45 degrees with the temperature at 30 degrees below zero outside and a strong wind blowing.

Will a furnace room twenty feet wide accommodate another such steamer? Could the furnace room be still narrower and accommodate two such steamers? How long should the furnace room be to be handy in cleaning flues, etc.?

We expect to run the feed pipe on the ground up hill the length of the end house; from this branch into each house and again branch to each of four benches in each house, connecting with 1¼-inch coil under benches and running down hill, one foot drop to eighty feet, to the west end of the houses, joining return pipe back to the boiler.

Do you know of others using this system for steam with success? How large should the feed pipe be at the boiler (without dome), to heat eight houses? How many 1¼-inch pipes are required to heat each house?

F. C. S.

A thirty horse-power boiler will be sufficient to heat the four greenhouses in question. A 20-foot boiler room will accommodate three such boilers, if carefully arranged side by side. A 16-foot room would hold two boilers, provided the retaining wall be made one of the boiler walls.

A 34-foot room is about as short as a 14-foot boiler can well be worked in. There should be four feet at the rear of the boilers and the length of the tubes in front, plus three or four feet for con-flowers, three benches. The other houses are to be all in one; four houses to be fourteen feet wide and the south house seventeen feet wide with south wall five feet high, two feet glass. The north wall is to be six and one-half feet, the same as the gutter supports, with glass gable on one end. The flower house is to be kept at 60 degrees and the others at 50 degrees. The temperature is sometimes as low as 10 degrees below zero outside. We would like to know the amount of piping required when hot-water is used and how the piping should be arranged. Which is preferable: all 4-inch pipe, or smaller pipe? There will be no benches except in the north house. Would it be best to use small pipe for returns in this house? If 4-inch pipe is used would it be best to place all above or below the benches in the north house?

S. B.

The house twenty feet wide to be run at 60 degrees should be provided with a 3-inch riser under the ridge and eleven 2-inch returns arranged under the benches. Each of the 14-foot houses can be piped with a 2-inch flow under the ridge and five 2-inch returns, or a 2½-inch flow under the second and fourth valley gutters, supplying five 2-inch returns in each 14-foot room. The 17-foot house should have a 2½-inch flow and eight 2-inch returns. I suggest this arrangement because the cost of material is somewhat less than for 4-inch cast-iron pipe and the work of installation can be much more quickly and cheaply done.

The Market.

We are having weather much more appropriate to April than to this month. The temperature rises to about 60 degrees every day. The frost is all out of the ground. In several localities I have noticed lilacs with the buds starting, some even showing color. A few more days of this kind of weather and a heavy freeze will do a great deal of damage.

Business has been all that could be desired. The supply has been about equal to the demand and prices well sustained. Bride roses have perhaps been the scarcest article on the market, as there are not enough of them to fill all orders. American Beauties have not been coming so very strong and more could be used at times. Bulbous stock has been having its innings and has been selling in first-class shape. Tulips have been in especially good demand. Violets are not quite in such heavy supply and are selling fairly well. Lilies of all kinds have been good property.

Cold storage ferns are beginning to be scarce, especially good ones. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri are scarce. Smilax is none too plentiful. There is plenty of good adiantum but it sells well.

The retail florists are filling their windows with plants, ready for the spring trade. Some fine azaleas and primulas are shown.

Carnation Show.

The committee in charge of our carnation show and the banquet to be given to visitors March 10 reports everything almost in readiness. It is expected the invitation extended to all florists to be present at our carnation show will bring a large number of visitors. From present indications the show will be a great one and well worth any grower's time. Several of the largest seedling producers in the country have promised to have their latest varieties on exhibition. Any one wishing to receive a schedule of premiums can obtain same by addressing the undersigned.

PITTSBURG.The Market.

Business among the cut flower people is still holding up to the supply and prices have continued good. Stock has cleaned up nicely along most lines, especially roses and carnations. Washington's birthday did not have any special effect, being just a good average day. Among the market people the fact that prices are still holding up hurts some. Their trade is much better when they can get good stock cheap.

Lilac seems to be overdone this season. While yellow narcissi do not seem to be as plentiful as some other seasons, the demand is not nearly so great. Sprenger is cut young and with most of it the points are gone, which detracts from its value; this, however, is on account of the scarcity of green stuff.

Various Notes.

Mrs. E. A. Williams used a number of handsome large silk flags in decorating her window for Washington's birthday and the effect was excellent.

Chas. Peterson, of East Liverpool, O., was in the city last Tuesday. He expects to get into his new store very shortly. He, like many other business men in his town, has been compelled to share with someone else since the big fire which destroyed a large portion of the business part of their town.

The Pittsburgh Rose & Carnation Co., which has been cutting some very fine roses, has decided to build several more of the large rose houses, 50x450 feet, this spring.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is handling some very fine white snapdragon.

W. A. Herbert, of Wellsville, O., was a visitor last week.

M. C. Dunlevy & Sons, of Carnegie, Pa., are adding a stock of palms and other decorative plants to their establishment to take care of that part of the business in and about Carnegie.

The verdict given Charles Hoffman against the coal company some time ago does not seem to be satisfactory to either party and the coal company talks of carrying it to the higher court.

J. B. Murdock & Co. report business good right along.

David Geddis, who started about the first of December, in Homestead, Pa., is more than pleased with his success. He has had a great many small decorations for luncheons, teas and other social affairs since the first of the year, besides the Business Men's annual banquet.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Pierson U-Bar Company has been organized to place vigorously before the public the U-bar type of greenhouse construction, knowing it to be far in advance of any other construction used for greenhouse purposes.

The originators of the U-bar construction, Lincoln Pierson and Paul M. Pierson, are president and secretary-treasurer, Henry S. deForest, sales manager. The identification of these men with this company assures the public that the great reputation of the U-bar construction will be fully maintained. The patent rights are owned and solely controlled by this company.

With those anticipating the erection of a greenhouse, we will be pleased to correspond or confer in person.

Best Greenhouse Material

The best is the cheapest in the end. "Cheap" greenhouse material is expensive.

It costs just as much to erect houses with poor material as it does with the best—usually more.

The houses must be often repaired and the work and cost of erecting soon repeated.

The progressive florist uses the best as he knows it pays to pay for quality.

PEOPLE who know a good thing when they see it, and will take advantage of the same, must be possessed with good judgment and are generally successful. One of our successful growers has this year taken out 6000 feet of the GARLAND IRON GUTTER, this being his fifth annual order.

last week just after warming up thoroughly on the cypress question; you seemed only half convinced, so the only thing to do is to turn the other barrel on you.

Now isn't it after all a pure matter of confidence in a firm? Suppose you buy your material, it comes to you painted; how can you tell what grade that cypress is, if nine-tenths of the men don't know it when not painted? Here is the way we do it: Some parts of a piece may be sap free, these parts we saw out, discard the rest. An average of 20 per cent is thrown out. That's just the reason our materials cost a bit more than the other fellows, for the same reason, it's the reason why they last longer.

Don't make the mistake of putting off ordering; we can't promise against delays if you do.

MISCELLANEOUS SEASONABLE HINTS.

Seed Sowing.

This will be the month of seed sowing in the greenhouses. Annuals, such as zinnia, ten-weeks' stocks and Phlox Drummondii, will be soon enough if sown about the middle of the month, because you cannot give them bench room till the relief of Easter has come. When occupying flats, after transplanting from the seed flats, a cold frame is the best place you can afford for them. Asters for earliest crop should be sown at once. Sow thinly, for if the seed is fresh it will surely come up thicker than you intended and before you can get at the transplanting they have long and spindling stems, a bad foundation for their future health and strength.

Shade and a temperature of 50 degrees will do very well till the seedlings are through the soil. From then on they must have the fullest light and can do with a few degrees less heat. The principal object is to prevent them from drawing up, with a thin, weak stem.

Transplanting Seedlings.

It may be well to mention here my version of transplanting these little seedlings. The flat should be three inches deep, the soil made moderately firm, with smooth, even surface. With a blunt dibble, half an inch or more in width, make a deep hole. Then let the seedling down, with its roots hanging straight, not bent upwards. Always insert the plant deep enough to let its seed leaves rest on the surface of the soil. The next most important thing to observe is to insert the dibble into the soil by the side of the plant so that the soil is pressed firmly around the roots. Some men who call themselves gardeners will do all the squeezing around the neck of the tender stem at the surface and leave the roots dangling in space. Many may say that water will settle the soil around the roots. Partially, it will, but not sufficiently. We have passed through this experience years ago, and trusted to workmen who ought to have known better, with the loss of thousands of asters.

Firming the Soil.

Years ago Peter Henderson, in his little book, Gardening for Profit, laid particular stress on this operation in connection with planting out cabbage, cauliflower and celery. He calls it firming the soil and nothing in all his practical writing is truer. It is equally true of the infantile succulent asters, a cabbage or a Norway spruce or American elm. You must have the soil in close contact with the roots and fibers or they will not take hold and support themselves. All these simple things a florist and gardener should know, but, alas, they don't or, in correct English, "don't you know" they do not!

Care for the Asters.

It will be noticed in the fall that asters are not injured by one or two degrees of frost, yet when quite succulent two degrees will kill them. Last year, being crowded, we moved out from a greenhouse twenty or thirty flats, about 2,000 strong, young plants, beneath the shade of the old apple tree. Two degrees of frost descended on this particular part of the northern hemisphere and they were as dead as the Philippine tariff bill (shame on the senate).

Starting Dahlias.

Dahlias have been much in fashion for several years and the quantity grown in several establishments is prodigious. Young plants propagated this spring are quite as satisfactory for growing an abundance of flowers as the old roots and I think for producing prize flowers the spring-struck plants are to be preferred. Old roots that you have wintered can be placed on a bench where there is some bottom heat and sufficient soil or decayed manure scattered on the roots, but only enough to just hide the tubers. At the apex of the tubers, or where they adhere to the old stems, are buds which will soon start and grow. These cut off three or four joints long and inserted in the propagating bed will soon root and should be potted and grown on. After once established in the small pots they should have the fullest light and plenty of syringing to keep down spider and thrips. You cannot overdo dahlias in the matter of deep, rich soil and abundance of water in a dry time. While the type of dahlias known as "show," with their perfect form and magnificent colors, are the queens of these old favorites, the single, cactus and pom-pom types are best suited for the florist.

Geraniums for Memorial Day.

You might select just now a few hundred of your best 3-inch zonal geraniums and shift them firmly into 5-inch pots, using a rather stiff loam with a 4-inch pot of bone flour to a bushel of soil. These of course are not for bedding plants, but fill a demand on Memorial day. A 4-inch pot plant with one truss of flower scarcely fills the bill and you can easily get double the price for the 5-inch plant with three or four flowers and they will have taken up little more space on the bench. Nothing but the lightest bench will grow a double geranium as it should be grown.

Of course plants that you select for this purpose should have been stopped some weeks ago and have three or four breaks or lateral growths. Varieties that are the best for summer bedding may not always be the most suitable for this purpose. S. A. Nutt is good for any purpose, and so is Beauty Poitevine. Marquis de Castellane is a fine red, Gloire de France a good bright salmon and our flesh pink is Miss Frances Perkins. More good varieties could be mentioned, but as in many other florists' flowers, a great variety is not needed. A good supply of the favorites is what you want. I should add to the above a few John Doyle, a compact, robust-growing variety of the richest scarlet and just the sort for the purpose.

Buy Easter Stock Now.

I can only conclude by giving you advice on preparing for Easter. If you are short of rubbers, pandanus, kentias and, above all, plants that will with proper care flower at the right time, buy them now and don't wait till the stock is culled and sold out. There are few plants at the present day that have had the popularity of the nephrolepis and of all its varieties and forms none is so popular as Scotti. From experience in our own business we have lately found that the many forms of this nephrolepis, Scottii is the most fascinating.

WILLIAM SCOTT.

LIQUID FOOD.

During the remainder of the season where the plants are healthy and vigorous and the benches full of roots, stimulants in a liquid form can be used with great benefit. For this purpose there is nothing better or safer than the liquid from fresh cow manure, which contains nearly all the elements necessary to plant life and in their proper proportions.

To derive full benefit from this, the manure should be placed in a tank and allowed to ferment. To create speedy fermentation the water should be at a temperature of not less than 70 degrees, after which it should be drained off into another tank and diluted to safe proportions.

For a first application the liquid should be rather weak until the plants become accustomed to this class of food, when the preparation can be made stronger without incurring any danger.

The proper time to apply this food is when the young shoots have attained a length of over four inches and should be continued at least once every alternate week till the buds are well developed and should be discontinued when the buds have so far matured as to show good color.

The use of ammonia and nitrates at certain stages of growth are also very beneficial, but greater caution must be used when applying them, as they are very powerful and immediate in their action. First applications should be made very weak, increasing the strength as observation of the effect would warrant. For a first application one pound of either is sufficient for 100 gallons of water.

During dark and cloudy weather it is safer to use any of the preparations in a weak form and frequently, rather than run any risk by using them too strong. As the days get longer the preparations can be strengthened. Weak or unhealthy stock is unable to use this kind of food and any troubles they may be suffering from will only be aggravated.

RIBES.

OLD OR YOUNG STOCK.

I wish to plant a bed of roses outside for summer blooming and have Ivory, Golden Gate, Bride, Bridesmaid, old stock, two years on bench and still in splendid condition, and also young stock. Which would give best results outside, to lift the old or plant with young?

H. H. K.

If lifted carefully after danger from frost is over, planted in good friable soil and shaded for a few days, if the weather is bright, the two years' stock will give more immediate effect. One year old stock, however, is preferable. Young stock, carefully tended and properly handled, makes a very fine, permanent bed after they are fairly established.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Exhibitors intending to make entries for the annual exhibition of the American Rose Society, to be held jointly with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at Boston, March 23, 24 and 25, are asked to communicate with the secretary, who will forward schedule for the exhibition and entry cards.

The annual business meeting of the Rose Society will open at 7:30 p. m., Friday, March 23, and will be concluded

Saturday, the exhibition continuing until Sunday night.

Addresses to be made are:

"Recent Advances in the Practice of Rose Growing for Cut Flowers," by J. J. Curran, Elmira, N. Y.

"The Retailer's Part in the Introduction of New Roses," by George Asmus, Chicago, Ill.

"The Mail Order Trade," by P. J. Lynch, West Chester, Pa.

"The Deterioration of Forcing Roses; Its Causes and Effect," a discussion; to be opened by A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.

Question—Should the Rose Society issue Certificates to New American Roses?

Saturday evening, March 24, a banquet will be tendered to the American Rose Society visitors by the allied horticultural interests of Boston, under the auspices of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, at the well known Hotel Brunswick.

Judges for the exhibition are: J. F. Huss, Hartford, Conn.; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. J. Curran, Elmira, N. Y.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Too add variety to funeral sprays try the combination of violets and freesias. Cut the tight bunches of violets and re-bunch into little knots of ten or a dozen, with foliage, and arrange with fine ferns like Pteris serrulata in a long slender spray. Work in the violets sparingly at the tip, then more freely towards the base. Throw a bunch of freesia across the stems and tie with violet cord in a generous cluster.

Tulips and Easter lilies make a pleasing combination, either for sprays or decorative pieces; also Paper White narcissi with Easter lilies. The Paper Whites make a fine material for sprays. These should form a long, slender cluster, tied with green or white ribbon, about No. 3, in many long bows. Keep the natural foliage for background with a few ferns added. To avoid a too bulky stem to the spray, tie the ribbon above the base of the stems inside the foliage and allow the leaves to fall to one side or the other, or backwards from the flower stalks.

For a change in trimming the base of a large standing piece, bed in two or three Boston ferns so as to cover the sphagnum. Use no flowers whatever in the base. You will like the effect.

The popularity of boxwood wreaths continues unabated. It appeals alike to extensive flower buyers and occasional customers of moderate means. Red and white flowers in a simple spray over one side of the wreath are the favorite colors for trimming, violets being close seconds. Its durability, size and beauty are strong points in its favor. The simplicity appeals to one after an overabundance of the everlasting mixtures seen at every funeral.

Try a generous spray of Richmond roses with a knot of changeable red and green taffeta ribbon for an elderly person's funeral, or Bride roses tied with embroidered chiffon for a child's funeral.

Clusters may be made long and tapering with only the natural foliage and set on the boxwood wreath, or stemmed six to eight inches long, three or four to half a match-stick and inserted among the boxwood foliage, at pleasure. Long clusters, heavy at the top of the wreath and tipped by buds, extending half way around the wreath, seem to be the best takers. The richer flowers, either in quality or color, are best fitted for this style of design.

Leave the valley, Romans, etc., in possession of their own field in delicate sprays and designs.

GERTRUDE BLAIR.

TRANSFER ORDERS.

Any retailer should easily be able to get orders for delivery through other retailers if he has a neat sign in his window, or about his store, stating that cut flowers or funeral designs can be delivered in any city at brief notice. Several Chicago retailers have quite elaborate signs in their windows to get this transfer business. One man has a ground glass, which looks like a tambourine, with a sign painted on it, and back of it an electric light which goes out for five seconds every half minute. Another has a large wheel representing a ship's steering apparatus supported by crossed oars. In the center is a blackboard. In the summer he posts steamer sailings on the blackboard; in the winter a bid for orders for funeral or gift flowers to deliver in other cities. Those who are sending out orders to florists in other cities are naturally the ones who are favored in the matter of orders for delivery in their town.

ENGLISH FLORAL FASHIONS.

Where floral decorations have to be done continuously through the season, the practice of making some different and distinct feature each time is much more interesting and also more effective than using mixed material every time. At the Savoy hotel, London, where the floral decorations have long been a great feature each Sunday, they still carry out the work well and make a distinct change each week. The Horticultural Trade Journal says that one Sunday it was pink and white carnations; the previous week it was pink and white tulips. It would seem that pink is to be as popular as ever in London this season.

Robt. Green, Ltd., a leading London retailer, has a number of various designs made up in artificial flowers. These are not intended for sale, but to give customers an idea of the various styles. The shower bouquet, which was a creation of Mrs. Robert Green when she was in this business, has undergone some changes. One design was made of lilac, all the clusters of flowers being arranged lightly in a drooping position. Instead of small flowers being wired onto smilax or asparagus, most of the designs had flowers hanging down naturally on their own stems. The erect bouquets are by no means extinct. Roses arranged loosely on their own stems with good foliage made up in a conical or pyramidal shape are popular. The wands, or walking sticks trimmed with flowers and ribbons, was a novelty noted. These are very convenient and pretty for bridesmaids. The lightly arranged baskets are also in use and preferred by many to the ordinary bouquets. For many years past the firm of Robert Green has sustained a high reputation for creating new and artistic designs in floral work. Broad ribbons are still much used for finishing off bouquets and other floral arrangements, but the cup-shaped paper and lace arrangements are quite out of date.

THE "ARMFUL" BOUQUET

For debutante or wedding bunches, the "armful" bouquet is quite popular. Select long-stemmed specimen flowers without much extra foliage or any tie. Build the bunch over the left arm, letting the very longest rest on the arm and fall over the elbow. Spread upwards, fan-shaped, till a few strong stems stand upright against the person well up to the shoulder. Fill up along the lower arm and over the hand with shorter and weaker stemmed till the bunch is full enough for the lower half to cover the hand and hang downwards. One or two twine wrappings will hold all in place. Before beginning to put the armful together remove all thorns and about half the rose foliage. Carry lightly over the left arm. The bunch illustrated is of fifty full bloom Chatenay roses.

The second bunch or armful shown is of Timothy Eaton chrysanthemums and, while it could not be reproduced at present as represented, it can be used as a smaller armful than the first in American Beauties or other very large, long-stemmed roses or lilies. They are simply loosely laid over the arm of a clerk and tied in the position which they of themselves assume. A smilax tie is used here. It may be omitted or used, according to fancy. If used, the strings should be separated and used a little in the shower effect without ribbon.

VALLEY FOR STORAGE.

The following letter is from George Hanson, valley grower at the Dale Estate, Brampton, Ont.:

In the REVIEW of February 22 I find E. Neubert's statement as to lily of the valley pips. I find his notes rather misleading. I suppose he is not taking into consideration that in this country we have to place our valley in cold storage on arrival in December. From that time on most people call it cold storage valley. We commence to use this cold storage valley at the beginning of January, and treat it as such up to the end of March or beginning of April. From that time we commence to treat it as retarded cold storage valley.

It must be understood the process of retarding commences at the time when the valley in its natural course would commence to grow.

My experience with valley pips with an abundance of fibrous, bunchy roots is quite the reverse of Mr. Neubert's. I have forced all kinds of valley pips, such as were grown in heavy clay, in heavy loam, in light sandy loam, in black peaty soil and in black sandy soil, with short stubby roots, short bunchy roots, long trailing roots and with abundance of fibrous bunchy roots, and have found those last named give far the best results as an early, mid-season and autumn forcing variety, in the hands of a man who understands their treatment.

During the summer and autumn of last year our valley was admired by all visitors, among whom were leading florists from the United States, who exclaimed, "Simply perfection; the best valley ever seen." We cannot say the same as Mr. Neubert, "20,000 to 30,000 a day," but we do average about 5,000 a day the year round.

Mr. Neubert says that "valley pips with abundant fibrous and bunchy roots are most adapted and appreciated for Christmas and early forcing," but says "they should not be used for cold storage, for reasons which only the producer of the crowns is able to explain." It would be interesting if Mr. Neubert would explain, for the benefit of the growers on this side of the Atlantic why such stock is not fit for cold storage purposes.

nate week till the buds are well developed and should be discontinued when the buds have so far matured as to show good color.

The use of ammonia and nitrates at certain stages of growth are also very beneficial, but greater caution must be used when applying them, as they are very powerful and immediate in their action. First applications should be made very weak, increasing the strength as observation of the effect would warrant. For a first application one pound of either is sufficient for 100 gallons of water.

During dark and cloudy weather it is safer to use any of the preparations in a weak form and frequently, rather than run any risk by using them too strong. As the days get longer the preparations can be strengthened. Weak or unhealthy stock is unable to use this kind of food and any troubles they may be suffering from will only be aggravated. RIBES.

OLD OR YOUNG STOCK.

I wish to plant a bed of roses outside for summer blooming and have Ivory, Golden Gate, Bride, Bridesmaid, old stock, two years on bench and still in splendid condition, and also young stock. Which would give best results outside, to lift the old or plant with young?

H. H. K.

If lifted carefully after danger from frost is over, planted in good friable soil and shaded for a few days, if the weather is bright, the two years' stock will give more immediate effect. One year old stock, however, is preferable. Young stock, carefully tended and properly handled, makes a very fine, permanent bed after they are fairly established. RIBES.

FIFTY BEST ROSES.

Fifty Best Roses for Amateur Growers is the title of a pamphlet by John Fraser, F. R. H. S., editor of the Gardening World, London. Full cultural directions are given. It may be of interest to American growers to compare the list with their own sorts. Here it is:

A. K. Williams	Laurette Messimy
Ame. Vibert	Liberty
Austrian Copper	Longworth Rambler
Austrian Yellow	Mme. Lambert
Capt. Hayward	Mme. Pernet Ducher
Caroline Testout	Manon Cochet
Catherine Mermel	Margaret Dickson
Celestial	Marie Baumann
Chas. Lefebvre	Marquise Litta
Common Cabbage	Mildred Grant
Common Moss	Mrs. E. Mawley
Common Rambler	Mrs. John Long
Dorothy Perkins	Mrs. R. G. S. Crawford
Dupuy-Jamain	Mrs. J. W. Grant
Eclair Perpetue	Reine d'Or de Wurtemberg
Francisco Kruger	Reve d'Or
Jean K. Duschke	Rosa Mundi
Gloire de Dijon	Soy d'Elise Vardon
G. Schumann	S. M. Rodemann
Gross de Tephitz	The Bride
Hol. Majesty	Ulrich Brunner
K. A. Victorin	Viscountess Folkestone

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Exhibitors intending to make entries for the annual exhibition of the American Rose Society, to be held jointly with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at Boston, March 23, 24 and 25, are asked to communicate with the secretary, who will forward schedule for the exhibition and entry cards.

The annual business meeting of the Rose Society will open at 7:30 p. m., Friday, March 23, and will be concluded

Saturday, the exhibition continuing until Sunday night.

Addresses to be made are:

"Recent Advances in the Practice of Rose Growing for Cut Flowers," by J. J. Curran, Elmira, N. Y.

"The Retailer's Part in the Introduction of New Roses," by George Asmus, Chicago, Ill.

"The Mail Order Trade," by P. J. Lynch, West Chester, Pa.

"The Deterioration of Forcing Roses; Its Causes and Effect," a discussion; to be opened by A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.

Question: Should the Rose Society issue Certificates to New American Roses?

Saturday evening, March 24, a banquet will be tendered to the American Rose Society visitors by the allied horticultural interests of Boston, under the auspices of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, at the well known Hotel Brunswick.

Judges for the exhibition are: J. F. Huss, Hartford, Conn.; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. J. Curran, Elmira, N. Y.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Too add variety to funeral sprays try the combination of violets and freesias. Cut the tight bunches of violets and re-bunch into little knots of ten or a dozen, with foliage, and arrange with fine ferns like Pteris serrulata in a long slender spray. Work in the violets sparingly at the tip, then more freely towards the base. Throw a bunch of freesia across the stems and tie with violet cord in a generous cluster.

Tulips and Easter lilies make a pleasing combination, either for sprays or decorative pieces; also Paper White narcissi with Easter lilies. The Paper Whites make a fine material for sprays. These should form a long, slender cluster, tied with green or white ribbon, about No. 3, in many long bows. Keep the natural foliage for background with a few ferns added. To avoid a too bulky stem to the spray, tie the ribbon above the base of the stems inside the foliage and allow the leaves to fall to one side or the other, or backwards from the flower stalks.

For a change in trimming the base of a large standing piece, bed in two or three Boston ferns so as to cover the sphagnum. Use no flowers whatever in the base. You will like the effect.

The popularity of boxwood wreaths continues unabated. It appeals alike to extensive flower buyers and occasional customers of moderate means. Red and white flowers in a simple spray over one side of the wreath are the favorite colors for trimming, violets being close seconds. Its durability, size and beauty are strong points in its favor. The simplicity appeals to one after an overabundance of the everlasting mixtures seen at every funeral.

Try a generous spray of Richmond roses with a knot of changeable red and green taffeta ribbon for an elderly person's funeral, or Bride roses tied with embroidered chiffon for a child's funeral.

Clusters may be made long and tapering with only the natural foliage and set on the boxwood wreath, or stemmed six to eight inches long, three or four to half a match stick and inserted among the boxwood foliage, at pleasure. Long clusters, heavy at the top of the wreath and tipped by buds, extending half way around the wreath, seem to be the best takers. The richer flowers, either in quality or color, are best fitted for this style of design.

Leave the valley, Romans, etc., in possession of their own field in delicate sprays and designs.

TRANSFER ORDERS.

Any retailer should easily be able to get orders for delivery through other retailers if he has a neat sign in his window, or about his store, stating that cut flowers or funeral designs can be delivered in any city at brief notice. Several Chicago retailers have quite elaborate signs in their windows to get this transfer business. One man has a ground glass, which looks like a tamboourine, with a sign painted on it, and back of it an electric light which goes out for five seconds every half minute. Another has a large wheel representing a ship's steering apparatus supported by crossed oars. In the center is a blackboard. In the summer he posts steamer sailings on the blackboard; in the winter a bid for orders for funeral or gift flowers to deliver in other cities. Those who are sending out orders to florists in other cities are naturally the ones who are favored in the matter of orders for delivery in their town.

ENGLISH FLORAL FASHIONS.

Where floral decorations have to be done continuously through the season, the practice of making some different and distinct feature each time is much more interesting and also more effective than using mixed material every time. At the Savoy hotel, London, where the floral decorations have long been a great feature each Sunday, they still carry out the work well and make a distinct change each week. The Horticultural Trade Journal says that one Sunday it was pink and white carnations; the previous week it was pink and white tulips. It would seem that pink is to be as popular as ever in London this season.

Robt. Green, Ltd., a leading London retailer, has a number of various designs made up in artificial flowers. These are not intended for sale, but to give customers an idea of the various styles. The shower bouquet, which was a creation of Mrs. Robert Green when she was in this business, has undergone some changes. One design was made of lilac, all the clusters of flowers being arranged lightly in a drooping position. Instead of small flowers being wired onto smilax or asparagus, most of the designs had flowers hanging down naturally on their own stems. The erect bouquets are by no means extinct. Roses arranged loosely on their own stems with good foliage made up in a conical or pyramidal shape are popular. The wands, or walking sticks trimmed with flowers and ribbons, was a novelty noted. These are very convenient and pretty for bridesmaids. The lightly arranged baskets are also in use and preferred by many to the ordinary bouquets. SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Executive Committee Meeting.

The executive committee of the Society of American Florists was in session at the Hotel Beckel, Dayton, O., on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Those present were President Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo; Vice-president H. M. Altick, Dayton; Secretary W. J. Stewart, Boston; directors, E. V. Halllock, Queens, N. Y.; W. H. Elliott, Brighton, Mass.; F. H. Traendly, New York; P. J. Hauswirth, Chicago; H. H. Ritter, Dayton. Also E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; J. C. Vaughan and George Asmus, Chicago; E. G. Gillett, Cincinnati; John Evans, Richmond, Ind., and from time to time a number of the Dayton people.

Upon assembling the visitors were entertained at a dinner tendered them by the local contingent, the banquet room in the Beckel hotel being lavishly decorated. Discussion was had upon a number of subjects which the Washington convention referred to the committee. Among these was the matter of a national flower, a subject upon which no agreement could be reached. At the Tuesday evening session the committee took a stand against the free distribution of seeds by the government and expressed its sentiments in the following telegram to Wm. W. Cocks, the member of congress from New York who introduced in the committee on agriculture a resolution looking to the ending of this practice:

The directors of the Society of American Florists in executive session at the Beckel hotel, Dayton, O., note your motion in the house committee on agriculture and congratulate you on the successful stand you have made against the free distribution of seed. Can any of us help you by coming to Washington?

Plans were discussed for the August convention at Dayton. A program was outlined.

Department of Plant Registration.

Wm. Schray & Sons, St. Louis, Mo., submit for registration Canna Superior; height, three to four feet; foliage, green; flowers, cherry red with light gold band. Also Alternanthera aurea robusta, a sport from aurea nana; much stronger grower than the type, the leaves being one-half inch wider, more highly colored and retaining color better than the type.

A. C. Zvolanek, Bound Brook, N. J., submits for registration winter-flowering sweet peas, Secretary William J. Stewart (Christmas Captain x Countess Spencer); color, blue; Mrs. W. W. Smalley (Enchantress x Mrs. E. Wild), color, satin pink. W. J. STEWART, Sec'y.

GREEN CARNATIONS.

Next week Saturday will be Ireland's day, sometimes known as St. Patrick's, and the occasion for the maltreatment of a large number of white carnations. Since the dyes have been freely offered for coloring carnations green there has been a very large business done in them at each recurring St. Patrick's day. This year not only will the retailers dye carnations in large numbers, but green carnations will be an item of stock in a great many wholesale houses for shipment a day or two prior to March 17. Last year there was an excellent sale for them and good money made, regardless of what one may think of the practice of coloring the divine flower.

A NEW BEDFORD SEEDLING.

H. A. Jahn, who is well known as a raiser of seedling carnations, has a very interesting assortment at his establishment at Clark's Point, New Bedford, Mass. The writer was especially pleased to see his new white variety, No. 49, which scored ninety points at the recent carnation convention in Boston and which has attracted widespread attention. This variety I believe has no equal in its color in America today. It has form, purity of color, fragrance, a strong calyx and wonderful stem, the latter stronger than any other carnation I have ever seen.

It is withal a great bloomer. I counted plants from which twelve flowers had been picked and as many more were in sight. It breaks freely and is easily rooted. Stems are now two and a half to three feet long and blooms average three and a half inches across and will reach four inches on later flowers. We failed to find a burst calyx and consider this seedling a winner in every way. Mr. Jahn has had some tempting offers for his stock, but has not parted with it yet.

Quite a number of other good seedlings were noted and quantities of the new season's crop of seedlings were germinating and in some cases were pricked off. A general assortment of other flowers and plants for furnishing are grown.

Mr. Jahn has a store on Purchase street. Four other stores are located near-by, those of Messrs. Haskell, Pierce, E. H. Chamberlain and S. S. Peckham. The only other store in town is that of R. H. Woodhouse, which is quite an up-to-date one and is attached to his fine greenhouse plant. W. N. C.

A PECULIAR SEASON.

Recent months have shown many peculiarities which have occasioned discussion among the cut flower growers and dealers. It has been a period of comparative scarcity and high prices. Not in years have prices held so uniformly high at the season as during the past January and February. This has applied not only to roses and carnations, but to other items of stock, although generally the increased values of miscellaneous items has been attributed to the scarcity and high prices of roses and carnations.

There has not been a great increase in the demand; business has shown no great advance and the cause of the unusual conditions has generally been laid to low production. Here and there a grower has had much better than the usual results this season, but on the average the cuts of both roses and carnations have been below the normal. In spite of material increases in glass area last year, the majority of growers have cut less stock through January and February than they did a year ago. Usually there has been a glut at some time during these two months. It has not developed this year.

The reports of decreased production apply to practically all varieties. Beauty has been scarce and made record prices. In New York and Philadelphia the best Beauties wholesaled at Christmas prices in the latter half of February. In western markets the advance was not quite so great, but it was nevertheless pronounced. Tea roses have averaged better in nearly the same proportion and carnation growers report average returns for their flowers ahead of any recent years. Money returns per square foot of glass probably do not exceed normal because of smaller cuts.

Why should production have been curtailed? The records of the weather bureau show that generally in January and February the proportion of sun was much greater than normal, and this condition has held good ever since the beginning of November. At Chicago in February there were seven perfectly clear days. There were twelve days in which the sun was clouded for a part of the day and only nine days in which the sun did not shine. During the entire month there was no time when snow obscured the greenhouse glass. At no time this year has there been over three inches of snow on the ground in the great cut flower producing district north of Chicago. During the month of February the mean temperature was 28 degrees, as against 17 degrees in 1904 and 17 degrees in 1905. The coldest day was February 2, 6 degrees above zero. January 1 to March 1 the excess in temperature compared to normal was 322 degrees. These weather conditions have prevailed to a greater or less extent throughout the United States and it might well be supposed that the season was unusually favorable for cut flower production, although the results have not materialized.

THE READERS' CORNER.

More About a Roll of Carpet.

In answering your correspondent, W. D., in reference to how to go about planting a bed to represent a roll of carpet, I think I may have overdone the length of the bed. I said twenty-five to thirty feet. I have since thought that perhaps fifteen to twenty feet would be nearer the length of the bed I had reference to. It is about ten years, now, since I was in the place referred to. However, the length, or width, is only a secondary consideration, as any one planting such a bed can plant whatever size of a bed suits the place best where it is to be.

I read the answer sent by C. H. G. to the same question and it brought back to my mind a thing we did in planting our roll, too; that was, inserting some short pieces of pipe in the top of the roll to pour water in. This is to keep the roll moist, as the water, leaving the pipes, saturates the roll good and prevents it from drying out. The putting of pieces of wire of the same size on each end of the roll to prevent the soil from falling out was another thing I noticed C. H. G. spoke of. This we did, also. If I had a bed of the same sort to plant, I could do it and then would probably not forget anything, but writing a few lines in a hurry one does not really think until after how prone we are to forget.

HAMILTON SCOTT.

Price Cutting.

I was much pleased with the article and comments about price cutting in last week's REVIEW. I have a case of the kind. Three or four years ago, when I got competition, everything was cut to pieces and, of course, it hurt the first year very much.

In a small place of 1,500 inhabitants everyone knows everybody else's business and with few exceptions the price counts more than anything else. In a large city quality will always find its purchaser, but not so in a small place. Naturally I had to drop some in price and it is very hard to raise again. I have always contended for a good price for a good article; every man is worthy of his hire, and rather than give stock away to those that can afford to buy it, I prefer to put it in the boiler or rubbish heap.

There is surely no sense in this price cutting, because trade will find its level, and after one has been in business for a number of years he will hold his share of that trade in spite of most everything. Of course, the fellow that cuts on a certain article may draw a little for a day or two until his competitor finds out what he is doing, when he will naturally drop, also, and there you have it; in the end no trade gained, but prices are lost and hard to regain again. I wish every "cutter" could read those articles and profit by them.

An Iowan's Method.

I have a small house, a 6-foot bench in the center for carnations, side benches for pot-plants, ferns, lilies, begonias and primroses. I have had splendid success with Primula Obconica and it is a good seller here and makes up so nicely in small designs for poor people who cannot afford carnations. I am afraid I will have to discard it, for I have to handle it with gloves, as it poisons my hands. What can I use in its place? How is Primula stellata?

I would like to tell how I am growing carnations. I put two inches of well rotted manure in the bottom of my bench, then three or four inches of good garden soil, well mixed, with sand on top of that. About the first of September I put in nice stocky plants that had not bloomed and they have made fine plants, with from eight to fifteen buds on a plant and my Lawsons have 18-inch to 20-inch stems. My white is fine, Queen Louise; red very good, Roosevelt. I shall cover the bench with about one inch of good rich soil as a mulch as soon as the frost is out and I can handle it. I have used a very little Bowker's plant food and that is all. I will carry them in the bench until after Decoration day, then put them in my garden, where they will give me a few blooms to help with my roses.

I grow roses in summer and winter them in a pit four feet deep with glass and straw over them. The best bloomers for Iowa are Clothilde Soupert, Kaiserin, Helen Gould and the pink and white Cochet. Haven't found a red that suits me yet.

GROWTH ON PETUNIAS.

I am sending you a sample of a growth at the base of a petunia plant and wish to know the cause of it and whether it is a disease that renders the plant unfit to make cuttings from. Some plants have knots of this growth two inches in diameter.

W. N. T.

This growth on petunias is very common. I don't know that it should be called a disease; it is more an excrecence and quite local. The remainder of the plant may be healthy and vigorous, yet I would consider it unwise to propagate from the plants thus affected unless it be some variety of petunias of great excellence. Why do you bother with cuttings when they are so easily raised from seed? Procure the best strain and buy only seed that is sold for double. You will get about forty percent double, and they will be healthy, vigorous, free from rust and all other troubles and will have cost you one-half the trouble and expense of the plants raised by cuttings.

W. S.

BEST EUROPEAN PLACES.

I propose spending a part of the coming summer in southern England, Germany, northern France, Holland, Belgium and Switzerland. Being interested in the nursery business, especially the landscape department, it will be a great help in making up my itinerary if those of the trade who have recently visited Europe will tell through the REVIEW the names, locations and principal features of notable landscape work in the several countries mentioned. It will, of course, be impossible to see all of Europe in one trip, but I wish to see the best places and probably there are many others who are going to Europe this year who may be glad to be told briefly which of the many things of trade interest they should not fail to see.

TOURIST.

DISEASED GERANIUMS.

We have always been told geraniums were free from disease. I am sending a leaf of Trego and one of an ivy-leaved that are affected with a disease that killed a number of our plants last season. We did not bring in any diseased ones, but bought new stock of Trego. Can you give us the cause and the remedy?

When should moon-vine seed be planted to make salable plants for spring?

What are the best remedies for white fly and mealy bug?

M. C.

It is true that the zonal geranium is free from any specific disease that is peculiar to the genus, such as the spot on violets or the fungus on the hollyhock, but that is not saying they are not attacked by diseases that are brought on by unfavorable conditions or mismanagement. The leaves sent were like a piece of thin, black leather and we could recognize no particular trouble.

Moonvine should be sown at once to produce good, strong plants for this spring.

The white fly, the omnivorous little creature so troublesome of late years, is effectually destroyed by the hydrocyanic acid gas. The formula has been published repeatedly in the REVIEW. One application is not enough; it needs three times, because the eggs are not destroyed by the gas. Kerosene emulsion is the best remedy for mealy bug.

WITH THE GROWERS.

John Tailby & Son, Wellesley, Mass.

Joseph Tailby & Son's place is quite near the Wellesley station of the Boston & Albany R. R. They grow a miscellaneous assortment of stock, having considerable local trade. They also have a stand at the Music hall market, Boston. Bulbous stock is quite a specialty with them, narcissi, tulips, Spanish iris and gladioli being grown in quantity. Lilium candidum is grown on benches. We do not, however, consider this mode of culture as good as in pots. H. P. roses, violets, Nephrolepis Elegantissima, cyclamens, azaleas, and other stock is handled. A lot of Lilium speciosum rubrum is now in bloom. In carnations, Fair Maid, White Lawson and Queen are chiefly grown. Princess of Wales violets looked well. Joseph Tailby is an encyclopædia of horticultural lore and as keen a plantsman as ever.

grand standard of Acacia pubescens was at its best. There were big specimens of azaleas, Streptosolen Jamesonii and camellias in flower. A well grown Angræcum sesquipedale carried ten flowers. The head gardener, Thomas Watt, also had other well grown orchids.

At Walter Hunnewell's estate, where T. D. Hatfield presides, fruit houses were being gotten in readiness to start. A quantity of September flowering chrysanthemums, which Mr. Hatfield secured in Great Britain last year, were being propagated. Nice batches of calceolarias, ericas, acacias, etc., were noted. In the orchid houses plants looked well. A batch of over 100 Miltonia vexillaria were starting to push spikes. These are in 6-inch to 8-inch pots and are grand specimens. One carried eighty flowers last season. Cattleyas looked well, as did the phalænopsis, vandas, saccolabiums and other warm house varieties. A plant of Angræcum sesquipedale carried twelve flowers. Some fine baskets of the sweetly scented Vanda Amesiana were just going out of bloom.

Fred Cole, at Mrs. Arthur Hunnewell's, has some nice seedling carnations which promise well. Leptosyne maritima is liked for cut flowers. Its lemon flowers on long stems are freely produced in pots. Schizanthus is a favorite pot-plant here and is used for piazza decorations in early summer.

John Barr, South Natick, Mass.

John Barr, in South Natick, has one of the neatest and most up-to-date plants in the vicinity of Boston. Three houses, each 23x200, are devoted to carnations. The sorts grown are Mrs. Patten and Chester Roper for variegated; Queen, White Lawson and Lady Bountiful in batch of 500 splendid cyclamens and a large lot of hydrangeas are the only other plants seen here. Everything is very conveniently arranged and extreme neatness prevails throughout the whole place, of which Mr. Barr has every reason to be proud. A model dwelling overlooking the romantic Charles river is nearing completion. W. N. C.

THE FLORISTS OF ILLINOIS.

The Illinois State Florists' Association was organized February 25 and incorporated March 20, 1905. The object is to unite all the gardeners and florists of the state into an organization to promote the interests of floriculture. To accomplish this object it is proposed to hold meetings for the discussion of topics of mutual interest and to hold exhibitions in the larger cities of the state, to educate the public and to stimulate their interest in flowers. It is hoped that the public may be brought to a realization of the great possibilities in the beautifying of home grounds with flowers and plants.

Further, it is the purpose of this organization through these meetings, exhibitions and reliable press reports to bring to the knowledge of people the importance of floriculture in this state, so that they shall appreciate the fact that, considered from the commercial standpoint, floriculture is the largest horticultural interest in Illinois.

Another object which the organization hopes to accomplish is the securing of an appropriation from the state for the construction of greenhouses at the Illinois Experiment Station and the carrying out of investigations to find means of preventing fungus diseases and the destruction of insect pests affecting greenhouse plants. Thus the florists' industry will be placed on an equal footing, as it deserves, with the other agricultural interests of the state, all of which have been benefited by special legislative appropriations for several years. The work undertaken will be determined upon by this organization and cannot help but be of immense value to the trade.

Another line of work of the association will be the furnishing of reliable information to the public and the encouragement of the school gardening movement and the work of civic improvement societies, either by the society itself or by providing funds to enable the experiment station to publish and supply information on gardening matters, which it is unable to do now.

The organization will be in a position to request, insist and possibly demand that a fair share of the appropriations made by the state for maintaining horticultural exhibits at international and other fairs shall be spent in the interest of floriculture and further to support the National Council of Horticulture in securing for horticulture in general every benefit which rightfully belongs to it.

The above are some of the many things the Illinois State Florists' Association can accomplish. If the florists have not secured that to which they had a right it is because they have not had an organization covering the whole state to properly present their claims and to bring pressure where and when needed. When the florists of the state appeared in legislative halls at Springfield they had to spend a vast amount of time in educating the lawmakers that floriculture amounted to something and therefore deserved an appropriation. If the fact that floriculture represents an investment of millions of dollars had been well known, the efforts of the committee could have been confined to showing what could be accomplished by the proposed investigations. Whether the general public shall remain thus ignorant of the importance of our industry remains for the florists to determine.

It seems possible to spread the present popular interest in flowers and plants by holding exhibitions in some of the larger cities of the state and thus bring to an ever increasing number of people the enjoyment of perfect flowers and plants, a pleasure hitherto confined largely to the great cities. Every influence which tends to increase the love of ornamental plants among the people should be fostered and encouraged. Every florist in the state is vitally interested in all these things and the success of the organization is measured by the unanimity with which the florists rally to its standard.

ECHEVERIAS.

How large will echeverias be June 1, if they are seeded March 1 and kept in a warm house? Will Centaurea candidissima be large enough for bedding June 1 if seed is planted March 1? Where can I find some Echeveria secunda glauca plants?

W. L.

Echeverias of some varieties are often raised from seed, but secunda glauca is usually increased by offshoots. I think a want advertisement in the REVIEW would be sure to bring you offers. Since carpet bedding has declined in popular favor the stock of E. secunda glauca has much decreased. It is too late now to sow the seed for this summer's bedding, whatever temperature you employ, and it must be grown cool to produce useful plants.

It is also much too late to sow Centaurea candidissima. When we used this plant for flower gardening we sowed it in October or propagated from lifted plants in midwinter. It went out of fashion because such a large percentage of the plants would die and leave blanks during the summer. Seed sown now would be very small plants at the end of May, and useless for flower gardening.

Santolina incana is a much better white-foliaged plant in every way.

THE WEILAND FAMILY.

The Weilands, of Evanston, Ill., are a family of florists. The father is Matthias Weiland, a veteran grower for the Chicago market. He started in business in Chicago's intellectual suburb more than twenty years ago. He has built up a large retail trade, but produces so much stock in his big range of glass that a considerable quantity usually remains to be wholesaled in Chicago. Mr. Weiland says that his best year, so far as profits are concerned, was 1893, the year of the World's Fair.

John Weiland, the eldest son, is a grower on his own account at Evanston. He has a large range of glass, a retail store and considerable stock to wholesale. Peter Weiland is the senior member of the firm of Weiland & Olinger, of New Castle, Ind., with a wholesale store at Cincinnati. They have a big plant, devoted to roses and carnations. George Weiland is in charge of his father's Evanston retail store.

It has been Mr. Weiland's practice to assist his sons to a business of their own as fast as they reached the proper age. He went to Denver a fortnight ago with the avowed intention of buying real estate on which to build a range of glass for Henry, the youngest son, whose health it was thought would be benefited by the change of climate. All the plans were made for erecting the greenhouses but, arrived at Denver, Mr. Weiland changed his mind and when he left for home Henry was installed on a fruit farm purchased for him.

The eldest daughter is Mrs. John Didier, whose husband was a well-known grower at Rogers Park, growing carnations exclusively, but shipping to both Milwaukee and Chicago commission houses. A younger daughter is Mrs. Peter J. Olinger, whose husband is the junior partner of Weiland & Olinger, and who has charge of that firm's Cincinnati store. Anna Weiland is the bookkeeper at her father's retail store. There are two younger girls, Margaret and Helen, still in school.

Mrs. Weiland is a sister of Peter Reinberg and George Reinberg. She is also a sister of Mrs. Adam Zender, the Rogers Park grower.

RAILROAD GARDENING.

[A paper by Paul Huebner, superintendent of gardens and grounds of the Reading Railroad, before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, March 6, 1906.]

I have been requested by your committee to say something about the subject of railroad gardening. I had the pleasure of appearing before you on the same subject a number of years ago and, while I do not know that I can tell you anything further now, I can at least refresh your memories on some of the salient features of this particular phase of horticulture.

The most important point in railroad gardening to my mind is how to achieve effectiveness at a minimum of cost. Around this fundamental idea all our lock, but that is not saying they are not attacked by diseases that are brought on by unfavorable conditions or mismanagement. The leaves sent were like a piece of thin, black leather and we could recognize no particular trouble.

Moonvine should be sown at once to produce good, strong plants for this spring.

The white fly, the omnivorous little creature so troublesome of late years, is effectually destroyed by the hydrocyanic acid gas. The formula has been published repeatedly in the REVIEW. One application is not enough; it needs three times, because the eggs are not destroyed by the gas. Kerosene emulsion is the best remedy for mealy bug.

WITH THE GROWERS.

John Tailby & Son, Wellesley, Mass.

Joseph Tailby & Son's place is quite near the Wellesley station of the Boston & Albany R. R. They grow a miscellaneous assortment of stock, having considerable local trade. They also have a stand at the Music hall market, Boston. Bulbous stock is quite a specialty with them, narcissi, tulips, Spanish iris and gladioli being grown in quantity. Lilium candidum is grown on benches. We do not, however, consider this mode of culture as good as in pots. H. P. roses, violets, Nephelepis Elegantiissima, cyclamens, azaleas, and other stock is handled. A lot of Lilium speciosum rubrum is now in bloom. In carnations, Fair Maid, White Lawson and Queen are chiefly grown. Princess of Wales violets looked well. Joseph Tailby is an encyclopaedia of horticultural lore and as keen a plantsman as ever.

grand standard of Acacia pubescens was at its best. There were big specimens of azaleas, Streptosolen Jamesonii and camellias in flower. A well grown Angracum sesquipedale carried ten flowers. The head gardener, Thomas Watt, also had other well grown orchids.

At Walter Hunnewell's estate, where T. D. Hatfield presides, fruit houses were being gotten in readiness to start. A quantity of September flowering chrysanthemums, which Mr. Hatfield secured in Great Britain last year, were being propagated. Nice batches of calceolarias, ericas, acacias, etc., were noted. In the orchid houses plants looked well. A batch of over 100 Miltonia vexillaria were starting to push spikes. These are in 6-inch to 8-inch pots and are grand specimens. One carried eighty flowers last season. Cattleyas looked well, as did the phalanopsis, vandas, saccolabiums and other warm house varieties. A plant of Angracum sesquipedale carried twelve flowers. Some fine baskets of the sweetly scented Vanda Amesiana were just going out of bloom.

Fred Cole, at Mrs. Arthur Hunnewell's, has some nice seedling carnations which promise well. Leptosyne maritima is liked for cut flowers. Its lemon flowers on long stems are freely produced in pots. Schizanthus is a favorite pot-plant here and is used for piazza decorations in early summer.

John Barr, South Natick, Mass.

John Barr, in South Natick, has one of the neatest and most up-to-date plants in the vicinity of Boston. Three houses, each 23x200, are devoted to carnations. The sorts grown are Mrs. Patten and Chester Roper for variegated; Queen, White Lawson and Lady Bountiful in batch of 500 splendid cyclamens and a large lot of hydrangeas are the only other plants seen here. Everything is very conveniently arranged and extreme neatness prevails throughout the whole place, of which Mr. Barr has every reason to be proud. A model dwelling overlooking the romantic Charles river is nearing completion. W. N. C.

THE FLORISTS OF ILLINOIS.

The Illinois State Florists' Association was organized February 25 and incorporated March 20, 1905. The object is to unite all the gardeners and florists of the state into an organization to promote the interests of floriculture. To accomplish this object it is proposed to hold meetings for the discussion of topics of mutual interest and to hold exhibitions in the larger cities of the state, to educate the public and to stimulate their interest in flowers. It is hoped that the public may be brought to a realization of the great possibilities in the beautifying of home grounds with flowers and plants.

RAILROAD GARDENING.

A paper by Paul Hiebner, superintendent of gardens and grounds of the Reading Railroad, before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, March 6, 1906.

I have been requested by your committee to say something about the subject of railroad gardening. I had the pleasure of appearing before you on the same subject a number of years ago and, while I do not know that I can tell you anything further now, I can at least refresh your memories on some of the salient features of this particular phase of horticulture.

The most important point in railroad gardening to my mind is how to achieve effectiveness at a minimum of cost. Around this fundamental idea all our thoughts and efforts concentrate, and from this radiates all that we do and all that we leave undone. A railroad company does not beautify its station grounds for philanthropic reasons. The basic idea is to increase traffic and to do this, surroundings are made as attractive as possible.

Another point we have aimed at is hedging for the purpose of preventing snow-drifts, as well as for ornament. For this purpose we have found nothing to beat the California privet. We have heard some complaint as to the hardness of this plant, but our experience has been very fortunate. We have lost but few, even in the bad years that killed off so many in this latitude. The Osage orange we have discarded entirely. It is subject to scale and the robber roots run all over the adjoining field. Besides that, it is very hard to trim except when it is in the soft state. California privet is very easily trimmed.

Use of Evergreens.

During the years that have elapsed since I talked to you before, the most decided change that has taken place in methods is the increased use of hardy herbaceous plants and evergreens. The evergreen is not only showy in summer, but is soothing and picturesque in winter and gives that pleasing touch to the landscape which we all so much appreciate. All the thuyas and retinosporas are good, but I do not recommend the arbor-vitæ on account of the bag worm. For embankments we find the Scotch broom a very satisfactory shrub. We do not use the Wichuraiana rose much for embankments, as it costs too much to prepare the soil.

For shrubbery groups the weigelia, forsythia, laburnum, Prunus Pissardi and amygdalus are excellent. Of course we have to depend on the old-fashioned carpet beds to brighten things up with color around the stations.

Bedding Plants.

Our best scarlet geranium is Denison's Seedling, and we also use a good many of John Doyle, which is the same color. S. A. Nutt is too dark for railroad purposes and it does not clean itself enough. Le Pilot is about as dark as we can use effectively, but this variety is running out somewhat and we need one with a better constitution. In pinks we pin our faith to Glorieaux. La Favorite is one of the best whites I have tried.

In cannas we still believe in Fuerst Bismarck. It is an elegant bright scarlet with green foliage, a fine grower and blooms all the time. It also cleans itself nicely and always looks fresh and bright. Mlle. Berat is a good pink and is grand all by itself in a big bed. We like Buttercup better than Florence Vaughan for a yellow. Of the giant, orchid-flowering cannas, we like Kate Grey the best. For a large bed twenty or thirty feet in diameter this is hard to beat. Bouvier, Egandale, and Madame Crozy are still among our stand-bys. For a good all-around dark foliaged variety, Egandale is still in the race.

Effective Bedding Pieces.

One of the most effective pieces of bedding last season was composed of cannas and Souvenir d'Bonn abutilon with Coleus Verschaffeltii. Another was composed of Admiral Avellan canna, scarlet sage and next the grass Coleus Verschaffeltii. This had a fine effect, flowers red, foliage red, the whole thing red, wonderfully striking, indeed.

We use eulalia quite freely for oriental effects; but the arundo and pennisetum are not hardy enough for us. The dwarf growing begonias such as Vernon and other semperflorens varieties are very useful and keep in bloom all summer long. They look best with an edging of Madame Salleron geranium. A combination of Abutilon Savitzii and acahypha makes a beautiful contrast.

We still use the Golden Bedder coleus. It is hard to beat as a good all-around yellow. Nero and Verschaffeltii are also good. We use peonies freely, mixed in with the shrubbery. Hardy phloxes are now much in vogue, and we are finding them most valuable.

For backgrounds, the hardy sunflowers are grand and there is now a fine variety of these to choose from. Anemones, tulips, crocus and other things that cannot be seen in winter, we leave alone, as railroad workers have no respect for anything they can't see. Everything goes right under when they get at it with pick and shovel.

Station Grounds.

From what I hear, Philadelphians are quite proud of the ornamental character of the Reading Railroad stations in their vicinity. It gives them something to point to with satisfaction when strangers are around, besides being pleasant to look at for themselves. Personally, it would not be in good taste for me to talk about that, but I may be pardoned for saying that in my recent travels through the south, I saw nothing in the same line that I wanted to take my hat off to.

I did see a few wonderful things, however. One of them was the croton hedges in Florida. Imagine a hedge of this brilliant foliage plant eight or ten feet high and splendidly developed. This was a revelation to me and really a grand sight. The hibiscus, single and double, was in bloom during my visit and was simply covered with thousands of blooms. These latter were especially fine in the English colony in Nassau. But as a rule, the southern country looked to me poor and miserable. A trip to Atlantic City is a treat in comparison. When you come to a hotel it is O. K., but outside of that you might as well go to sleep.

Greenhouse Heating.

A HEATER FOR HOTBEDS.

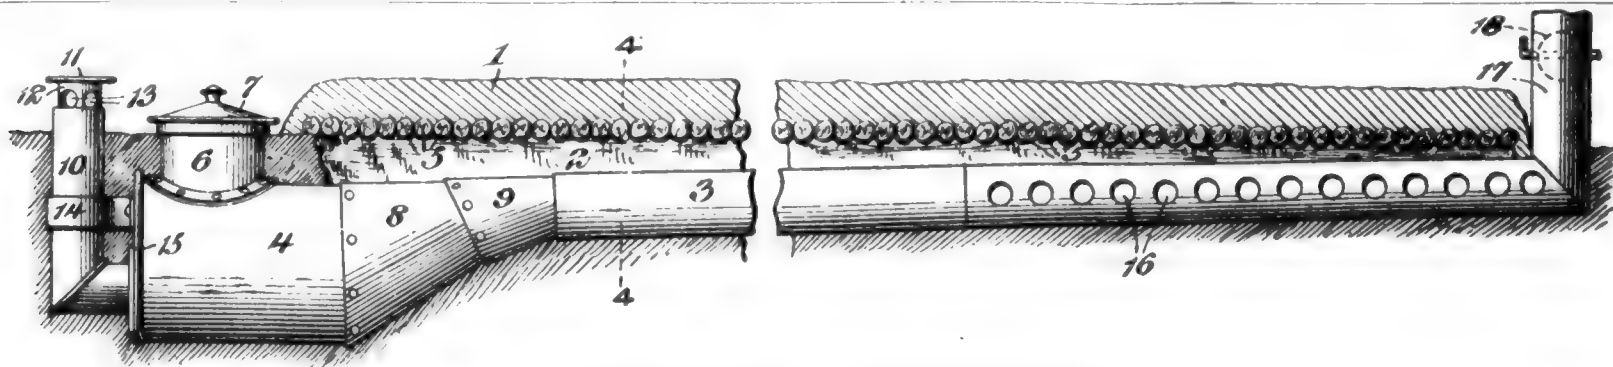

The accompanying illustration is from a drawing of the apparatus for heating hotbeds, invented by Henry Austin, of Felton, Del., and patented. The object of the invention is to provide a simple, inexpensive and efficient apparatus for supplying heat for hotbeds for starting and forcing early vegetables and to enable the draft to be controlled, so that the apparatus may be safely left without attention for a considerable length of time. A further object is to provide an apparatus in which a comparatively small amount of fire will effectually heat large areas and to provide means for preventing the plants close to the fire from receiving too much heat and those remote from the fire receiving too little heat.

The illustration shows a longitudinal sectional view. No. 1 designates a hotbed designed in practice to be fifty feet in length and ten feet in width; but it may be of any other desired area, as will be readily understood. Beneath the bed is arranged a longitudinal chamber 2, in which is located a longitudinal heat-conduit 3, extending from a horizontal furnace or heater 4, and the latter is located below and extends beyond one end of the bed. In constructing the hotbed a trench is dug and is covered with transversely arranged poles 5, which support the hotbed 1.

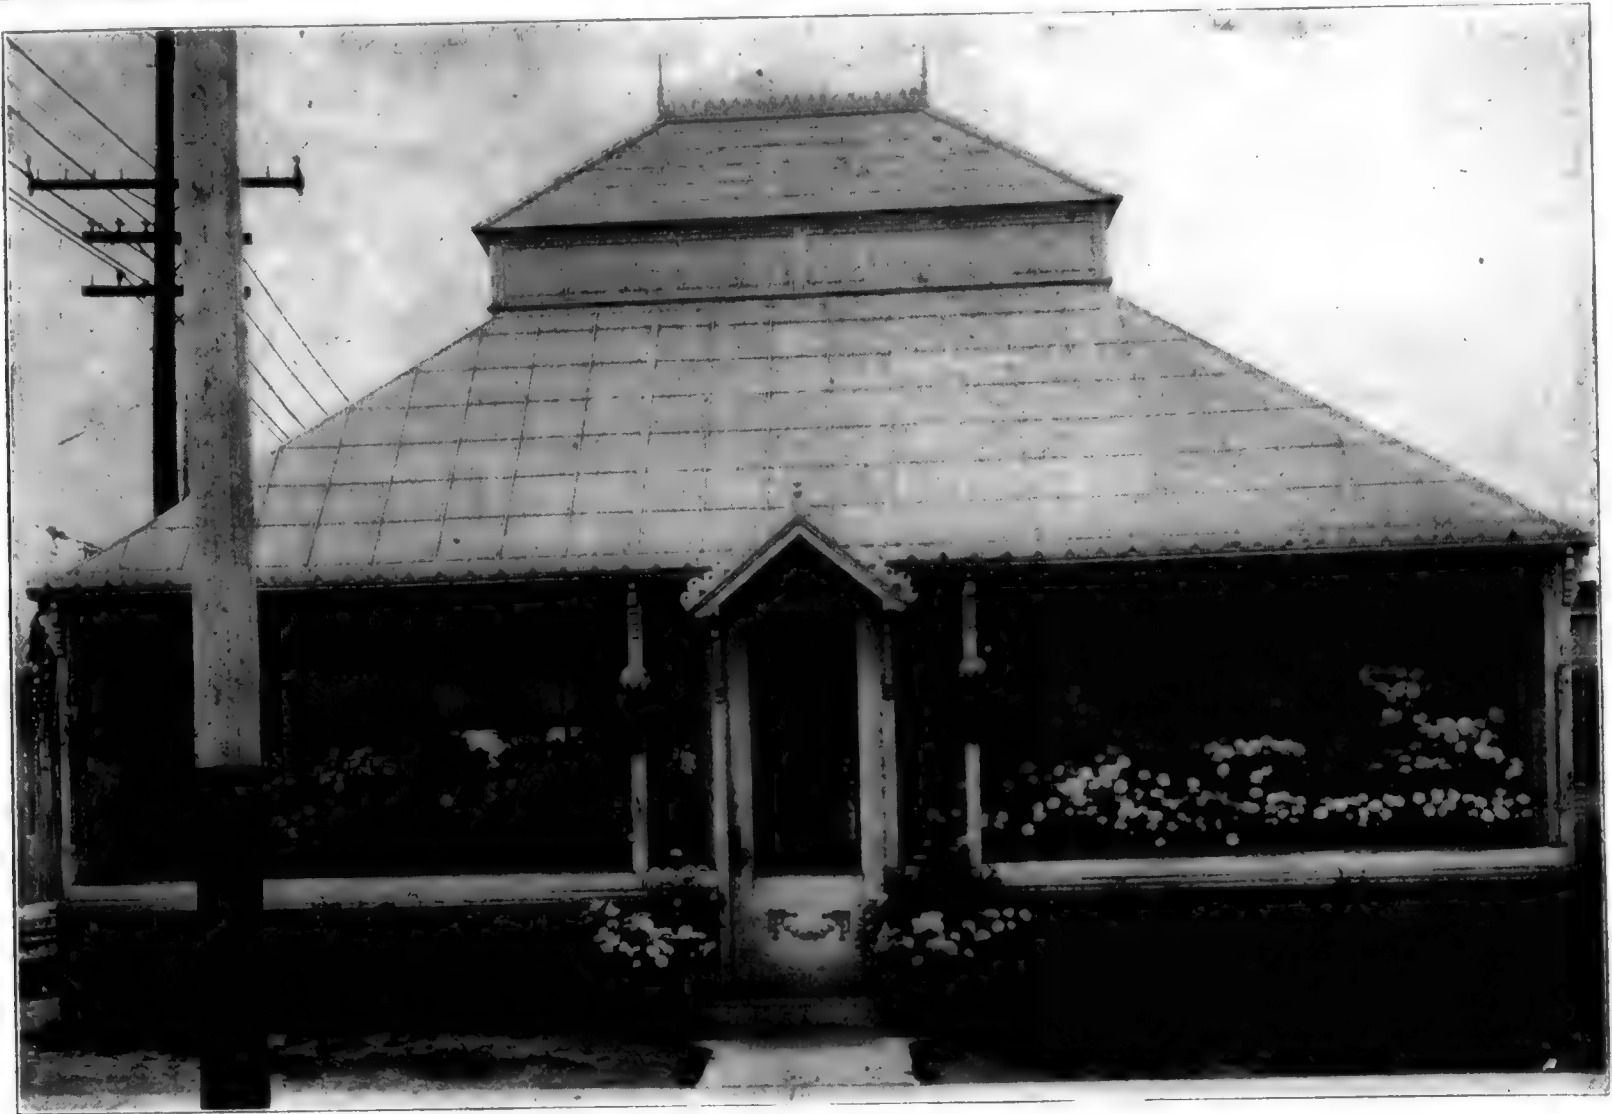

The furnace or heater 4, which is preferably cylindrical, is embedded in the ground and is designed for burning wood, but any other fuel may be employed. The furnace is provided with a vertical cylindrical fuel-inlet 6, having a removable top or cover 7 and extending above the surface of the ground. The heat-conduit extends longitudinally from and merges into the furnace or heater 4.

Air is admitted to the outer end of the furnace by a substantially L-shaped inlet-pipe 10, which extends from the lower portion of the heater or furnace to a point above the surface of the ground. The air-inlet pipe is provided at its upper or outer end with means for controlling the admission of air. This means consists of a cap 11, having a tubular portion 12 extending into the upper end of the air-inlet pipe and provided with an annular series of apertures 13, adapted to permit air to enter the pipe 10. The size of the apertures may be controlled by raising or lowering the cap 11, which telescopes into the air-inlet pipe. The upwardly extending branch or portion of the air-inlet pipe is supported by a brace 14 of sheet metal or other suitable material, which embraces the air-inlet pipe and which has its terminals secured to the outer end or head 15 of the furnace or heater.

The heat-conduit, which rests upon the bottom of the chamber beneath the hot-bed, is spaced from the latter and is arranged at an inclination, the distance from the conduit to the hotbed gradually decreasing as the distance from the fire increases. The outer portion of the heat-conduit is provided with lateral discharge-openings 16, which permit the heat to enter the space beneath the hot-bed. By inclining the heat-conduit and by providing the discharge apertures or openings at the outer portion thereof the plants located adjacent to the heater or furnace are prevented from receiving too much heat and those remote from the heater or furnace are afforded a sufficient amount of heat. The heat escaping from the lateral outlets enters the chamber or space and heats the air within. This chamber or space tapers transversely and extends close to the sides of the bed. The conduit is connected at its upper or outer end with an outlet or escape pipe 17, having a damper 18. By adjusting the damper and the cap 11 the draft may be controlled and the apparatus may be supplied with fuel in the evening, and it will not require attention until the next morning.

Henry Austin's Device for Heating Hotbeds.

Establishment of J. F. Windt, St. Louis, Mo.

PIPING FOR EXTRA HOUSE.

I have a house 20x28 feet and wish to put up one 16x22 feet for carnations. I have a steam boiler, rated at 350 feet of radiation. Now, can I safely heat a house of 16x22 feet? I want to grow carnations only in the house 16x22 feet and must have enough heat to keep 45 degrees to 50 degrees in zero weather. Please let me know how to pipe the house 16x22 feet. Can I branch off of the main flow? The main flow now is 2-inch. I can use 3-inch flow and divide to two 2-inch. S. J. H.

The boiler you have should be large enough to care for both houses. The house 20x28 feet requires about 160 square feet of radiation and the house 20x22 feet should have about 110 square feet of radiation. One 2-inch flow pipe should be large enough for the two houses.

A 1½-inch flow under the ridge of the house 16x22 to the far end, returning by fourteen 1-inch pipes distributed under the benches, will provide the required radiation. If 1¼-inch pipes are used for returns eleven lines of pipe will be required. L. C. C.

SIZE OF BOILER.

Can I successfully heat a house 22x75 with hot water, using 2-inch or 2½-inch flows and 1¼-inch and 1½-inch or 2-inch returns? It has been suggested to me to make the highest point in a hot-water system next to the shedding and not at the farthest end of house. Which is best? What size horse-power boiler would it require to heat three houses, two 33x120 feet and one house 22x175 feet, hot-water to be used; temperature required, 50 degrees to 55 degrees in zero weather? All the houses have two feet of glass in the sides and are not connected by gutters, each being separate. H. H. G.

If your houses are so arranged that the boiler plant can be located at the center of the houses instead of at one end, the long houses can be heated by hot-water. If it is necessary to locate the boiler at the end of the houses, I should not attempt to heat them with hot-water on a gravity system. The houses 120 feet long could be successfully handled in this way, but the house 175 feet long is too long to successfully handle under a hot-water system with the boiler at the end of the house. If the boiler can be located at the center of the house the length of the flow for the hot-water will be within the 100-foot limit, which is considered the safe limit. In any event

I should not attempt to use 1¼-inch radiating pipes. This is a good size for steam, but it is the minimum size for hot-water and should only be employed in short coils, fifty feet or less.

The risers for the houses 120 feet long, if the boiler is at one end, should be 3½-inch for each house, returning by seventeen 2-inch pipes in each house. The flow pipe in the 175-foot house should be 4-inch and the returns fourteen in number, if 2-inch pipe is used. If the houses are heated from a boiler located at the center of the range, the same amount of radiation will be required, but a 2½-inch riser will carry either end of the houses 120 feet long, while a 3-inch flow or riser will carry either end of the houses 175 feet long and will give a more uniform distribution of heat and make the houses more dependable during severe weather. In regard to the slope of the flow pipe, use it either way you like, my preference, however, is for the high point at the far end of the system. With an elevated expansion tank of ample size either an uphill or a downhill system can be made to work all right. L. C. C.

THE WINDT PLACE.

The accompanying illustration is from a photograph of the new show house of J. F. Windt, St. Louis. The front affords opportunity for a very good display and if the virtue usually credited to an attractive window is a reality here is a case in which it is at fullest advantage. The photograph was by Rudolph Windt.

All the thuyas and retinosporas are good, but I do not recommend the arbor-vita on account of the bag worm. For embankments we find the Scotch broom a very satisfactory shrub. We do not use the Wichuraiana rose much for embankments, as it costs too much to prepare the soil.

For shrubbery groups the weigelia, forsythia, laburnum, Prunus Pissardi and amygdalus are excellent. Of course we have to depend on the old-fashioned carpet beds to brighten things up with color around the stations.

Bedding Plants.

Our best scarlet geranium is Denison's Seedling, and we also use a good many of John Doyle, which is the same color. S. A. Nutt is too dark for railroad purposes and it does not clean itself enough. Le Pilot is about as dark as we can use effectively, but this variety is running out somewhat and we need one with a better constitution. In pinks we pin our faith to Glorieaux. La Favorite is one of the best whites I have tried.

In cannas we still believe in Fuerst Bismarck. It is an elegant bright scarlet with green foliage, a fine grower and blooms all the time. It also cleans itself nicely and always looks fresh and bright. Mlle. Berat is a good pink and is grand all by itself in a big bed. We like Buttercup better than Florence Vaughan for a yellow. Of the giant, orchid-flowering cannas, we like Kate Grey the best. For a large bed twenty or thirty feet in diameter this is hard to beat. Bouvier, Egandale, and Madame Crozy are still among our stand-bys. For a good all-around dark foliated variety, Egandale is still in the race.

Effective Bedding Pieces.

One of the most effective pieces of bedding last season was composed of cannas and Souvenir d'Bonn abutilon with Coleus Verschaffeltii. Another was composed of Admiral Avellan canna, scarlet sage and next the grass Coleus Verschaffeltii. This had a fine effect, flowers red, foliage red, the whole thing red, wonderfully striking, indeed.

We use eulalia quite freely for oriental effects; but the arundo and pennisetum are not hardy enough for us. The dwarf growing begonias such as Vernon and other semperflorens varieties are very useful and keep in bloom all summer long. They look best with an edging of Madame Salleroi geranium. A combination of Abutilon Savitzii and acalypha makes a beautiful contrast.

We still use the Golden Bedder coleus. It is hard to beat as a good all-around yellow. Nero and Verschaffeltii are also good. We use peonies freely, mixed in with the shrubbery. Hardy phloxes are now much in vogue, and we are finding them most valuable.

For backgrounds, the hardy sunflowers are grand and there is now a fine variety of these to choose from. Anemones, tulips, crocus and other things that cannot be seen in winter, we leave alone, as railroad workers have no respect for anything they can't see. Everything goes right under when they get at it with pick and shovel.

Station Grounds.

From what I hear, Philadelphians are quite proud of the ornamental character of the Reading Railroad stations in their vicinity. It gives them something to point to with satisfaction when strangers are around, besides being pleasant to look at for themselves. Personally, it would not be in good taste for me to talk about that, but I may be pardoned for saying that in my recent travels through the south, I saw nothing in the same line that I wanted to take my hat off to.

I did see a few wonderful things, however. One of them was the croton hedges in Florida. Imagine a hedge of this brilliant foliage plant eight or ten feet high and splendidly developed. This was a revelation to me and really a grand sight. The hibiscus, single and double, was in bloom during my visit and was simply covered with thousands of blooms. These latter were especially fine in the English colony in Nassau. But as a rule, the southern country looked to me poor and miserable. A trip to Atlantic City is a treat in comparison. When you come to a hotel it is O. K., but outside of that you might as well go to sleep.

Greenhouse Heating.

A HEATER FOR HOTBEDS.

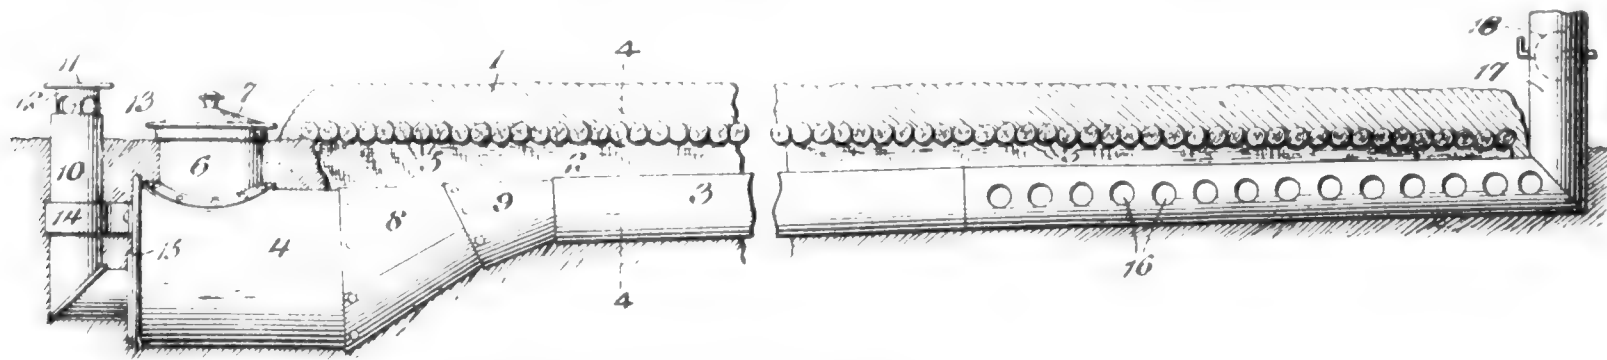

The accompanying illustration is from a drawing of the apparatus for heating hotbeds, invented by Henry Austin, of Felton, Del., and patented. The object of the invention is to provide a simple, inexpensive and efficient apparatus for supplying heat for hotbeds for starting and forcing early vegetables and to enable the draft to be controlled, so that the apparatus may be safely left without attention for a considerable length of time. A further object is to provide an apparatus in which a comparatively small amount of fire will effectually heat large areas and to provide means for preventing the plants close to the fire from receiving too much heat and those remote from the fire receiving too little heat.

The illustration shows a longitudinal sectional view. No. 1 designates a hotbed designed in practice to be fifty feet in length and ten feet in width; but it may be of any other desired area, as will be readily understood. Beneath the bed is arranged a longitudinal chamber 2, in which is located a longitudinal heat-conduit 3, extending from a horizontal furnace or heater 4, and the latter is located below and extends beyond one end of the bed. In constructing the hotbed a trench is dug and is covered with transversely arranged poles 5, which support the hotbed 1.

The furnace or heater 4, which is preferably cylindrical, is embedded in the ground and is designed for burning wood, but any other fuel may be employed. The furnace is provided with a vertical cylindrical fuel-inlet 6, having a removable top or cover 7 and extending above the surface of the ground. The heat-conduit extends longitudinally from and merges into the furnace or heater 4.

Air is admitted to the outer end of the furnace by a substantially L-shaped inlet-pipe 10, which extends from the lower portion of the heater or furnace to a point above the surface of the ground. The air-inlet pipe is provided at its upper or outer end with means for controlling the admission of air. This means consists of a cap 11, having a tubular portion 12 extending into the upper end of the air-inlet pipe and provided with an annular series of apertures 13, adapted to permit air to enter the pipe 10. The size of the apertures may be controlled by raising or lowering the cap 11, which telescopes into the air-inlet pipe. The upwardly extending branch or portion of the air-inlet pipe is supported by a brace 14 of sheet metal or other suitable material, which embraces the air-inlet pipe and which has its terminals secured to the outer end or head 15 of the furnace or heater.

The heat-conduit, which rests upon the bottom of the chamber beneath the hot-bed, is spaced from the latter and is arranged at an inclination, the distance from the conduit to the hotbed gradually decreasing as the distance from the fire increases. The outer portion of the heat-conduit is provided with lateral discharge-openings 16, which permit the heat to enter the space beneath the hot-bed. By inclining the heat-conduit and by providing the discharge apertures or openings at the outer portion thereof the plants located adjacent to the heater or furnace are prevented from receiving too much heat and those remote from the heater or furnace are afforded a sufficient amount of heat. The heat escaping from the lateral outlets enters the chamber or space and heats the air within. This chamber or space tapers transversely and extends close to the sides of the bed. The conduit is connected at its upper or outer end with an outlet or escape pipe 17, having a damper 18. By adjusting the damper and the cap 11 the draft may be controlled and the apparatus may be supplied with fuel in the evening, and it will not require attention until the next morning.

Henry Austin's Device for Heating Hotbeds.

Establishment of J. F. Windt, St. Louis, Mo.

PIPING FOR EXTRA HOUSE.

I have a house 20x28 feet and wish to put up one 16x22 feet for carnations. I have a steam boiler, rated at 350 feet of radiation. Now, can I safely heat a house of 16x22 feet? I want to grow carnations only in the house 16x22 feet and must have enough heat to keep 45 degrees to 50 degrees in zero weather. Please let me know how to pipe the house 16x22 feet. Can I branch off of the main flow? The main flow now is 2-inch. I can use 3 inch flow and divide to two 2 inch. S. J. H.

The boiler you have should be large enough to care for both houses. The house 20x28 feet requires about 160 square feet of radiation and the house 20x22 feet should have about 110 square feet of radiation. One 2 inch flow pipe should be large enough for the two houses.

A 1½-inch flow under the ridge of the house 16x22 to the far end, returning by fourteen 1-inch pipes distributed under the benches, will provide the required radiation. If 1¼-inch pipes are used for returns eleven lines of pipe will be required. L. C. C.

SIZE OF BOILER.

Can I successfully heat a house 22x75 with hot water, using 2-inch or 2½-inch flows and 1¼-inch and 1½-inch or 2 inch returns? It has been suggested to me to make the highest point in a hot-water system next to the shedding and not at the farthest end of house. Which is best? What size horse-power boiler would it require to heat three houses, two 33x120 feet and one house 22x175 feet, hot-water to be used; temperature required, 50 degrees to 55 degrees in zero weather? All the houses have two feet of glass in the sides and are not connected by gutters, each being separate. H. H. G.

If your houses are so arranged that the boiler plant can be located at the center of the houses instead of at one end, the long houses can be heated by hot water. If it is necessary to locate the boiler at the end of the houses, I should not attempt to heat them with hot-water on a gravity system. The houses 120 feet long could be successfully handled in this way, but the house 175 feet long is too long to successfully handle under a hot-water system with the boiler at the end of the house. If the boiler can be located at the center of the house the length of the flow for the hot-water will be within the 100-foot limit, which is considered the safe limit. In any event

I should not attempt to use 1¼-inch radiating pipes. This is a good size for steam, but it is the minimum size for hot water and should only be employed in short coils, fifty feet or less.

The risers for the houses 120 feet long, if the boiler is at one end, should be 3½-inch for each house, returning by seventeen 2-inch pipes in each house. The flow pipe in the 175 foot house should be 4 inch and the returns fourteen in number, if 2-inch pipe is used. If the houses are heated from a boiler located at the center of the range, the same amount of radiation will be required, but a 2½ inch riser will carry either end of the houses 120 feet long, while a 3-inch flow or riser will carry either end of the houses 175 feet long and will give a more uniform distribution of heat and make the houses more dependable during severe weather. In regard to the slope of the flow pipe, use it either way you like, my preference, however, is for the high point at the far end of the system. With an elevated expansion tank of ample size either an uphill or a downhill system can be made to work all right. L. C. C.

THE WINDT PLACE.

The accompanying illustration is from a photograph of the new show house of J. F. Windt, St. Louis. The front affords opportunity for a very good display and if the virtue usually credited to an attractive window is a reality here is a case in which it is at fullest advantage. The photograph was by Rudolph Windt.

GREEN LICE ON LETTUCE.

What is the best way to kill the green lice on lettuce growing in greenhouses, and where can the preparation be bought? I have used tobacco smoke, but don't like it. W. E. B.

Hydrocyanic acid gas is the cleanest and surest insecticide we have tried for this purpose. So much has been written about this recently that no doubt you will be alive to the danger of handling it. It is a deadly poison if inhaled, but if one keeps this in mind and gets out of the house immediately after the cyanide is dropped in the jar, locking the door after, there is no more danger with it than with anything else. We use it at the rate of one ounce of cyanide, one-fifth of a quart of sulphuric acid and the same quantity of water as of acid to 2,000 cubic feet of space in the house. The water and acid are first placed together in a stone jar, which is put near the center of the house; then the cyanide is dropped in and, as I said before, the operator gets out as quickly as possible. He will have plenty of time to get out before the acid is spread sufficiently through the air in the house without any danger of its catching him. Be sure and lock the door, so that no one can accidentally go into the house. We operate the last thing at night and by morning the house can safely be entered.

If the house is over fifty feet long, the gas will be more evenly distributed by using two jars. In a house 100 feet long we would set the jars twenty-five feet from each end and drop the cyanide in the one farthest from the door first, dropping it in the other in passing out. Both jars should be made ready by having the acid and water in them when they are placed in position and nothing left to do but drop the cyanide in. You can procure the cyanide of potassium and sulphuric acid at any drug store. The acid need not be what is known as chemically pure, what is known as the commercial quality being just as good for the purpose in hand. We have used nothing else in the way of insecticides for the last three years, and used at this rate, have never had the lettuce hurt in the least. Of course, a good deal will depend on the closeness of your house. If this is in any way open, a stronger solution would be necessary, but try it at this rate first and if it does not do the work try it a little stronger next time. W. S. CROYDON.

The Market.

Last week was a trying one for the market and in addition to the influence of Lent, the culmination was a fierce storm that completely spoiled the Saturday business. This was followed by a veritable spring day, with warmth and sunshine, to be followed Monday with temperature below freezing. Memories of the blizzard of March 12, 1888, are still vivid. Nobody seems to be banking on a very early spring, though signs of it are many.

Beauties are still scarce and the best command a good figure, some holding at 60 cents. But the tendency is downward. Brides and Maids barely hold at 10 cents for the finest and lower grades are retrograding fast. Carnations have lost twenty-five per cent and have gone as low as they are likely to before Easter. Novelties hold their own fairly well.

Owing to bad weather and immense shipments, violets were a drug on Saturday and the surplus fell as low as 15 cents a hundred. The top price is 50 shrubs, his first importation of the season. Every Tuesday and Friday the auctions will continue until June. A week later Cleary's Horticultural Hall opens with a sale of hardy stock.

Harry Bunyard is back from the golden west with his belt laden with many scalps.

H. H. Berger & Co. announce the heaviest early demand in their quarter century in the seed trade.

A. J. Fellouris has leased the entire building, 52 W. Twenty-eighth street, next door to A. L. Young & Co., and will open a branch of his business there next month. He is tireless and attentive to his business and deserves prosperity. Improvements of the place are in progress. It is a good stand.

Wm. Starke has leased the entire building at 52 W. Twenty-ninth street and will erect a conservatory.

The Hinode Co., at Whitestone, are erecting several new houses this spring and making rapid progress. They have a great stock for Easter, much of it already spoken for.

C. Bonnet, of Bonnet & Blake, Brooklyn, has had a week's tussle with the grip. His brother-in-law, John M. Lyons, the rose grower of Madison, was stricken last week with apoplexy and died the following day. Mrs. Blake and Mrs. Lyons are sisters.

The sympathy of the trade everywhere goes out to F. L. Moore and family, of Chatham, in the loss of their eldest son, Ralph C. Moore, 24 years of age, a student at Columbia College, a fine Greek scholar and a young man of splendid character and ability. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him and gave promise of a brilliant career.

The veteran, Samuel Henshaw, was in the city on Monday looking as young as ever after his winter's hibernating and overflowing with reminiscences. With Julius Roehrs, Jr., and Wm. Plumb he occupied the "amen corner" at Cleary's and regaled his listeners with tales of the potting shed that Jaggs would have envied.

An immense horseshoe of Richmond roses was shipped the first of the week by Frank Millang to a big store in Kalamazoo, Mich.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will take place Monday, March 12. It is ladies' night and will include a collation and musical entertainment. It is orchid night and a feature will be an illustrated lecture by Prof. Nash, of Bronx park, and a competitive exhibition by some of the best orchid growers of the country. Ex-President Traendly will be back from the meeting of the executive committee at Dayton, with news of the S. A. F. convention. The question box will be opened and the young folks will have an opportunity for dancing. Altogether this should be the biggest meeting the club has had. At 4 p. m. the outing committee will meet at Fenrich's new store, where Joe will keep open house.

A good many are talking Boston and the Rose Society's convention. The attendance from New York will be larger than at the carnation convention. Arrangements are contemplated for a union of all from this section and visitors from the west to go via the Fall River line the evening before. The fare is only $2 from New York to Boston and the steamers are palatial. The boat leaves at 5 p. m., so that westerners can make a note of this and arrange to arrive in time. cents. An average of 120 boxes daily indicates the great supply the market is called upon to receive. Bulbous stock is enormous in quantity and a lot of it from the south is now arriving.

Orchids are growing scarce and will be so from now on.

Various Notes.

Fern balls seem not yet to have gone out of fashion. In the seed stores they retail at 50 cents. In the department stores the same stock apparently is boomed at 25 cents. One of the most successful departments in these big stores is managed by Trefel, of Losier's, Brooklyn. He often handles 25,000 violets in a day, and carnations and narcissi in great abundance. Popular prices and judicious advertising are the secrets of his success.

Robert G. Wilson, of Brooklyn, will open a wholesale and retail store on West Thirtieth street, next door to McManus, with Arthur Dacre as manager. Mr. Wilson is a young man of great ambition and energy and will succeed.

The auctions begin at Elliott's Tuesday, when he will offer hardy roses and may write or wire J. Austin Shaw at 1310 Forty-ninth street, Brooklyn, a few days ahead and berths will be secured for them.

C. W. Ward was unexpectedly called west on Saturday and fears he will not be home again for some little time.

On Monday, March 12, at Madison, the Regan property, including the greenhouses, rose stock and everything connected with the business will be sold at public auction.

Moore, Hentz & Nash were headquarters early in the week for southern narcissi. The flowers were excellent, but the stems only half the length of the local product. At the price, every retailer in New York could have afforded a spring window on Monday.

J. K. Allen is receiving fine sweet peas from Zvolanek, of Bound Brook, the white and pink varieties being most in demand.

St. Patrick's day is near and naturally the evergreen shamrock is asserting itself in advance of the advent of the green carnation. At Guttman's there is an abundance of "the real thing" in the window. Mr. Guttman has already shipped over 150,000 cuttings of Victory and the call for them continues daily. He says the flowers hold firm at $6 to $8 per hundred at wholesale.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Lent came in as usual with a heavy slump in prices. To make matters worse the weather was severely cold and the fakers were unable to relieve any of the congestion. Conditions are now somewhat improved, but the market lacks stability, and while one day flowers clean out well, on the next day they are hard to move. Roses are coming in more plentifully. American Beauty shows a great improvement in quality at former prices, and the same is true of all other roses. Chatenay, Wellesley and Killarney are all showing up well and are among the best sellers.

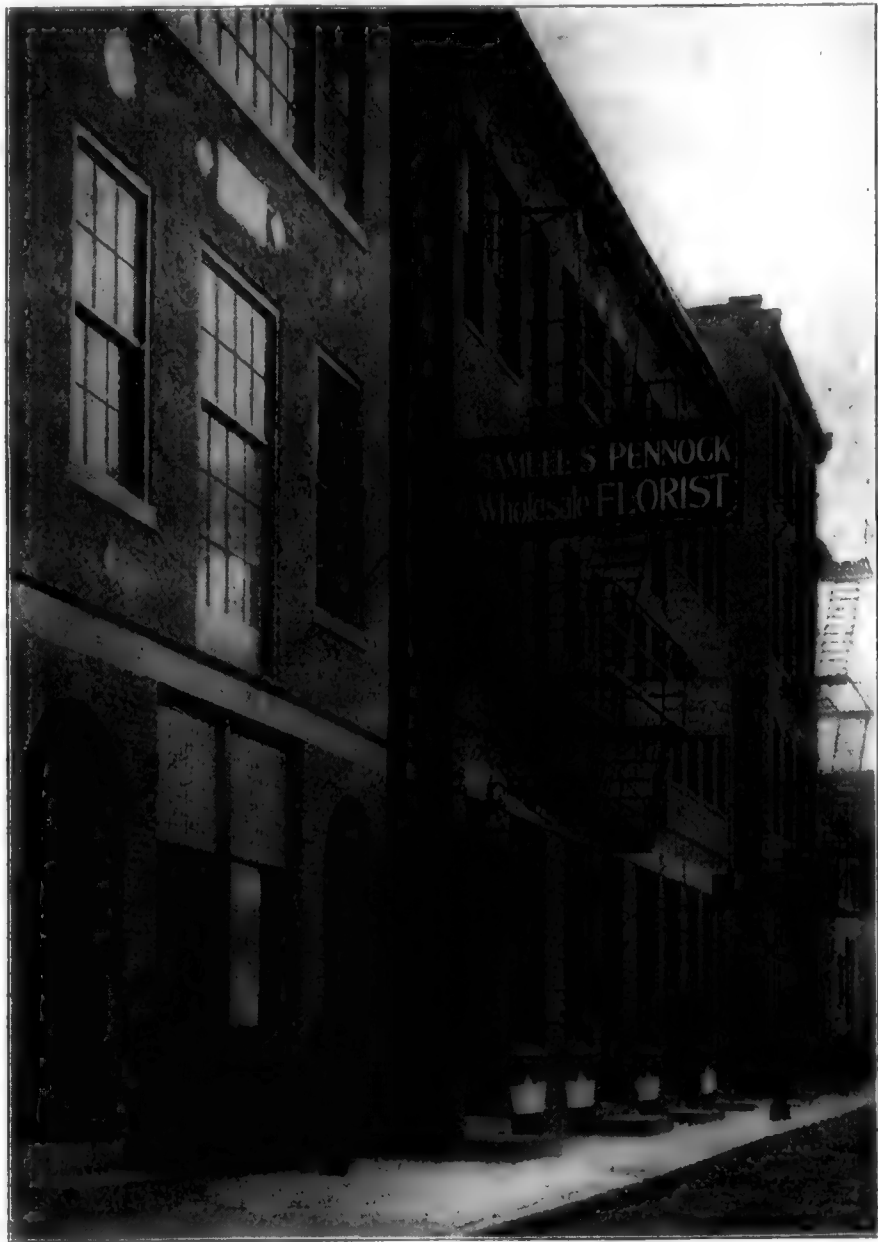

Carnations are in heavy supply and are lower all around. Enchantress is more seen than any other variety. Quite a number are now coming pale in color, however. Many growers still grow a lot of Fair Maid and it holds its color well. Violets are very abundant. A popular price has been 300 for $1, although some specials make up to 75 cents per hundred.

Bulbous stock is too abundant and a good deal of it is cleared at low figures. Emperor narcissus is less popular than Golden Spur. A good deal of Princeps is still grown, as it can be sold profitably at a low figure. Some very good antirrhinum, mignonette, anemones and other miscellaneous stock is seen. Lili-ums and callas continue very plentiful and there is no scarcity of green stock.

Various Notes.

"Tender flowers" was the subject at Horticultural hall on March 3. The discussion was opened by W. N. Craig, who spoke on a variety of desirable annuals for cut flowers and decorative effects. He was followed by Duncan Finlayson, A. H. Fewkes, H. Chapman, E. B. Wilder, James Wheeler, J. W. Manning, Robert Cameron, Charles Sander and others.

The lecturer at the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be Store of S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Showing New Addition.

David Lumsden. His subject will be "Plants and bulbs most in demand for the Easter trade." The date of the meeting will be March 20. It had been hoped that Alex. Montgomery, Jr., would speak on roses, but he is unable to do so and no other rosarian could be found to step into the breach.

Oscar L. Orr, of Sharon Heights, is one of the largest and most successful violet growers for the Boston market. He has two houses 25x330 devoted to them, nothing but Campbell being grown. These are on solid beds and in the pink of condition. The flowers are sold at the Park street market. Two houses 30x330 are devoted to cucumbers, and one 30x700, the latter being one of the largest of its kind in New England. Ground has been broken and material bought for an additional cucumber house 32x700. White Spine is exclusively grown and the produce is shipped to both New York and Boston. Mr. Orr also owns and manages a large truck farm. The greenhouses are heated by steam and wood is entirely used as fuel, there being an abundant supply on a near-by estate.

An unusually fine spring exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is expected in connection with the coming meeting of the American Rose Society. It will pay all prominent rose growers to be on hand for this exhibition and we hope exhibits will come from a wider area than ever before.

A good deal of Easter talk is now heard. Lilies appear to be an unusually clean lot and it looks as though there would be an adequate supply. It will be more and more a plant Easter and numerous growers are bending their energies to satisfy the increasing demand in this line.

Hamlio & Solomon, who have for some time been managing a flower store in Houghton & Dutton's, have dissolved partnership.

Quite a few bulb travelers are now making their rounds. We met the past week Charles Schwake, with C. F. Meyer, New York, and A. Ringier, with W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago.

E. Sutermeister is as usual handling quantities of extra fine hyacinths, tulips and narcissi in pans, in which he is one of our leading specialists.

J. S. Manter is handling fine Chatenay roses at Park street market for Exeter Rose Conservatories, Exeter, N. H.

John McFarland is again first in the market with hybrid roses, Brunner being his specialty. His valley is also of very good quality.

The wet weather on March 3 did not prevent a large delegation from the New England Market Gardeners' Association visiting the establishment of W. W. Rawson, of Arlington.

A. H. Hews & Co. report spring trade in flower pots and pans as unprecedentedly good. So great is the rush of orders that they have been obliged to call in all their agents who were on the road. Business from southern states is very good. They are considering plans for further increasing their output.

It is orchid night and a feature will be an illustrated lecture by Prof. Nash, of Bronx park, and a competitive exhibition by some of the best orchid growers of the country. Ex-President Traendly will be back from the meeting of the executive committee at Dayton, with news of the S. A. F. convention. The question box will be opened and the young folks will have an opportunity for dancing. Altogether this should be the biggest meeting the club has had. At 4 p. m. the outing committee will meet at Fenrich's new store, where Joe will keep open house.

A good many are talking Boston and the Rose Society's convention. The attendance from New York will be larger than at the carnation convention. Arrangements are contemplated for a union of all from this section and visitors from the west to go via the Fall River line the evening before. The fare is only $2 from New York to Boston and the steamers are palatial. The boat leaves at 5 p. m., so that westerners can make a note of this and arrange to arrive in time. THE WEEKLY
FLORISTS' REVIEW

It is well worth the price, even to those who only work for others. It has been a true friend that visited my home every Saturday. I congratulate every young man when The Review finds its way to his home.

Cromwell, Conn., Feb. 26, 1906.

cents. An average of 120 boxes daily indicates the great supply the market is called upon to receive. Bulbous stock is enormous in quantity and a lot of it from the south is now arriving.

Orchids are growing scarce and will be so from now on.

Various Notes.

Fern balls seem not yet to have gone out of fashion. In the seed stores they retail at 50 cents. In the department stores the same stock apparently is boomed at 25 cents. One of the most successful departments in these big stores is managed by Trefel, of Losier's, Brooklyn. He often handles 25,000 violets in a day, and carnations and narcissi in great abundance. Popular prices and judicious advertising are the secrets of his success.

Robert G. Wilson, of Brooklyn, will open a wholesale and retail store on West Thirtieth street, next door to McManus, with Arthur Diere as manager. Mr. Wilson is a young man of great ambition and energy and will succeed.

The auctions begin at Elliott's Tuesday, when he will offer hardy roses and may write or wire J. Austin Shaw at 1310 Forty-ninth street, Brooklyn, a few days ahead and berths will be secured for them.

C. W. Ward was unexpectedly called west on Saturday and fears he will not be home again for some little time.

On Monday, March 12, at Madison, the Regan property, including the greenhouses, rose stock and everything connected with the business will be sold at public auction.

Moore, Hentz & Nash were headquarters early in the week for southern narcissi. The flowers were excellent, but the stems only half the length of the local product. At the price, every retailer in New York could have afforded a spring window on Monday.

J. K. Allen is receiving fine sweet peas from Zvolanek, of Bound Brook, the white and pink varieties being most in demand.

St. Patrick's day is near and naturally the evergreen shamrock is asserting itself in advance of the advent of the green carnation. At Guttman's there is an abundance of "the real thing" in the window. Mr. Guttman has already shipped over 150,000 cuttings of Victory and the call for them continues daily. He says the flowers hold firm at $6 to $8 per hundred at wholesale.

J. AUSTIN SHAW.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Lent came in as usual with a heavy slump in prices. To make matters worse the weather was severely cold and the takers were unable to relieve any of the congestion. Conditions are now somewhat improved, but the market lacks stability, and while one day flowers clean out well, on the next day they are hard to move. Roses are coming in more plentifully. American Beauty shows a great improvement in quality at former prices, and the same is true of all other roses. Chateaux, Wellesley and Killarney are all showing up well and are among the best sellers.

Carnations are in heavy supply and are lower all around. Enchantress is more seen than any other variety. Quite a number are now coming pale in color, however. Many growers still grow a lot of Fair Maid and it holds its color well. Violets are very abundant. A popular price has been 300 for $1, although some specials make up to 75 cents per hundred.

Bulbous stock is too abundant and a good deal of it is cleared at low figures. Emperor narcissus is less popular than Golden Spear. A good deal of Princeps is still growing, as it can be sold profitably at a low figure. Some very good outirrhinum, mignonette, anemones and other miscellaneous stock is seen. Liliums and callas continue very plentiful and there is no scarcity of green stock.

Various Notes.

"Tender flowers" was the subject at Horticultural hall on March 3. The discussion was opened by W. N. Craig, who spoke on a variety of desirable annuals for cut flowers and decorative effects. He was followed by Duncan Finlayson, A. H. Powkes, H. Chapman, E. B. Wilder, James Wheeler, J. W. Manning, Robert Cameron, Charles Sander and others.

The lecturer at the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be

David Lumsden. His subject will be "Plants and bulbs most in demand for the Easter trade." The date of the meeting will be March 20. It had been hoped that Alex. Montgomery, Jr., would speak on roses, but he is unable to do so and no other rosarian could be found to step into the breach.

Oscar L. Orr, of Sharon Heights, is one of the largest and most successful violet growers for the Boston market. He has two houses 25x330 devoted to them, nothing but Campbell being grown. These are on solid beds and in the pink of condition. The flowers are sold at the Park street market. Two houses 30x330 are devoted to cucumbers, and one 30x700, the latter being one of the largest of its kind in New England. Ground has been taken and material bought for an additional cucumber house 32x700. White Stone is exclusively grown and the produce is shipped to both New York and Boston. Mr. Orr also owns and manages a large truck farm. The greenhouses are heated by steam and wood is entirely used as fuel, there being an abundant supply of a year by estate.

An unusually fine spring exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is expected in connection with the coming meeting of the American Rose Society. It will pay all prominent rose growers to be on hand for this exhibition and we hope exhibits will come from a wider area than ever before.

A good deal of Easter talk is now heard. Lilies appear to be an unusually clean lot and it looks as though there would be an adequate supply. It will be more and more a plant Easter and numerous growers are bending their energies to satisfy the increasing demand in this line.

Hamilio & Solomon, who have for some time been managing a flower store in Houghton & Dutton's, have dissolved partnership.

Quite a few bulb travelers are now making their rounds. We met the past week Charles Schwake, with C. E. Meyer, New York, and A. Ringier, with W. W. Barrard Co., Chicago.

E. Sutermeister is as usual handling quantities of extra fine hyacinths, tulips and narcissi in pans, in which he is one of our leading specialists.

J. S. Maister is handling fine Chateaux roses at Park street market for Exeter Rose Conservatories, Exeter, N. H.

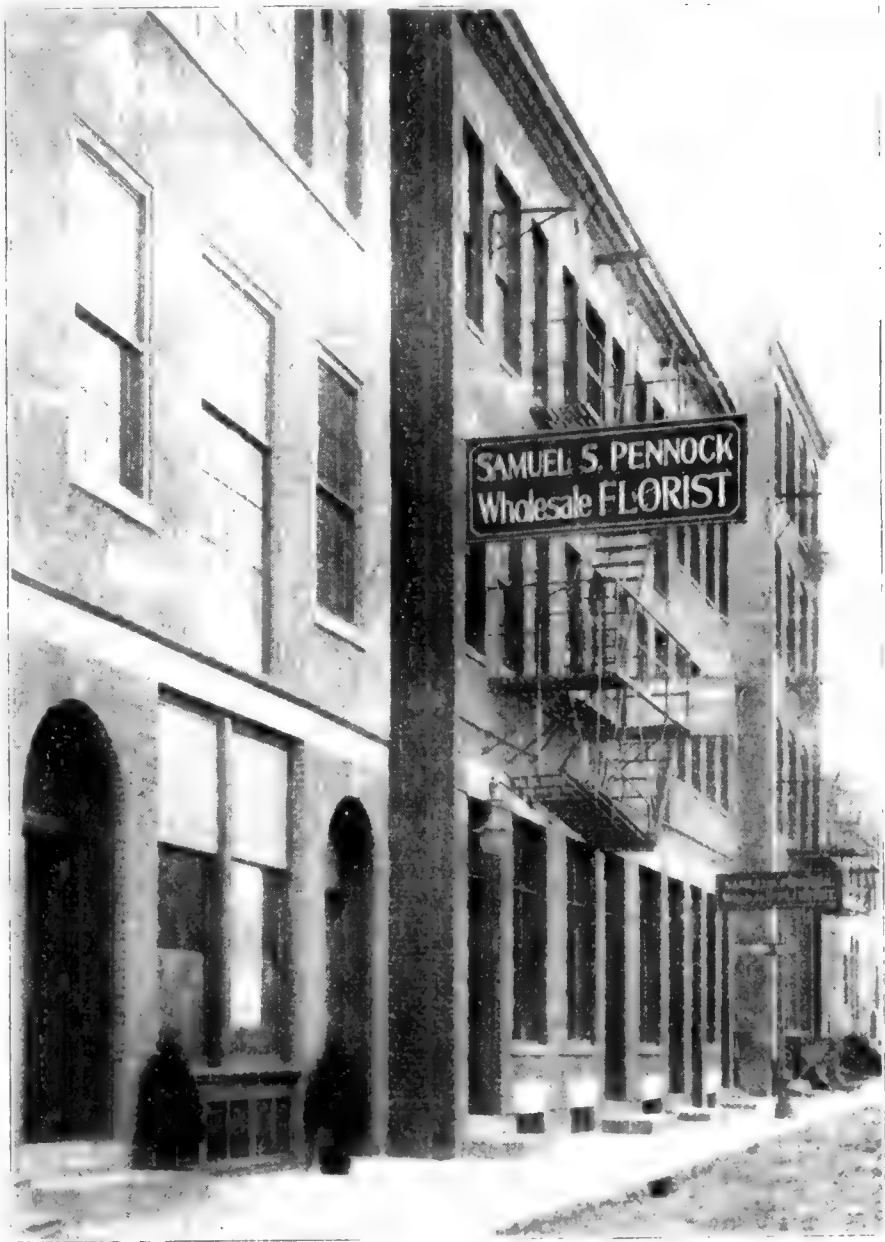

John McFarland is again first in the market with hybrid roses, Brunner being his specialty. His valley is also of very good quality.

The wet weather on March 4 did not prevent a large delegation from the New England Market Gardeners' Association visiting the establishment of W. W. Rayson, of Arlington.

A. H. Hays & Co. report strong trade in flower pots and pans, as, up to date, very good. So great is the rush of orders that they have been obliged to call in their agents, who were on the coast. Business from southern states is very good. They are considering plans for further increasing their output.

W. N. CRAIG.

I should not want to get along without the REVIEW, as I find a great many things in it that are a great help. I think it an excellent paper for all florists. F. W. Rice, Rathbone, Va.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—R. W. Zobel has sold his place at East End and McCallie avenues for building lots and will move away.

DENVER, COLO.—Maler & Dankworth are growing very good violets, but are endeavoring to still further improve their stock.

OXFORD, MICH.—A building 30x40 feet is to be added to the Oxford Greenhouses this spring and will be used as a palm room, show room and office.

.....BUSINESS AND OTHER NOTES.....

CONCORD, N. H.—E. H. Whitney says that the grass-growing heads, sometimes referred to as Uncle Theodore, have made quite a hit.

WINNIPEG, MAN.—The movement to have the anemone adopted as Manitoba's floral emblem has been again revived by the presentation to the legislature of a memorial on the subject by the Natural History Society.

GROTON, MASS.—S. H. Shattuck says he had considerable trouble with moles eating the tips of the fronds on Asparagus plumosus, but that rat bis-kit left at the base of the plants caused them to give him no further trouble save that of collecting the dead moles.

NEWCOMERTOWN, O.—J. W. Nicodemus has a white carnation that he has not been able to identify. The plant appeared in a bench of Lawson and won his solicitude by the fact that the flowers were not only large but nineteen buds were in sight at one time.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—Fisher & Rocklin is the style of a new firm which has established a place in the Boudeman block on South street. The members of the firm have each had a number of years' experience in Chicago among wholesalers and retailers. They will conduct a general business.

ST. CLOUD, MINN.—Paul Trzewik, formerly florist at Lakewood cemetery, Minneapolis, Minn., has purchased thirty acres of land across the road from Calvary cemetery, for $1,950. He will begin construction of his houses as soon as weather permits. He plans to supply flowers for grave decoration and for city trade.

RHINEBECK, N. Y.—There are approximately 100 establishments growing violets here. Ackert & Brown, who are themselves violet growers as well as contractors and builders, report that they have a number of orders booked for new places to be started in the spring, as well as several extensive additions to existing places.

AURORA, ILL.—The Aurora Greenhouse Co. is advertising a warning to its patrons to the effect that a Chicago "cold storage concern," by using a similar name, has endeavored to mislead the customers of the former company. The Aurora company announces that it has no interest in the flower stand on Downer place. This company has five greenhouses and J. H. Newhall is manager.

DURHAM, N. C.—Fred Roll says business has been all right so far, but he, too, is living in a 30-cent town and the people expect from a florist almost anything from cabbage seed to a bridal bouquet. He has 4,000 square feet of glass and grows mostly carnations, Crusader, Flamingo and Estelle for red; Indianapolis and Lawson for dark pink, Lord and Enchantress for light, Wolcott, White Lawson and White Cloud for white. He would grow more of a good white one, but has first to try for one that will do well.

EDWARDSVILLE, ILL.—J. F. Ammann has leased the Barnett building on St. Louis street and will establish a city retail department, stock being supplied daily from his greenhouses. He will open about March 15.

ORION, MICH.—Preparations are being made to improve the Orion Greenhouse by the addition of several more houses, bringing the total up to fifteen houses. A large wholesale business is conducted with roses and carnations as specialties.

NEW CASTLE, IND.—Ivan Margason, a grower for the South Park Floral Co., was highly indignant when arrested recently charged with being drunk. He proved that he had had only one bottle of beer and considered the charge a reflection on his capabilities. The justice discharged him.

SHIPPENSBURG, PA.—The Byer Floral Co. has changed its name to The Shippensburg Floral Co. The change was deemed advisable as mail intended for this company was often misdirected to Byer Bros. in Chambersburg, Pa., and vice versa. There is no change in the personnel of the company.

FT. WAYNE, IND.—Mrs. Anger had a fine vase of the new rose Miss Kate Moulton on exhibition in her store window and it was much admired by all local florists. The trade thinks very highly of it. The Glendale carnation, grown by W. J. & M. S. Vesey, has proven itself an excellent keeper and shipper.

BUTTE, MONT.—Victor Siegel, chief gardener at the Columbia Gardens, and Wm. Cockayne, the florist, have been trying their hands at raising seedling carnations and have a white, as a result of a cross of Enchantress and Higinbotham, which they think has a commercial future. It has been named for the daughter of the manager of the Gardens and street railroad, Miss Jessie Wharton.

FREMONT, NEBR.—C. H. Green has been cutting much good stock, but the demand has been a little more than equal to the supply. Prices are satisfactory. He is planning to build some new houses this summer and put in a larger boiler. He has at present 16,000 square feet of glass, in bedding stock and cut flowers, also 200 sash and seventeen acres in truck and small fruit. Everything points to a big season's business.

CADILLAC, MICH.—D. Kleinhans, of the firm of Kleinhans & Mason, has sold his interest to Henry S. Mason, of Ithaca, Mich, father of the junior member of the firm. R. A. Mason, associated with his father, will continue the business which has grown rapidly since it was first established two years ago. The new firm expects to enlarge the plant the coming season and to otherwise make improvements. The firm name will be R. A. Mason & Co. Mr. Kleinhans has located in St. Louis, Mich., and is making preparations to erect about 4,000 square feet of glass this year with necessary additions as the trade demands. He will grow a general stock.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The market has not recovered from the depression which by a few days preceded the advent of Lent. The local trade is fairly active by comparison with recent weeks, but shipping demand has been light in the past seven days. At the same time supplies of stock are not so large but that a little spurt in business would serve to clean up the market. As it is, the receipt of a few good shipping orders serves to take all the stock usually on hand in the fortunate house.

There are larger supplies of Beauties and also of Brides and Maids and prices on these items are a notch lower than they were in the past fortnight. Red roses are also slightly more abundant. There is considerable call for the shorter stemmed stock, but the heads must be good.

The receipts of carnations have not increased materially but stocks on hand are much larger because of light demand. The result has been that last week some very low prices were taken for large lots and the same condition promises to prevail later in this week. Most of the wholesalers are carrying carnations over each night. It is seldom that the market has had better stock than at present. Nearly all the carnation growers are cutting fine flowers. Here and there complaint is heard as to a lack of keeping qualities.

No flower has felt the weakening effect of present market conditions so greatly as has the violet. If the Hudson river growers are realizing less in New York than they are in Chicago at present, the incentive to build new houses will not be great. It was no uncommon thing in the past week to have very fair Hudson river violets sell at 10 cents per bunch of fifty, $2 per thousand, and many sales must have been made for less, as a number of Greeks were offering violets at retail at that price or little more. At the same time the really fancy stock brought much better figures, 75 cents per hundred being about the top. The fragrant, home-grown singles have made better averages than the imported stock.

Practically all bulbous stock is in over-supply. Easter lilies still hold their own fairly well, but the demand is light and supplies ample. Callas are abundant and promise to shortly become a glut. There are large quantities of tulips and only the best bring fair prices. White tulips, if cheap enough, are taken for funeral use. Poor tulips in colors do not sell for much. Some fine Dutch hyacinths are seen, but very few Romans and Paper Whites are not so abundant. Freesia is practically out of the market.

The green goods market is suffering a slight relapse. There is complaint that ferns coming from cold storage require much picking over. There are large quantities on hand and the dealers are anxious to move them.

Insult to Injury.

A story widely circulated last week was to the effect that Fred Kaeding was charged with stealing $580 from the trunk of an employee at Poehlmann's. The fact was that the money was stolen from Mr. Kaeding and that for the theft Andrew Miller has been indicted by the grand jury. Mr. Kaeding recovered $531 of his savings and paid $40 reward to the officers who got it for him. It is certainly rank injustice to report a man as stealing his own money. Mr. Kaeding is a good grower and valued employee at Poehlmannville.

Various Notes.

The perennial debate in the market culminated Tuesday in the interested parties taking the familiar advice to "hire a hall." About two dozen retailers and wholesalers got together at Handel hall and the free expression of opinion doubtless did much to correct the many abuses in the business.

The Florists' Club's annual carnation show is on today at room 531 Atlas block. This evening the club will meet as usual in Handel hall. There are a number of applications for membership to be acted upon and a general discussion of carnations is announced.

It is stated that Ernst Kramer and a partner will build seven houses each 310 feet long at Wilmette, presumably for vegetables.

The George Wittbold Co. believes in making full use of its space. At the city establishment the houses occupied by palms have been filled with Boston ferns hanging from the sash bars. There are seventeen rows of plants in most of the houses and the additional weight is something like four tons on each roof. Three crops a year can be grown in this manner.

Singler Bros., at Morgan Park, are sending some unusually good Lawsons to Kennicott Bros. Co. The stems are remarkable for their length.

Peter Reinberg assisted in the passage of the $1,000 saloon license ordinance in the city council Monday night.

Anton Then has 6,000 plants of longiflorum coming on for Easter. They are in very good shape.

Sinner Bros. have not only taken in coal enough for the present season, but have seven car-loads stacked up, over which a shed is being built to protect it for next season's requirements. They do not propose to be caught napping in case of a coal strike.

Bassett & Washburn are still putting more than 1,000 Richmond cuttings in the sand every day. They now have 35,000 in and report them rooting splendidly. O. P. Bassett and wife are now at Augusta, Ga.

M. Rockland, who has for a long time been employed at Hunt's and Harry Fisher, who is well known around the market, have opened a retail store at Kalamazoo and are doing nicely. Mr. Rockland will retain his position at Hunt's for a time.

George Reinberg reports the rooted cutting business to date as better than last year. He is propagating heavily in anticipation of the demand continuing for several months.

P. J. Hauswirth and George Asmus were at Dayton the first of this week to attend the meeting of the board of directors of the S. A. F. Mr. Hauswirth is a director.

E. F. Winterson spent Sunday afternoon at Indianapolis. He has been putting in his spare time the past fortnight in drumming up exhibits for the club's carnation show this week. C. W. Stewart is the last addition to the staff of the Winterson Co.

his trip to New Orleans and the Mardi Gras. He reports that the absence of New Orleans business noted at Chicago was only the reflection of a falling off in the retail business done for Mardi Gras. He reports that Harry Papworth's new plant at New Orleans is turning out roses with first-class heads but that they have not yet been able to get the stem. F. P. Phil Schupp, of Budlong's, says that there is a good demand for carnation plants from soil for early delivery.

August Poehlmann says that the business of the Poehlmann Bros. Co. for the last half of 1905 was very much better than any previous period, the summer months being more than double what they had ever been before. Since January 1 he says the business has just about been holding its own, but it must be taken into consideration that they are not this year doing the cutting business as formerly because they need the stock for planting their own new range of over a quarter of a million feet of glass. Mr. Poehlmann says that it is indisputable that cuts this year are not as heavy as usual. He attributes the deficiency in carnations to the overdose of water in the wet summer of last year.

In this column last week it was stated that "the A. L. Randall Co. is handling apple blossoms and bridal wreath spiraea from Emil Buettner." They had the goods, all right, but it happens that the bridal wreath was grown by J. F. Klimmer instead of Mr. Buettner.

It is the building in which the Florists' Club meets on the second Thursday of each month and where the Retail Florists' Association meets on the fourth Thursday. The building is already partly occupied by the Field business. Eventually it will be entirely given over to it. With the addition of this property, the Field estate owns the entire square with the exception of the sixteen-story Trude building, the basement of which is occupied by E. C. Amling.

W. L. Palinsky is preparing to erect two houses early in the spring, each 20x100, to be devoted to pot-plants.

Emil Buettner has a deep pink sport of Enchantress of which he has sufficient stock so that the cut flowers are being marketed. The center of the flower is a rich pink, the edges of the petals retaining the Enchantress color. It makes a very attractive combination.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Prices have a downward tendency, the quantity of flowers this week being much larger than last, while business is lighter. Beauties are still far from plentiful, prices having weakened but little on really good stock. The other strong items on the list are sweet peas (S. S. Pennock's fancy colors continue to lead the market, while the general average of quality is high) and orchids, the Leo Niessen Co. having some exquisite pink and white sprays, greatly prized for choice work. White flowers have been in demand on several days, ordinary carnations and short-stemmed Bride roses realizing good prices. Fancy carnations have been in oversupply, but they are so good that most of them can be sold at fair prices. The greatest decline has been in bulbous stock, the arrival of southern daffodils causing a break in the price of greenhouse-grown flowers.

Club Meeting.

It was rose night at the Florists' Club Tuesday evening, March 6. The western belle, Miss Kate Moulton, left Minneapolis Saturday, arriving here Tuesday. The rose growers came to welcome her. Glendale and J. E. Haines carnations were also present, from W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind., and John Haines, Bethlehem, Pa. After the reading of Paul Huebner's paper on railroad gardening, Antoine Wintzer spoke interestingly on cannas. P. Joseph Lynch made a brilliant plea for the American rose, asking for it the support of every rose grower. The attendance was large.

A New Department.

It is generally known that the great establishment of the Henry A. Dreer Co., at Riverton, N. J., is divided into a half dozen or more departments. The palm foreman struggles with the fern foreman to secure some much coveted space in the latter's houses needed for shifting young kentias, while the man in charge of the soft-wooded stock makes an earnest plea for a few benches needed by the man who grows the perennials. It requires no small diplomacy to settle these matters, and in future even more diplomacy will be required, for a new department has been added at Riverton. Two large greenhouses were finished on January 9 (I wonder whether you'll find this anywhere else). One is now full of dahlias, nicely started, with cuttings in a condition to tempt the propagator's knife. The other has been temporarily claimed by the fern man for a few hundred thousand of his seedlings, but its ultimate purpose is the propagation of dahlias and for this purpose it will soon be devoted.

A farm of seventy acres has been purchased halfway between Riverton and Moorestown. The soil is heavier than at Riverton. This farm will be devoted to the growing of dahlias and perennials, so that in future the Dreer nurseries will grow their own dahlias entirely, instead of drawing on other sources for their dahlia roots.

Among the many other things of interest pointed out by Geo. A. Strohle in an afternoon's ramble were Nephrolepis Whitmanii. The original plant has improved greatly in appearance. There was a batch of young plants of this variety being prepared for a European trip next month. Cocos Weddelliana is being grown in larger quantities. One long bench will be reserved for specimen plants in 4-inch to 6-inch pots. This palm makes beautiful specimens in medium sizes, for which, it is believed, a demand can be created.

A range of twelve houses, perhaps 20x200 each, entirely filled with something like 100,000 hardy roses, double decked, all correctly labeled and ready for the opening of spring, was a sight.

In the houses devoted to miscellaneous plants, a myrtle-leaved smilax was very beautiful. Two large flowered varieties of ageratum, Princess Pauline, blue with white center, and a soft blue, called, I think, Incomparable, were pleasing. This collection embraces nearly all of the best greenhouse and bedding plants in general cultivation, the newer varieties of merit being grown instead of old favorites; for instance, in geraniums, the sensational scalloped variety, Telegraph.

The packing shed at Riverton has been doubled in size, to give needed room during the rush which is already beginning. A neat, labor-saving device is a label rack, each compartment being filled with neatly printed labels of each variety of plant to be sent out. The delphiniums, dahlias and other plants so much sought after in sets by the American flower loving public were especially prominent.

The Source of Supply.

Everybody wants to know where the Leo Niessen Co. obtained its Beauties during February, when Beauties were almost unobtainable. Nearly all the big guns were off crop, growers who had been depended upon for Beauties in midwinter, and whose success had made Philadelphia Beauties famous over the entire Atlantic seaboard. This February not one of these growers could boast enough stock to count for anything in the market. It was even said that the large growers were content to divide Beauties in less than dozen lots among their customers, incredible as it may seem that a grower of from 5,000 to 10,000 plants could have to dole out his specials in threes and sixes. During all this time the aforesaid L. N. Co. was accepting orders for fifties, hundreds and in one case, as mentioned in the REVIEW, for 500 fancy Beauties. So Phil was sent out to Wyndmoor to see the plants that had done so much to make this result possible.

Geo. Burton has worked very hard this winter. He has worked to some purpose. Not only was Christmas profitable with him, but he had a good January and a February that so far exceeded that of 1905 and of 1904 that I hardly like to give the figures, lest even Phil's word would be doubted. The place of perhaps 40,000 feet of glass is a Beauty place par excellence; about three-quarters of the space is devoted to this grand rose, the remaining quarter being divided between Meteor, which will be discarded this year, through no fault of the rose or its productiveness; Golden Gate, which will be continued, and Uncle John, a pretty sport from Gate rarely seen near this city.

The Beauties are grown both in ground beds and in benches and are remarkably vigorous, there being little blind wood and many heavy shoots. Mr. Burton believes that the six weeks of Lent will mark his lightest cut since November, but even so, his cut will not be so very light. The stock of coal for next season has been secured. A piece of forethought makes Mr. Burton independent of coal strikes.

DAYTON, OHIO.

Death of Fred'k W. Ritter.

On the evening of March 1 Dayton lost her oldest florist in the death of Frederick W. Ritter, father of H. H. Ritter. Mr. Ritter was 93 years of age and for eighty years was a practical florist. For the past half century he lived in Dayton. Death was the result of injuries suffered February 23, in a fall down stairs. It was thought at first he would recover, but the shock to his nervous system was too great for the old gentleman to bear. He made his home with his son, H. H. Ritter, and it was here that the accident occurred. His death marks the passing away of another of Dayton's substantial German pioneers who came here in the early history of the city and assisted in building it to its present metropolitan proportions.

Mr. Ritter was born in Leipsic, Germany, on July 13, 1813, and in July next would have been 93 years of age. Up to a recent period Mr. Ritter was possessed of robust health, and barring accident, promised to reach the century mark. He came to Dayton August, 1852, and for fifty years past had resided on Grand avenue. He was continuously in the florist business for eighty years, a remarkable business record, and one seldom attained in any line of trade or profession.

Mr. Ritter's wife died twenty-eight years ago. He is survived by four chil-

BUFFALO.

Meeting and Exhibition.

The meeting of the Florists' Club, February 27, was largely attended and very interesting, the carnation show bringing the members from far and near. It was the largest attendance in the history of the club and every one was jubilant. There was only one change made in the election of officers and that was for vice-president, consequently there was no time lost in balloting. The officers for the next year are as follows: President, L. H. Neubeck; vice-president, H. Wise; secretary, Wm. J. Peake; treasurer, Chas. H. Keitsch; financial secretary, E. Brucker; trustees, Wm. Scott, W. F. Kasting and Prof. Cowell.

The carnation show was a decided success. The committee, Wm. Scott, W. F. Kasting and Chas. H. Keitsch, had done good work, as it eclipsed anything the club ever attempted.

Of new varieties staged by F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., Winsor scored 92 points; Helen Gould, 80. John E. Haines, shown by J. E. Haines, Bethlehem, Pa., scored 89. My Maryland, staged by Weber & Sons Co., Oakland, Md., scored 88; Jessica, 92 points. Pink Lawson, from Palmer & Son, Lancaster, N. Y., scored 81 points. Glendale, from W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind., scored 87 points. New sorts from Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., scored as follows: J. A. Valentine, 84; Sky Rocket, 86; Imperial, 88; Seedling No. 49, 84 points.

Besides these new varieties there was a large showing of well grown stock, as follows: Variegated Lawson and White Lawson, by F. R. Pierson Co. Lawson and Enchantress, by White Bros. Patten, Glendale, Haines, Prosperity, White Lawson and Red Lawson, Mrs. Lawson, Lieut. Peary, Cardinal, Crusader and Harlowarden, by the Chicago Carnation Co. Cardinal, Red Lawson, Nelson, Golden Beauty, by Wm. Ehmann, Corfu. A large vase of assorted carnations, by the Wm. Scott Co., Buffalo, which was especially fine. They also showed very elegant giant mignonette. A vase of Gov. Wolcott, from C. T. Guenther, Hamburg, N. Y., received special mention. Mr. Vennemann, gardener to Geo. Urban, Jr., showed a vase of thirty carnations, no two alike, also a handsome selection of cyclamens, for which he received great credit. A vase of Melody, a light pink sport of Lawson, shown by W. C. Hill Floral Co., Streator, Ill., was admired. A vase of a white seedling from G. B. Hart, Rochester, received favorable comment.

A vase of the Wellesley rose, from the Waban Conservatories, Natick, Mass., was especially fine, also a vase of Kate Moulton roses, from the Minneapolis Floral Co., was admired by all. Several vases of sweet peas, from A. C. Zvolanek, Bound Brook, N. J., were highly complimented.

Last but not least, the banquet in the evening was a hummer. We all met at the German American hall, 8 p. m., and from then on to midnight feasted on the best. There were toasts and speeches all around and every one was happy.

Current Comment.

The chief event last week was our club exhibition of carnations on Tuesday. For those who did not see the Boston show it was a great treat. It is true we missed several wonders that made such a mark at Boston, but for those who could not comply with our request we will gladly "take the will for the deed," for we realize that for the last month there have been incessant calls on the good nature of the seedling raisers. We missed the brilliant scarlet Robert Craig, the aristocratic Aristocrat and gold medal winner, Elsa Struss.

The opinion of all present was that the best thing in the show was Winsor. It seems about ideal in its color and there is room for it. People are getting a little tired of the Lawson shade. John E. Haines made a good show and so did My Maryland. Helen Gould did not score high. Its color is off and we have locally a better sport of Enchantress.

From the Veseys, of Fort Wayne, came a fine vase of Glendale, a very fine variegated flower. From Richard Witterstaetter arrived a fine lot, among them J. A. Valentine. Mr. Hartshorne did nobly and sent fine vases of nearly a dozen leading varieties.

Local growers added considerably, with fine flowers. W. J. Palmer & Son exhibited a nice lot of a pleasing shade of Lawson sport. It is as near as possible a Joost Lawson and, of course, it being a Lawson will be sure to make it popular. If Barney Meyers, Mr. Palmer's superintendent, can assure us that it is as free and healthy as his Red Lawson he has struck it rich. Wm. Ehmann, of Corfu, sent Cardinal in fine shape and many other standard varieties. David Scott, of Corfu, put up a vase consisting of a half dozen leading varieties, among them flowers of Enchantress the best in the hall, also some superb mignonette. Charles Guenther staged good Gov. Wolcott, so some people can grow this variety. White Bros., of Gasport, sent several vases of fine flowers.

We were treated to a sight of several new varieties of winter flowering sweet peas, from Mr. Zvolanek, among them a fine lavender and, last, but by no means least, the Wellesley rose, from the Waban Conservatory, and Kate Moulton, from the Minneapolis Floral Co. Both these roses were finely packed, made a grand show and were greatly admired.

A pleasing change was a group of finely grown cyclamens, from Geo. Urban, Theodore Vennemann, gardener. They were all good and well grown, but a pure white variety was of extraordinary merit.

After an intermission of two hours we assembled again at the German American hall, where Louis H. Neubeck at the head of the table and about fifty members and visitors listened to the more or less windy effusion that followed. Then came cigars and coffee. It was generally complained that the supper room was cold, but Mr. Urban provided an effectual antidote for the chills which it was no great effort to reach. We were much gratified to see so many visitors from surrounding towns.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Trade among the retailers the past week was first-class. Now that Lent has set in, no doubt business will drop off somewhat with the up-town florists, as there will be no more large weddings and receptions to furnish for awhile. With the down-town florists Lent hardly makes much difference, as the counter trade and funeral work will keep on just the same. The wholesalers have enjoyed a splendid shipping trade up to last week, but this, too, has fallen off now.

Stock is coming in more plentifully each day and the wholesalers fear a big glut in the next ten days. It has already begun in the case of carnations. Extra fine stock is down to $2 per hundred and $10 buys a thousand good carnations in all varieties. Stock from Kirkwood and Clayton is as good as any that comes to this market.

Roses have been off crop for some time, but from now on the market will have plenty. Bulbous stock, too, is becoming a glut. Only Dutch hyacinths of the lighter shades and fancy tulips are selling well. Romans, valley, Paper Whites, daffodils and freesias are too many for the demand. Callas and Harrisii sell well.

Violets are not any too many just now and the growers say that by Easter they will be very scarce. Joe Hauser, of Webster Groves, is sending in a fine lot to Berning.

Asparagus is in demand. Smilax is selling slowly. Common ferns were very scarce the past week, all wholesale houses being out of them at the same time.

Various Notes.

Paul Berkowitz and his charming wife, of Philadelphia, were visitors on Saturday, calling on the trade.

W. E. Burrows, who went to Peoria, Ill., to attend the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, has returned and reports the meeting postponed until March 9.

Articles of association and the new by-laws have been issued by the committee appointed by the club. A copy will be mailed to each member this week with the regular notices of the club meeting.

JOLIET, ILL.

James Hartshorne, manager of the Chicago Carnation Co., has rarely won a trophy which has given him so much pleasure as capturing the challenge cup of the Toronto Gardeners' and Florists' Club for the third successive year. It was previously won by Fiancee and this year by Aristocrat. The addition of this trophy to the Chicago Carnation Co.'s collection pleases them particularly because they were not able to make a selection of flowers for exhibition. It took all the blooms they could cut to make up the required number. Young stock of Aristocrat is arriving in very nice shape and with a favorable growing season the variety will be ready for the inspection of the trade early in the fall.

All the stock is looking well and a good cut is being made. A great variety of business is now being done at this establishment. Of course the bulk of the business is in shipping cut flowers direct from the greenhouses, but a considerable quantity of stock is marketed each day at the company's stand with the E. F. Winterson Co., 45 Wabash avenue, Chicago. In addition there is the local retail store and the outlet for the small proportion of stock which does not grade up to the first class. The roses are showing as well as the carnations and in addition to the wholesale and retail trade in cut flowers there is a large business in carnation cuttings and rose plants, which are shipped all over the country.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Another touch of winter visited us during the past week, but the weather is moderating again and it is a question whether we will have any more cold weather this year. This winter has been a mild one, but still there is very little difference noted in the amount of coal used. The expense has been about the same.

Business has been moving along in a quiet sort of way. The Lenten season has made itself felt. This is always noticeable at the beginning of Lent, but after a couple of weeks pass by trade begins to pick up.

The supply of stock is on the increase in all lines except roses and green goods. Roses have been scarcely equal to the demand. White ones are especially short in supply and a good many orders cannot be filled. Pink ones are about equal to the demand. American Beauties are in fairly good demand, with prices holding out firmly. Chatenay is having a good run and some fine stock is seen.

Red roses other than Beauty are scarce and have been so all of this season. There is a good demand for them, but the supply is never equal to it.

The supply of carnations was heavy during the past week and a good many more were received than were sold. Some very good stock found its way to the dump. The keeping qualities were none of the best. The blooms seemed to be soft and, if they were not sold the first day, they had to be consigned to the dump. Some very good stock met its fate that way.

Bulbous stock is doing first-class now. Good Harrisii lilies are selling well. Callas are also going nicely. Valley, Romans, narcissus, tulips and Dutch hyacinths are all sharing in the demand. Some good freesia is to be had, but it sells very poorly and does not pay in this market. Smilax is scarce and other green goods are none too plentiful.

Various Notes.

The committee in charge of the banquet following our carnation show Saturday, March 10, reports that it will be held at the Business Men's Club at 6:30 p. m. sharp. ister with the secretary. Letters have been received from several out of town florists stating their intention to be present. It is expected that the show will be well worth seeing this year.

Geo. Durban, a grower from Clifton, has rented a stand in the Flower Market.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

The cut flower business was at its best the first of the week and the closing days of the season were all that could be expected, but with the first day of Lent the change was noticeable and prices commenced to decline slightly. However, the last few years the Lenten season has not been the great bugaboo which it was in former years; in fact, the last two years, there were more flowers used, only at cheaper prices, than immediately before Lent. Stock of all kinds is becoming more plentiful every day and we must expect that values will decline.

Various Notes.

Geo. A. McWilliams, of Natrona, has bought a farm of seventy-five acres, all underlaid with coal, back of Tarentum. He expects to put up a range of houses this summer for growing cut flowers. The great number of mills and manufacturing which are coming into his vicinity are making too much smoke to grow cut flowers.

The beginning of Lent does not seem to bother Blind Bros., as they worked day and night on funeral work during the last of the week.

Miss Agnes L. Wells, of Steubenville, Ohio, sailed Monday with a party of friends for a six months' trip through Europe.

E. C. Ludwig's stand in the Allegheny Market is a thing of beauty these days. Ernest makes a great show and has everything that is in the market in sight.

W. D. Faulk, of McKees Rocks, would like to dispose of his McKees Rocks store, as his other business is now taking all his time.

The Pittsburgh Florists' Exchange is preparing to move into new quarters in the very near future.

Tuesday will be rose night at the Florists' Club.

H. Glenn Flemming, of Fairmont,

W. Va., has a novel feature in connection with his place. He has a range of eight greenhouses and directly under the greenhouses is a coal mine, the entrance to which is from the boiler rooms. His night man digs the coal and hauls it out during the night. He also has a car arranged to hold the vases of flowers which are loaded on the car and run into the mine instead of into a refrigerator, and claims he can keep stock, when necessary, twice as long as in refrigerators and have it in much better condition.

Wm. Lauch is shipping the cut of his New Galilee place to the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.

J. B. Murdock & Co. are handling some very good roses and carnations.

Dutch bulb growers are very much in evidence these days, but the growers are a little shy.

Geo. L. Huscroft opened his new store, 114 North Fourth street, Steubenville, O., last Saturday. He has an elegant, large room. The prevailing color is dark green with palm decorations on the wall. The effect is beautiful and the store is strictly up to the requirements of a first-class city flower shop.

PRICE OF GLASS.

On March 5 the American Window Glass Co., which is the largest single factor in the glass trade, announced a raise practically of five per cent in prices. Many similar manufacturers followed the lead of the American and, as the American management shows signs of believing that the situation is more or less in its own hands, a further advance may be anticipated.

LOOKS LIKE S. A. NUTT.

We mail you under separate cover a branch of geranium with blossom and would regard it as a favor if you will tell us what it is. It is a short, bushy plant and is very similar to Mme. Barney in habits and growth. P. G.

The foliage of the geranium was much shriveled up when received, and the flower was not enough developed to be certain about the variety. It looks very like the well-known S. A. Nutt, about the best dark scarlet geranium we have. That is the best guess I can make today. W. S.

O. C. THOMPSON, Albert Lea, Minn., has organized the Thompson Seed Co., and offers the farmers of the northwest an opportunity to buy its seed and its capital stock.

A LIVERPOOL, England, concern, called the Co-operative Bees, Ltd., issues a seed catalogue of 200 pages, listing over 5,000 varieties and every species and variety mentioned may be had in penny packets.

It is stated that districts in Tennessee and northern Alabama are this year planting thousands of acres of cantaloupes. Interested parties assert that this new district is soon to become the principal cantaloupe region of the country.

THE mail order seed houses are reporting business far ahead of last year to date. In general they are of the opinion that this gain will be all to the good, the experience of the majority of them being that orders continue to be sent in right up to the limit of the planting season.

THERE seems to be no dropping off in the volume of business done by the wholesalers. It was thought that the demand for early shipments due to the open weather would make the rush season shorter than common. This is not the case, however, and a considerable increase over last year's business is sure to be a result.

FRANK J. RIES, formerly with the Goodwin-Harres Co., and later the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, is now secretary and manager for the recently incorporated Bromfield, Colvin, Ries Co., Bay City, Mich. The corporation has taken over the contract seed growing end of the business of Bromfield & Colvin, and the plan is to develop it along the lines of Michigan specialties.

ROCHESTER SEED NOTES.

Late deliveries of western stock, cucumbers, melons, sweet and field corns, etc., have greatly hampered the seed trade, but, while enjoying excellent business, much exceeding last year's, of course they must have their annual growl regarding the free distribution of seeds by the Washington authorities. Surely the seed merchants have had their quota of stern attention from the United States government.

Mandeville & King report an encouraging increase over last year, and the other seedsmen have put their stores in readiness for the impending rush. Prospects are bright and hopes are high for a record season. F. P.

EUROPEAN SEED NOTES.

Complaints of damage done to crops through weather extremes in England are very prevalent, especially to the turnip and similar field crops. It is not unlikely that yields of all these will be very light indeed during harvest of 1906. Many fields will be a very patchy crop and in some cases are almost totally destroyed. The stocks of turnip, swede and similar lines have been so exceptionally heavy the last few years that a light crop one or two seasons will do more good than harm to the market; in fact, many merchants say it is just what is wanted to bring prices to a profitable level. Reports say the growers are already holding out for a better price for contract crops, although the yearling seed stock of the country is probably a very heavy one and quite sufficient to keep prices from going up much.

In a look round Mark Lane seed market the general impression is that there is very little doing. Some exceptionally fine samples of marigold were offered but at figures at which they received scant attention. Some samples of clover were offered, but at high figures. No doubt owing to the unfavorable crop reports of these and similar lines, holders of stocks are asking the very top figures, while buyers will not satisfy more than their immediate requirements at present market rates, but sooner or later they will have to buy, and if the crop reports are anywhere near correct holders will have no need to reduce prices.

The seed potato trade is dead. Thousands of tons are rotting. Disease is more rampant this year than ever, and instead of the recent boom of new and disease-resisting varieties doing any good, it has acted just the reverse. It is only what might have been expected, considering how excessively these boomed sorts were propagated. B. J.

HANDLING SEED CORN.

The proper care and handling of seed corn is a very important part of its preparation for use. The low vitality of seed corn so frequently shown in the spring when the germination tests are made is due in many cases to improper handling and storing during the fall and winter months. The stand, the thriftiness of the plants, and, in consequence, the yield, depend largely upon proper storage. During the past two seasons the Iowa Experiment Station examined a large number of samples of seed corn secured from different parts of the state and found that, on the average, these samples fell far below the standard of vitality. and frequently one kernel on an ear would grow while the next one to it would not. This condition is considered as probably due to slow, imperfect ripening and insufficient drying in the fall; to improper storage during fall and winter, and to unusually cold weather late in November and early in December, which killed or weakened the germ by freezing the kernels while they still contained considerable moisture. The seed corn that had been stored in dry and well-ventilated places before October 20 was found to be in good condition.

During the last season more than 3,300 samples of seed corn from different parts of Iowa, each sample being made up of 200 kernels taken from 100 ears of seed corn, were given careful germination tests at the station with the result that only about sixty per cent of this corn showed sufficient vitality for field planting, while approximately twenty per cent gave a weak germination and the rest did not germinate at all.

T. L. Lyon, of the Nebraska Station, found that seed corn put in an ordinary crib and stored there over winter showed in a field test the following spring only

NOTES FROM ENGLAND.

French stuff the last few days has been extraordinarily plentiful, to the detriment of home growers. In many cases tulips are not making the cost of the bulbs. Narcissus Golden Spur has been lower than ever before. It is an altogether uncommon thing to hear growers complain of this latter line, but the last few days grand blooms have not realized the price of the bulbs.

In a walk round Covent Garden flower market, one could but notice the immense quantities of cut roses on hand and at what low prices they are being offered. The French bloom has had a marked effect on this particular line. On account of short supplies of French stuff last year a lot of money was made in forced roses, Safrano in particular. This year equally good stock does not bring one-third last season's prices.

Carnations are conspicuous almost by their absence. Hardly any are seen on the market, but it is evident the day is not far distant when carnations, especially the American varieties, will be plentiful on the English markets. Most of the gardening journals are taking up the subject, and the growers will not be slow to satisfy any demand there may be.

There appears to be a great scarcity of Japan lilies in usual trade sizes this year, and almost fabulous prices are being asked and obtained by dealers. Lancifolium album, retarded bulbs, bring high figures, and for longiflorum multi-florum growers are paying £8 per 1,000 for 7x9 bulbs, and some dealers are even asking £10 for the few they have left. One of the largest growers round London has bought some 6,000 longiflorum giganteum at £12 per 1,000 because he could not get sufficient of the multi-florum type. Unless the cut bloom trade makes a tremendous improvement these growers must certainly fail to make any money.

Now that the cutting of forced fresh lily of the valley crowns is in full swing, the valley trade is totally overdone and one cannot help being struck with the immense quantities there are on offer in London. They are being hawked in the streets at 4 cents per bunch of six spikes. It is the general opinion of the leading growers that valley costs, to produce under the conditions prevailing in England, 1 cent per spike. One effect the exceptionally poor crop of really first-class crowns harvested in Germany has had upon the market is to make an absolute glut of second and third-rate spikes. Of course, as soon as the forcing of fresh crowns is over and there is nothing but retarded stuff to rely upon, prices will improve. Quite a number of English firms now do their own retarding with more or less success, and it will soon be a regular thing for all big establishments to have their icehouses attached to the nursery.

J. B.

FITZGERALD, GA.—Joel Thomas says local demand, especially for pot-plants, is growing right along. He expects to add another house this season.

He has been supplying the florists in this vicinity, also making regular weekly shipments to Chicago. The Market.

Trade conditions have been peculiar the past month; stock has been scarce, the dealers being unable to obtain flowers enough to fill orders. The greatest shortage seems to be in pink and white roses, which have been almost unobtainable the past week. While scarce, red has not been in such strong demand; yellow is called for occasionally. Carnations were scarce, but the last few days of mild weather has eased the shortage somewhat. There are lots of tulips and other bulbous stock on the market and all have sold well on account of roses being so scarce. There are plenty of callas and Easter lilies, which help funeral work out wonderfully.

Violets are in greater demand this winter than ever before, single having the preference, and there are exceptionally fine flowers produced by some of the local growers. Campbell is not in much demand and sells much cheaper than the dark and single.

Various Notes.

Many of the lilies in this vicinity are showing a tendency to want to get ahead of Easter, while a large proportion of them will be short. What the trouble is no one seems to know.

Henry Smith and Alfred Hannah took a two weeks' trip down into the peach orchards of Texas and report the country looking fine, with bright prospects of a good peach crop.

A. Boehringer, of Bay City, is here, visiting the various florists. He thinks this a great place for growers.

NORTHERN TEXAS.

Ideal spring weather is the thing in this section of the country just now, the mercury going to 70 degrees, vegetation starting to grow, trees bursting and shrubs almost in full leaf. They tell me here that spring has begun, and everything points that way. Outdoor bulbs are coming up, and stock is being bought for planting. Trade is pushing fine here, and reports from different sections of this country give a very flattering report. The only complaint so far is that there was not enough stock bought in the fall to fill the orders, and trade with seed and bulb men will be increased to a great extent.

Sweet peas, out of doors, which were planted last November, are putting on good growth and, unless there should come a sudden freeze, will be soon blooming. Stock for Easter is far advanced and it will be a hard matter to keep things back to have them in for that day. Good prices are being realized and first-class stock is in demand.

These at one time were all 30-cent towns, but by persistent effort and by growing nothing but the best, they have reached the dignity of $1 places. Inferior stock is never sought, and the florist who grows that class of plants would have no opportunity to sell it.
From $1.50 to $2 is being received for roses. Carnations bring 75 cents and $1. Dutch hyacinths are fine and from 35 cents to 50 cents a bloom is easily realized. Callas are scarce and looking badly. Narcissus, what little there is on the market, brings from 50 cents to 75 cents. Tulips sell at 75 cents to $1; valley, $1.50; Von Sion, 75 cents; mignonette, 35 cents, and everything good goes.

The nursery men all through this section are busy with their spring orders, and planting seedling trees. Reports from the nursery men say that this has been the best year they have had, and indications are for a large business the coming year. NARCISSUS.

ORANGE, N. J.

The regular monthly meeting of the New Jersey Horticultural Society was held March 2. A paper on "Trent-ham," the seat of the Duke of Southerland, recently presented by him to the British people for purposes of higher education, was given by George Austin, who had a personal acquaintance with these surroundings for twenty years.

The floral display was large and of high order of merit. Julius Roehrs, Lager & Hurrell and Thomas Jones represented the trade with flowers of great beauty. The usual contributions from neighboring estates filled the tables.

TWIN CITIES.

The Market.

Trade with all dealers has been fair. None of them has had a big week, but all are satisfied with results. The supply of stock has been better than the past few weeks. Roses have not been so scarce and dealers in general have been able to supply their wants nicely. It is to be expected trade will not be as brisk the next thirty days as heretofore on account of Lent; nevertheless, it keeps up nicely. Some retailers have had good orders for funeral work and it is safe to predict a good, steady business for the balance of the month.

Bulbous stock holds full sway and all growers have had good success with it. Large numbers of very fine tulips and daffodils are shown; in fact, the tulips we have this season are away ahead of what we ever had, which no doubt is the result of good bulbs with proper care given them. Some flowers measure fully three and one-half inches in length, which is good stock and above the average. Violets are plentiful and some dealers have already started to reduce the price of them. It is no doubt a hard matter to throw away surplus, but is it not better to do so than to cut the price? We believe if a close account were kept that the retailer would find it a great deal more profitable to hold up the price, even if some of them were thrown in the dump.

Lilies appear to be coming on nicely and it is quite evident that we are going to have a good supply for Easter unless something unforeseen happens. With some of our growers they are well advanced and will have to be held back, while with others they will stand all the heat that can be given them. Azaleas are looking good and we also anticipate a good supply of them. Baby Ramblers are grown quite extensively, one grower has in the neighborhood of 1,500, which look fine. They are grown in cool houses along with carnations; in consequence the flower is a good color and the plants look strong and healthy. Hydrangeas are coming along nicely and all growers have a fair supply. One thing is noticeable, the hydrangeas are not so tall this year, the average being about sixteen inches, which makes a good marketable plant.

All growers have started a large number of cuttings of roses. The varieties mostly used being the Richmond, Moulton and Killarney. With these three leading sorts we should have some fine stock this fall. All we need now is a new white and yellow to complete the assortment.

Minneapolis.

Donaldson's Glass Block reports a good business. Saturday is reserved for sale day, principally on bulbous stock, which they have in large quantities.

Powers' Mercantile Co. has good success in disposing of large numbers of potted plants by selling them at reduced prices. Saturday is developing into a regular sale day for the department stores.

Whitted Floral Co. is handling considerable stock, all home-grown, with the exception of a few carnations which come from near-by towns; business is good.

John Monson, of the Minneapolis Floral Co., reports a rapidly increasing demand for cuttings of his new rose, Miss Kate Moulton, and says he is going to have no trouble in disposing of fully 100,000 of them.

St. Paul.

Some of the finest carnations in this section are grown by E. F. Lemke. They are superior to what is being shipped in from exclusive carnation growers. He has some Lawsons and Enchantress which would be hard to beat. He intends adding three or four houses to his plant this season.

Haugen & Swanson have some fine cyclamen plants. They are also cutting some fine violets, which are distributed among the different retailers.

L. L. May & Co. have had some roses the past week which are a credit to any concern. The selects of them have been sold on first sight at good prices. It is an easy matter to sell their Killarney and Richmond at $3 per dozen.

Otto Hiersekorn reports a good business and stock a great deal easier to obtain than in the past few weeks. He has had a good many orders for designs. FELIX.

PACIFIC COAST.

PASADENA, CAL.—A. L. Harmon, formerly of Iola, Kan., is here and plans to build a range of greenhouses as soon as he can secure a favorable site.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.—S. H. Gerrish, one of the best known gardeners of the vicinity, is contributing gardening articles to the local papers.

BAKER CITY, ORE.—Trade with R. C. Eisele, proprietor of the Center Street Greenhouses, shows a steady increase; so much so that he cannot supply the demand and has to ship in stock.

THE largest range of glass on the western side of the Rocky Mountains is owned by a Japanese company and fully half the glass erected during the past three years is for various Japanese nurserymen and florists.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.—The state horticultural commissioners have issued an announcement that supplies of the cottony cushion scale are badly needed for the purpose of feeding the Vedalia cardinalis, or lady bug, that are now being bred in the insectary of the commission at San Francisco.

SEATTLE, WASH.—The public library has issued a list of books on gardening which the local papers were glad to publish, owing to the general lack of books.

The Market.

We have had several weeks of dark, rainy weather, followed by a few of bright sunshine, making a very agreeable change. Lent is here and, with its coming, a slump is noticed in all lines of the business except that of funeral work, which keeps on in a very substantial way. Stock of all kinds is daily getting more plentiful and, from all prospects, we will soon be getting our full share. Narcissi of the white varieties are practically over for the season, although there are still quantities of yellow daffodils on hand. Freesias are now at their best and the retailers are using large quantities of them. They cost on an average of from $1 to $1.50 per hundred stems. Roman hyacinths are out of season and quite a number of the Dutch varieties in pots are displayed in the florists' windows. Carnations are plentiful, but I do not think they will lower to any extent in price until after Easter.

Roses are in fair supply only, but as the demand continues limited, there are just enough to go around. Violets are commencing to show the results of the last few warm days and the poor keeping qualities always shown late in the season are now appearing. The prices charged by the wholesale dealers average about 75 cents per dozen bunches.

Wild maidenhair is now long enough of stem to be of some use to the dealers and it is used quite extensively instead of the tame varieties.

Various Notes.

C. W. Scott, of Chicago, is in town. Frank Orra, of Elmhurst, has been sick in bed for several weeks, but at last reports is on the road to recovery.

Geo. T. Snyder has left on a tour of Oregon and Washington. He will be gone about two months.

A visit to the nurseries of Schwerin Bros. shows a splendid lot of Lillium Harrisii just in shape to arrive at Easter.

The spring show of flowering bulbs at Golden Gate park is attracting much attention from the many eastern visitors in town.

From present appearances there will be no scarcity of lilies for Easter, as many of our largest growers have been particularly fortunate with their bulbs this season.

Domoto Bros. are cutting large quantities of valley at present. They will have a good cut of roses for the next few weeks.

THE REVIEW will send Smith's Chrysanthemum Manual on receipt of 25 cents.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

Pres., E. Albertson, Bridgeport, Ind.; Vice-Pres., Orlando Harrison, Berlin, Md.; Sec'y, Geo. O. Seager, Rochester; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester. The 31st annual convention will be held at Dallas, Texas, June, 1906.

FRANK T. HASELTINE, Crookston, Minn., has employed John Schmidt, an experienced nurseryman, as manager.

THE Canadian Pacific Railroad will plant large nurseries along its western lines for the purpose of eventually cutting its own tie timber.

NURSEYMEN in northern Minnesota are experiencing a heavy demand for Carolina poplars and large numbers will be used in that section this season.

AT the end of February the Georgia fruit belt had one of the coldest nights of the season, down to 28 degrees, with fruit trees and strawberries in heavy bloom.

THE Mount Arbor Nurseries, Shenandoah, Ia., were established in 1875 and have been under the management of E. S. Welch since 1891, since which time the business has trebled.

THE New York Fruit Growers' Association held its annual convention at Poughkeepsie February 22. The president, T. B. Wilson, announced a decrease in membership from 500 to 350.

E. FERRAND & SON, of Detroit, Mich., are enlarging their planting of ornamental trees and shrubs at their old nursery in Oakland county. They have established a branch at Monroe, Mich.

A PARTY of Michigan nurserymen has been touring Texas, investigating conditions for fruit culture in that climate. Considerable interest is manifested by northern growers in Texas orchards since the recent excursions run by the various roads into that state.

IT is reported from Houston, Tex., that "March 3 Stanley H. Watson, industrial agent of the Central-East and West lines left for California, where he will attend a meeting of the nurserymen of California for the purpose of interesting them in the meeting of the American Association of Nurserymen in Dallas June 13-16."

FARMERS at Alton, Ill., who bought nursery stock which proved to be dead stock are preparing to prosecute H. A. Dunnegan and A. B. Jones, of Springfield, Ill., on a fraud charge. Notes were given by the farmers and it is alleged these were turned over to attorneys for collection. It is claimed the notes, by virtue of a verbal agreement, were to be payable in five years.

FRED'K W. KELSEY says of his catalogue that he intended it to be the "best ever" and second to no publication of the kind in this country or abroad. In the different classifications not only are the different sizes of each variety indicated, but the alphabetically arranged index gives both the botanical and common names of a large variety of the best trees and hardy plants, making the catalogue a hand-book for convenient and ready reference. Of course paper and printing are in keeping.

THE Miami Valley Nurserymen's Association met at Dayton, O., February 28.

ESCAPING illuminating gas is destroying many of the fine old elms in several New England cities.

ONE item of which there are reported to be exceptionally large and well grown stocks for spring is the grape in standard sorts.

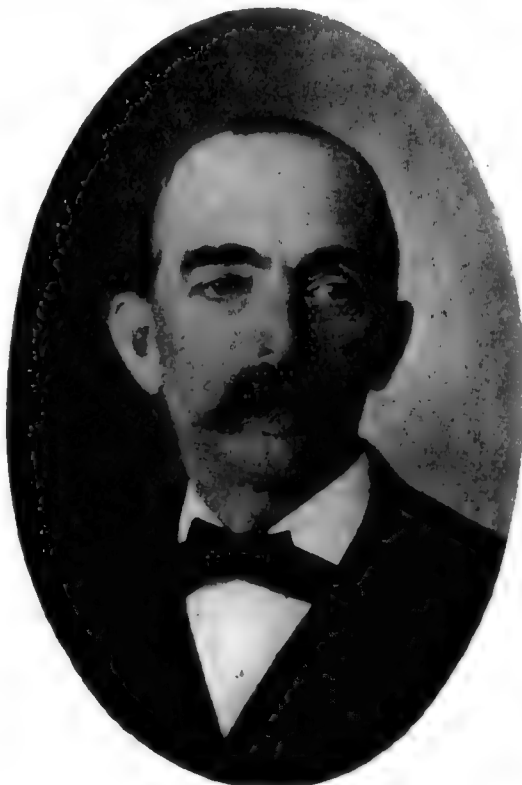

APPLE growers of eastern New York fear that the purchase price and selling price of their crop will soon be fixed wholly by the pleasure of the storage concerns.

SINCE A. H. Rogers and A. H. McGill acquired a controlling interest in the Spaulding Nursery and Orchard Co., Spaulding, Ill., the number of directors has been decreased from five to three.

THE Lowell, Mass., park commissioners advise the public that in planting trees it is a good rule to "deal only with responsible parties, pay good prices and demand good services. No one should be employed to purchase or plant a tree who does not understand the business."

business were at once turned upon the interests of the trade at large when he was appointed chairman of the transportation committee of the American Association of Nurserymen. It was a happy selection. When he was elected to the presidency of the association it only broadened his field of activity.

In its three decades the American Association of Nurserymen has had many strong men at its head, but there are few who have taken up its work with greater energy and accomplished so much as has President Albertson. Early in his official career he found that the association was without further funds for the use of the transportation committee, just then at a point where several years of effort were about to bear fruit. A stirring appeal to the trade brought subscriptions ample to the needs of the occasion and the work was pushed to a successful conclusion. Mr. Albertson and Mr. Reed of the transportation committee have devoted a large part of their time to the affairs of the association and have gained for the trade benefits which will be of money value to every shipper. It is estimated that the saving in freight their efforts have produced will amount to not less than $50,000 a year to the trade and probably to much more, as a number of nurserymen are able to figure savings of from $1,000 to $5,000 each.

Now that this work is well out of the way, Mr. Albertson's energies are transferred to the forthcoming convention at Dallas. He proposed to make it the best convention the society has ever held. The date is June 13.

FUMIGATING NURSER STOCK.

Quite elaborate experiments were carried out at the New York Experiment Station, to gain information on the effect of hydrocyanic acid gas on fruit buds. In these experiments from 0.18 to 0.3 gram of cyanide was used per cubic foot of space on apple buds. Of the treated buds 80.6 per cent lived, while 84.3 per cent of the untreated buds set successfully. Similar experiments with cherry, pear, peach, and plum buds indicated a slight advantage in every case in favor of the untreated buds. The difference, however, except in the case of peach buds, was not great enough to indicate any decided injury from the gas. In the case of peaches the use of 0.22 gram of cyanide per cubic foot of space during the fumigation period of one hour did no harm whatever; in fact the percentage of treated buds which lived was greater than those of the checks. When, however, 0.3 gram of cyanide per cubic foot was used there was considerable injury, only seventy per cent of the treated buds living, as against 82.8 per cent of the checks. The growth of the treated peach buds, however, was in nearly every instance equal to that of the untreated buds.

During the past winter Burgess, in Ohio, Symons, in Maryland, and Phillips, in Virginia, undertook experiments independently to determine the effect of fumigation upon ordinary nursery stock. The conclusions reached by these investigators were almost identical and the principal conclusion was that fumigation does not injure well-matured nursery stock.

In Maryland, 3,000 nursery trees were fumigated, one-half in the fall and one-half in the spring. These trees were apple and peach. The amount of cyanide used varied from a quantity below the normal to six times the amount usually recommended for fumigating nursery stock. In order to test the effect of time of exposure, one-half of the trees was fumigated for thirty minutes and the other for one hour. The results obtained from these experiments indicate that no injury was caused dormant apple and peach nursery stock two years or more of age even with a strength of gas and period of exposure considerably greater than that commonly prescribed by inspectors. These experiments were carried on in fumigating houses at the nurseries where the trees were dug. By the use of excessive strengths of cyanide it was shown that there is apparently more danger of injury in fumigating in the fall than in the spring. In the fumigating tests carried on in the fall, peach trees appeared to be more resistant to the effect of gas than apple trees. A slight difference in the resisting power of different varieties of apples was noted, the Yellow Transparent being most resistant, while Winesap, Ben Davis, Maiden Blush, and York Imperial were apparently more likely to be injured.

TOPEKA, KAN.

No more whole-hearted, hospitable class of people can be found anywhere than the members of the florists' profession in the beautiful capital of Kansas. I paid them a visit last week, had a most enjoyable time and incidentally discovered that all the good growers are not confined to the large cities. The past season has been a good one and the florists all seem prosperous and contented. The old-timers all say that the season just passed has been the best one in their experience. Several new concerns have opened up for business recently, but it seems to have no perceptible effect on the trade of the older establishments, such is the rapid increase in business.

I called first, as a matter of course, on our old friend and former employer, James Hayes. I have been employed by Mr. Hayes several times and a more genial, kind-hearted employer it has never been my good fortune to find. He has a range of 12,000 square feet of glass, all of the best construction and everything is in first-class shape. Most of the space is devoted to the growing of cut flowers, principally carnations, of which Mr. Hayes makes a specialty. His carnations are in splendid condition and would be hard to excel anywhere. He grows principally Lawson, both pink and white; Enchantress, Boston Market, Harlowarden and Estelle. He has one house of roses and another devoted to palms and ferns. He has an able assistant in his son, W. B. Hayes, who bids fair to some day equal his father as a grower. Mr. Hayes is one of the veterans of the business in Topeka and has built up a substantial trade.

J. M. Kessler's place is another point of interest. Although comparatively a new-comer, he has already made an enviable reputation as a grower of first-class stock. He does a wholesale business and grows principally carnations. We have never seen as fine Queen Louise anywhere as we saw on this place and, if all growers could be as successful with this variety as Mr. Kessler is, no better white could be desired. This variety is usually out of bloom at this season, but his benches were a mass of bud and bloom.

Hiram Hulse is one of the old-timers. He has only a small range of houses, 5,000 square feet, but no one turns out a better grade of stock than Mr. Hulse. He has long had the reputation of growing the best roses in this section of the country, and his carnations are second to none. Mr. Hulse will retire from the business this spring and devote his time to his fruit farm in western Kansas.

J. E. Rodman is another old-timer. He has a handsome little store on the main street and does a thriving business. He does the bedding and landscape work for the Kansas division of the Union Pacific Railway, and his greenhouses are principally devoted to bedding plants.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business showed a decrease last week. Increased shipments from outside towns and an increase in the home supply caused a drop in prices. Good stock is selling lower than at any time since before the holidays. While business has been very good it was not up to the usual standard and the prices received were lower. Some carnations are being sold at 35 cents to 50 cents a dozen, but the majority of the dealers realize much better prices than this. Violets have sold well and there has been a good demand for bulbous stock. Some fine specimens of lilacs, rhododendrons and azaleas are being shown at the leading stores.

Various Notes.

The matter of holding another flower show next fall is already being agitated. Louis W. Shouse, secretary of Convention hall, has addressed a letter to the florists of this city asking their views on the matter. All that we have heard express an opinion are in favor of it.

W. A. Bastian received a shipment of Queen Louise carnations from J. M. Kessler, of Topeka, last Saturday that were the finest flowers of this variety that have been seen here.

Samuel Murray handled two large society decorations this week. Mr. Murray has enjoyed a splendid season and has had all the business he could handle.

The Shaeffer Floral Co. had a rush of plant trade last Saturday that kept the entire force busy until closing time. They are showing some fine blooming plants of their own growing.

The local supply of bedding plants for spring is unusually large and in fine shape. KAY-SEE.

AURORA, ILL.—Joseph M. Smely will attend the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club at Chicago, March 8, leaving there in time to reach Peoria the following morning for the meeting of the state association March 9.

MADISON, N. J.—J. M. Lyons died suddenly at his home February 15 at the age of 51 years. In his death Madison loses one of its old and highly respected residents, and the trade one of its best rose growers. Although he did not have a large range of glass, his place was up-to-date and the results could be seen daily in the wholesale market. Besides the widow, he leaves two sons, Edward and Paul C.

Some People have taken our advice as published in these columns recently and are buying for trial. We reiterate here—if it succeeds with you as it does with us, it will prove the best white carnation you ever grew. Despite the variety's apparent failure in several places, we strongly advise all growers to give it a trial. We have been frank about its faults as developed in other places. We doubt if these will develop in many places.

Jessica we believe, will succeed generally and will prove to be the best red and white variegated ever disseminated. Few varieties show as strong constitution as this one does and it is a wonderful producer. Extra fine stock of both varieties ready now. R. C., $2.50 per doz.; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000. Pot plants, $3.00 per 100 extra.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Business has fallen off somewhat since last report. Roses and carnations have at last caught up with the demand and some days are a little ahead, but still I can say that trade continues active. More bulbous stock is being shipped to this market than can be handled to good advantage, white tulips going as low as $1.50 per hundred, sold direct by one of our growers. Sweet peas and violets are also coming in more plentiful, but with no increased demand. Smilax is still scarce.

Various Notes.

At the next regular meeting of the Gardeners' Club, Monday, March 12, the annual election of officers takes place, after which the usual banquet will take place at one of our leading hotels. All members of the club are earnestly requested to be present at this important meeting.

E. Falph, for many years with Mr. Steward, who has retired from the business lately, has opened up a very attractive flower store within a block of the old place.

William B. Sands reports that his son, who has been ill with typhoid fever, is slowly recovering.

Frederick G. Burger has left on a trip to Florida with his son, whose health has been impaired by an attack of erysipelas.

E. A. Seidewitz has sold his property near Arlington to the Western Maryland Railroad, but since has purchased a new site on Belvedere road, between Mount Washington and Electric park. There are six acres of land and he will proceed at once to build a dwelling and put up three houses.

Southern jonquils have already made their appearance.

Fred Bauer is sending the entire cut of his new pink carnation to the Baltimore Florists' Exchange, where it finds ready sale.

Among the week's visitors were Mr. Green, of H. Bayersdorfer's, and Mr. Zirkmann, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, and Mr. Wiedemann, of A. Herrmann, New York. A. F.

SALEM, O.—J. H. Brown has removed to this city from Sebring, O., and has purchased a large greenhouse establishment. He sold his place at Sebring to J. F. Hall, of that village, who is continuing the business along the old lines.

WASHINGTON.

State of Trade.

March started in to do the lion act. With a heavy snowstorm and its attendant slush as a starter, on through torrential rain, thunder and lightning, we have had weather to spare. This has had a depressing effect on trade. Dinners and luncheons that could not well be postponed furnished the major portion of business, the shoppers being kept pretty well indoors. Sunday morning was bright and considerable business was done. This to some extent lightened the accumulated burden of stock.

The dealers, as a rule, are optimistic. Said an old employee of a leading store: "In twenty years' experience I have noticed that as a rule social affairs are missing for about ten days after the beginning of Lent. After that time we expect business to be back in the old channels."

Though good cut stock keeps coming in at a surprising rate, there is little likelihood of a glut, as much of the bulbous stock will soon be out of the way. Considerable large pot stock is coming in. SCOTTY.

MINONK, ILL.

Charles Snyder, of the firm of Brady & Co., Eureka, Ill., has arranged to remove the greenhouse from that city to Minonk to be utilized in the construction of a place in this city, which will comprise 22,000 square feet of glass. The firm of Brady & Co. will be discontinued and it is reported that Mr. Brady, who is in poor health, will dispose of his garden and fruit property at Eureka, where the greenhouse has been located.

Mr. Snyder expects to get his first crop on the market next November. Workmen are already at work and a car-load of glass has been received. The site is that of the old coal shaft building and tile works. Two seventy horsepower boilers will be installed and Mr. Snyder's machinery will run the new fan the coal company is putting in the escape shaft. The company which Mr. Snyder has organized will have a decided advantage in cheap fuel.

LOWELL, MASS.—The park commissioners, in their annual report, give much credit to Supt. C. A. Whittet for his efforts at combating the brown tail moth.

DUBUQUE, IA.

The local florists were kept busy last week making up work for the funeral of Col. David B. Henderson, ex-speaker of the House of Representatives. As many designs, sprays and flowers were used at the residence, church and grave there was plenty of work for all the trade here. The design which attracted most attention was the casket cover sent by Major W. H. Day. This was in the form and colors of the National flag, 3½x7½ feet. This was used as a blanket to cover the grave, the other pieces being banked about it.

"Iowa's Tribute," an immense wreath of white roses, valley and violets on a base of American Beauties, lilies and sago leaves, was supplied from Harkett's Floral Nursery. Other pieces were a large and beautiful wreath with flag and gavel on base from the Congress of the United States, and numerous other wreaths, pillows, flags, panel designs, sprays, etc.

Many telegrams were received by Glaser, Muntz and Harkett's from Washington and other points for floral tributes to be delivered from here, and some designs and flowers were sent in by express.

The grave in Linwood cemetery is completely hidden from view in the wealth of floral offerings, the magnificence of the tributes being a general topic of conversation.

PAINESVILLE, OHIO.

The last game of the season was played Wednesday afternoon, February 28, at Johnson's alleys. The retail clerks won the match, also the grand total for five games by 178 pins. In the evening a banquet was given for all the employees of the Storrs & Harrison Co., and everybody had a jolly good time. The busy season has started full blast; and now for three solid months of hustle to supply our florists and customers. These are the last scores:

DETROIT.

The Market.

Lent does not seem to have much effect on local business. Theaters are drawing as large crowds as before and, judging from the society news, many dinners, parties, etc., are booked for the near future. There has been an extra heavy run on funeral work of late, it being pretty well divided among the trade. All this has tended to keep up prices.

Very few Beauties find their way into this market. White roses are much in demand, the best grades bringing from $8 to $12 per hundred. In fact, all roses are moving well.

Carnations are arriving in larger quantities, but so far have sold readily from $2.50 to $3 per hundred, excepting Lawson, which are a glut at $2 per hundred.

Violets are meeting with good demand despite the fact that a local paper recently spread the report that violets are out of style. Asparagus plumosus is at a premium, while Sprengerii is quite plentiful. Smilax is also scarce. Tulips, particularly yellow, and daffodils are more than plentiful.

Various Notes.

The local growers are thoroughly disgusted with Harrisii lilies and from present threats there will be but few grown in this vicinity next season.

Jerome K. Stock is a busy man these days. After completing a new floor he intends to install a fine new ice-box.

Gus H. Taepke contemplates the erection of three rose houses the coming spring, each 28x175 feet. It is understood that the Foley Mfg. Co. has the contract for the material. Cypress benches are to be used.

B. Schroeter is receiving some fine Brides and Maids from Van Bochove & Bro., of Kalamazoo, Mich.

John Klein and Miss Lempke, both at Breitmeyer's, have been on the sick list. H. S.

ALLIANCE, OHIO.

Harry Miller, of Salem, O., and Austin Cowgill, of this city, have purchased the extensive greenhouse plant of Leroy L. Lamborn on West Main street and will continue the business under the firm name of Miller & Cowgill. Mr. Miller was formerly in the employ of Mr. Lamborn, but for the past year has been the proprietor of the Garfield avenue greenhouses in Salem. Mr. Lamborn, who has been in business in Alliance for thirty-five years, will become connected with a wholesale greenhouse at Mt. Union.

ROCHESTER.

While our citizens pride themselves on their manufacturing plants, their scenic environment, etc., the seed, nursery and florists' business, which has accomplished so much for the benefit of Rochester, is not overlooked. Here has been the acknowledged center of the nursery and seed trade in America for years, and more greatly accentuated now by the output of last season and the excellent outlook for the coming year. Why should this not be, while Rochester is the flowery as well as the "floury" city of the United States?

Most of our cut flower dealers own their greenhouses and the produce is put in evidence in the best of condition. The genial Salter Brothers are showing nearly all that is purchasable now. Tulips, daffodils, azaleas, orchids, lilacs, mignonette, ericas, etc., are so arranged that they attract attention from any passer-by. Keiler Brothers' display, among others, Otaheite oranges, hydrangeas, valley, crocus, hyacinths, rhododendrons and Wistarias. Wilson, with his two stores, has an excellent variety of flowering and foliage plants and trade is reported here as with the other caterers—excellent. Boucher is doing good business in the same class of stock, including fine cinerarias and cyclamen. From the poorest to the millionaire, all can be accommodated in the florists' line in Rochester.

Besides the large and increasing demand for plants, the cut flower people have just reason to be jubilant over last year's transactions and this year's, so far. Bulbous stock has given good results.

George Hart, our only commission man, declares he is more than satisfied with past receipts, both in goods and cash. Business with him looks bright.

Vick & Hill Co. have an interesting range of glass and handle the greatest variety of plants that can be desired. The appearance of the plants convinces one that they enjoy life; not like those described by a writer who saw some in a city establishment in this state, which "were weary and willing to die." Fred Vick superintends the whole business personally, and this means a whole lot to his customers, which they appreciate. There are ten houses, each 100 feet long and thirty feet wide, with the exception of the propagating pit which is considerably narrower. Some are filled with carnations, both old favorites and new varieties. Foliage plants—palms, Bos-

EASY WEEDER

THE WEEDER FOR FLORISTS

The inner edge is sharp. Its oval shape permits the operator to weed behind the plants while standing in front. The pushing edge is thin enough to work easily through the soil, but too dull to damage the stems of the plants should it come in contact with them.

It takes out the weeds and leaves the surface smooth. What's more, it does all the work so rapid it will pay for itself in one day's use.

GRENLOCH, N. J.

The Bateman Manufacturing Co. has devised a practical means of keeping a record of everything pertaining to methods of culture and results in garden, greenhouse and trial grounds that will be appreciated by all gardeners and florists. It is the Iron Age horticultural label and row index, a simple, but practical little device that will become a necessity as it becomes known. By its use there is provided at the end of the season a complete record, including date of planting, varieties, fertilizer used, date of maturity; productiveness, or any other desired information.

The row index consists of a galvanized iron stake, at the top of which is a record card, protected by a weatherproof sheet of mica held in a hinged frame at convenient angle for reading. At the end of the season this card forms an invaluable record that makes it possible to

BRANDON, MAN.

The Brandon Greenhouses, Brandon, Man., have been sold to the Brandon Seed and Nursery House by Fred Mansoff, who established the business thirteen years ago. The consideration was $15,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Mansoff came from London, England, with a capital not exceeding $10, but with great pluck and energy he established a small market garden and later added greenhouses on ground north of the present site. Good progress was made until the spring of 1900, when the flats were completely flooded with water from the overflow from the river, and Mr. Mansoff lost everything he had gained during the previous seven years.

Nothing daunted, he started again, but this time on a higher level farther south, removing his greenhouses thither. From that time steady progress has been made, and now, when Mr. Mansoff has his business in the best of shape, he has sold it at a good figure. Mr. Mansoff has the reputation of being the only florist who has made a success of growing roses in Manitoba and his success with carnations and other flowers has been almost as great.

Mr. Mansoff will stay with the new company until July 1, and will superintend the erection of another greenhouse and the replanting of the present ones, after which he will take a well-earned vacation, visiting several large cities in the States. He intends to return to Brandon to reside.

SCRANTON, PA.

The Scranton Florists' Club is growing rapidly. At the last meeting applications for membership were received from florists from Dunmore, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Bloomsburg. A majority of the leading florists from Lackawanna, Luzerne and Columbia counties now belong to the club. At the next meeting, March 16, members are requested to bring a few carnations or a plant in bloom. We have seen new varieties exhibited by outside growers and now we would like to see what our own men are doing.

Mrs. McConnell, wife of J. M. McConnell, died at her home on Oak street Monday, February 19, after a lingering illness. She was associated with her husband's business for many years and leaves a wide circle of friends to mourn her loss. Interment was at Gouldsburg February 21. H.

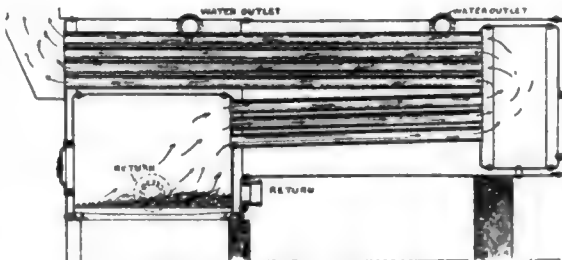

PEOPLE who know a good thing when they see it, and will take advantage of the same, must be possessed with good judgment and are generally successful. One of our successful growers has this year taken out 6000 feet of wooden gutters, which were only 5 years old, and replaced the same with 6000 feet of the GARLAND IRON GUTTER, this being his fifth annual order.

The regular meeting of the Lenox Horticultural Society was held March 3, Pres. S. Carlquist in the chair. This was carnation night, but owing to wet weather there were not many flowers on exhibition. W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind., sent at the suggestion of Arthur T. Boddington, New York, some of their new carnation, Glendale, which, unfortunately, arrived very badly bruised and shaken up. They were accorded a vote of thanks, but the committee hopes to see it again at some future date. Among the exhibits were some fine White Lawson, Nelson Fisher, Flamingo and Enchantress.

A special meeting was held March 5 to pass upon the new rose, Miss Kate Moulton, from the Minneapolis Floral Co., John Monson, proprietor, Minneapolis, Minn. It was awarded a first class certificate. The committee thinks it one of the finest roses so far seen and well worthy of a certificate.

Our next meeting, March 17, is rose night. G. F.

NEWARK, N. J.

Alleging that George Penek, a florist, had funds in his possession belonging to the estate of Henry Bird, which had not been turned over, Frank Du Bois, trustee of the Bird estate, brought suit in the Second District Court February 27 to recover $166. Penek paid $97 to the court before the trial, declaring that that amount covered the claim against him, and Judge Lintott, after hearing the evidence, gave a verdict to Du Bois for the amount the florist said he owed.

Du Bois testified that Penek owed $75 rent on Belleville avenue property, owned by the Bird estate, and a like amount on another tract in Arlington. The plaintiff also alleged that the florist had collected $16 rent from a tenant of a house owned by the estate. Penek married the widow of the late Henry Bird.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Pierson U-Bar Company has been organized to place vigorously before the public the U-bar type of greenhouse construction, knowing it to be far in advance of any other construction used for greenhouse purposes.

The originators of the U-bar construction, Lincoln Pierson and Paul M. Pierson, are president and secretary-treasurer, Henry S. de Forest, sales manager. The identification of these men with this company assures the public that the great reputation of the U-bar construction will be fully maintained. The patent rights are owned and solely controlled by this company.

With those anticipating the erection of a greenhouse, we will be pleased to correspond or confer in person.

To our friends we extend a most cordial welcome.

TRUSSED HOUSE QUESTION

It is nothing new with us this using of trusses in greenhouse construction.

For years we have used the truss to eliminate columns or other members when in the way. The truss has always been a regular stock matter with us, but we have now carried it a bit farther, leaving out additional supporting members and perfecting an ideal trussed house. We base our trussing on the principles adopted by the best engineers in the country. We truss two ways: Along the purlin at every sixth bar with struts at every other bar, and from the ridge to eaves on every sixth, tying the house together with the necessary cross-ties.

Other forms of truss construction strut at every fourth bar, which, of course, increases the shading members and also adds to the expense of the house. The sash-bar we use is increased in depth and decreased in width. This, of course, casts less shade and greatly increases the strength of the bar. At the ridge we secure the sashbars with wrought iron hold-fasts, which are secured directly to the bars and on to the ridge piece. This prevents all possibility of the house spreading.

Another feature is the use of our new gutter. Now, this new gutter is a subject that will interest you greatly, so next week we will talk gutter.

It is not always a question of the new, but the use of the old thing a new way. That is what our trussed house is.

CARNATIONS

PERSONAL OPINIONS.

[A paper by Joseph F. Klimmer, read before the Chicago Florists' Club, March 8, 1906.]

Before I begin the narration of these experiences I want to say that I hope I will not tread on anybody's toes. It is not my intention to do any variety anything but justice and I shall relate my experience of the past season and my plans for the next with full understanding that mine may not be at all like the results obtained and conclusions reached by other growers in other soils and with other methods of culture. By this time every carnation grower should have his plans ready for next season; he should know which varieties he intends to plant next fall and what varieties he has to discard.

There are quite a few growers like myself, always ready to try a reasonable amount of those liberally advertised novelties, and now, after trying them for a season, the question is, did they pay and did they give satisfaction?

Fiancee.

We will take Fiancee for a starter. I discarded Marquis for the new love because, after seeing it at three different seasons at Joliet, I supposed it was time to make the change. Last August I planted in the bench the 410 plants I had left of the 500 I had bought. They produced in October 625 first-class flowers, which sold even in the chrysanthemum season for from $4 to $6 per hundred. During November I cut 169, during December sixty-nine, during January thirteen, and in February four.

This is a rather astonishing record, but I believe it is to a great extent my own fault, because I treated my Fiancee, in the first week in November, to a fairly liberal dose of manure and bone meal and in return got an immense crop of fantastic looking "splits" which nobody would buy. I wonder will we ever learn to let well enough alone? I am convinced that if I had left the fertilizer off sixty-five per cent of the splits would have been salable flowers and Fiancee would have been a fairly well paying proposition, at least up to Christmas. As it is, I have sworn off flirting any further with anybody else's Fiancee.

Cardinal.

Next on the programme is Cardinal. The most of my plants were affected with rust and I could not get rid of it. They produce quite a few black and distorted flowers, but they also give me a very liberal amount of good, first-class flowers with fairly strong stems. Right among the rusty ones we had about thirty plants which kept entirely clean and certainly came up in every respect to the introducer's description, so I shall give Cardinal another trial.

Some of the plants I have now potted up in 4-inch pots. They will be planted out as early as possible to give it a trial as a summer bloomer. Cardinal is an improvement on Estelle, which has been my best summer bloomer for the last five years.

Lieut. Peary.

Next is Lieut. Peary. This is, in my estimation, the best of last year's introductions. It has not the elegant finish, and it is not such a glistening white as Lady Bountiful, but it is one of the very best keepers and shippers. It is a strong upright grower, a steady and even bloomer, makes no surplus grass and is entirely free from rust or any other disease. Although it brings some sleepy-looking and some split flowers, still on the whole I believe it will be in the running for some years.

Estelle.

In scarlet I grow Flamingo, Estelle and Cardinal and in addition will also have 300 each of Robert Craig and Victory. I need Estelle for a good, common scarlet in the winter, and early in April I take up the old plants from the bench, cut them back severely and then plant them out for summer blooming. One can depend upon those plants to furnish a good, steady supply of flowers from the middle of July until frost, at an average price of $1.50 per hundred.

Flamingo.

Flamingo is considered by our Chicago retail florists the best scarlet winter carnation on the market and as far as I can judge I believe that either Robert Craig or Victory will have some trouble to beat it. Flamingo has been a failure in a good many cases, in some undoubtedly because the soil did not suit, but in most cases I believe it is the treatment. The plants must be good and strong when planted out. Do not pinch them back any more than is absolutely necessary to keep them in trim. After August 1 pick off all buds high up on the stem until October 20; then let them bloom all they can until March 15, when they should be thrown out to make room for spring stock.

Flamingo needs to be planted in sandy soil, or soil with a liberal quantity of half rotten horse manure to make it porous. Give it plenty of water but do not feed at all, because the flower is large enough for all practical purposes and any feeding is likely to spoil the keeping quality and produce more splits.

Contradictory Experiences.

As an explanation I can state that the first 500 Flamingo I bought, in January, made large and elegant plants that came into bloom in August. I pinched those flowers off before planting them in the house, and let them come into bloom again in the latter part of September, but had to pick those flowers off also, because they would not keep, but in the latter part of October, when the weather got cool, they improved rapidly and by Christmas I had cut an average of thirteen flowers per plant, ranging in price from $4 to $12 per hundred. By March 10 we had an average of eighteen flowers. Just about then flowers get spotty and the plants grow so much to grass as to be almost entirely worthless.

Seeing that my first lot did so well I bought 200 more in the fall, all good, healthy plants from the field, but considerably smaller than my own. These plants had, from September 20 on, the same treatment, were planted in the same soil and in the same bench, but I did not cut a flower from those 200 plants until January 11, and then they only averaged not quite six flowers per plant up to March 10, when they also gave out. During the last winter I had the same experience with plants of my own growing and also noticed similar results at some of my neighbors' places. This shows in my mind why some people have such great success with Flamingo, while with others it is almost a failure.

Another important point is in disbudding. In rubbing off the bud next to the flower, the main stem is very liable to be injured and the flower will have a

CARNATIONS

PERSONAL OPINIONS.

[A paper by Joseph F. Klimmer, read before the Chicago Florists' Club, March 8, 1906.]

Before I begin the narration of these experiences I want to say that I hope I will not tread on anybody's toes. It is not my intention to do any variety anything but justice and I shall relate my experience of the past season and my plans for the next with full understanding that mine may not be at all like the results obtained and conclusions reached by other growers in other soils and with other methods of culture. By this time every carnation grower should have his plans ready for next season; he should know which varieties he intends to plant next fall and what varieties he has to discard.

There are quite a few growers like myself, always ready to try a reasonable amount of those liberally advertised novelties, and now, after trying them for a season, the question is, did they pay and did they give satisfaction?

Fiancee.

We will take Fiancee for a starter. I discarded Marquis for the new love because, after seeing it at three different seasons at Joliet, I supposed it was time to make the change. Last August I planted in the bench the 410 plants I had left of the 500 I had bought. They produced in October 625 first-class flowers, which sold even in the chrysanthemum season for from $4 to $6 per hundred. During November I cut 169, during December sixty-nine, during January thirteen, and in February four.

This is a rather astonishing record, but I believe it is to a great extent my own fault, because I treated my Fiancee, in the first week in November, to a fairly liberal dose of manure and bone meal and in return got an immense crop of fantastic looking "splits" which nobody would buy. I wonder will we ever learn to let well enough alone? I am convinced that if I had left the fertilizer off sixty-five per cent of the splits would have been salable flowers and Fiancee would have been a fairly well paying proposition, at least up to Christmas. As it is, I have sworn off flirting any further with anybody else's Fiancee.

Cardinal.

Next on the programme is Cardinal. The most of my plants were affected with rust and I could not get rid of it. They produce quite a few black and distorted flowers, but they also give me a very liberal amount of good, first-class flowers with fairly strong stems. Right among the rusty ones we had about thirty plants which kept entirely clean and certainly came up in every respect to the introducer's description, so I shall give Cardinal another trial.

Some of the plants I have now potted up in 4-inch pots. They will be planted out as early as possible to give it a trial as a summer bloomer. Cardinal is an improvement on Estelle, which has been my best summer bloomer for the last five years.

Lieut. Peary.

Next is Lieut. Peary. This is, in my estimation, the best of last year's introductions. It has not the elegant finish, and it is not such a glistening white as Lady Bountiful, but it is one of the very best keepers and shippers. It is a strong upright grower, a steady and even bloomer, makes no surplus grass and is entirely free from rust or any other disease. Although it brings some sleepy-looking and some split flowers, still on the whole I believe it will be in the running for some years.

Estelle.

In scarlet I grow Flamingo, Estelle and Cardinal and in addition will also have 300 each of Robert Craig and Victory. I need Estelle for a good, common scarlet in the winter, and early in April I take up the old plants from the bench, cut them back severely and then plant them out for summer blooming. One can depend upon those plants to furnish a good, steady supply of flowers from the middle of July until frost, at an average price of $1.50 per hundred.

Flamingo.

Flamingo is considered by our Chicago retail florists the best scarlet winter carnation on the market and as far as I can judge I believe that either Robert Craig or Victory will have some trouble to beat it. Flamingo has been a failure in a good many cases, in some undoubtedly because the soil did not suit, but in most cases I believe it is the treatment. peculiar, crooked neck. Since I found it out we let the last bud stay on until the flower is cut and the trouble disappears. Give Flamingo a little extra attention and care and I am sure that you will not have to worry whether the new scarlets are successes or failures.

Other Sorts.

For white I shall grow Lady Bountiful, Dorner's White Perfection, Lieut. Peary and Vesper and will discard Albartross and The Belle. In light pink I shall grow Enchantress, discarding Morning Glory. Possibly Genevieve Lord may have to make room for Helen Goddard, although the former has proven very satisfactory.

Mrs. Lawson will be discarded in favor of Nelson Fisher and Pink Patten. Pink Patten I believe will be in another two years a warm competitor of Mrs. Thos. Lawson. Better watch it grow.

For variegated, M. A. Patten seems to be the best with me, so I will keep it next season.

This completes my list for next season and I hope it will turn out satisfactorily, though I still wish the Lord would throw a sport or a seedling my way that has the clear color of the Marquis and the general growth, habit and keeping qualities of the Patten. Then I surely would be happy until the shoe pinched me in some other place.

CHICAGO CLUB DOINGS.

The Carnation Show.

The Chicago Florists' Club may have had larger exhibitions than that set up in the Atlas block March 8, but it is certain that its members were never privileged to look upon better carnations. To James Hartshorne, of the Chicago Carnation Co., must be given the principal measure of commendation for whatever success the show made. His exhibit was the largest he has ever set up at a purely club affair, and was very nearly as large as the combined displays of all the other exhibitors. Wiator Bros. were second in point of extent of exhibits, with Jensen & Dekema third, but when it came to quality it would be difficult to determine who had the best stock, and, in fact, the judges contented themselves with enumerating the varieties and according equal commendation to all. The cuts of all the growers seem to be at the very top for quality, and it was noticeable that not a sleepy bloom was to be seen at the close of the show, all having stood up perfectly in the warm and frequently crowded room. The showing of novelties was a good one. All the leaders, except Victory, were there, and Victory has been seen in Chicago a number of times.

Aside from the attraction of Mr. Hartshorne's magnificent table, the interest centered in three vases of reds: Robert Craig, shown by Thompson; No. 49, shown by the Chicago Carnation Co., and No. 55, shown by Wiator Bros. The two numbered sorts are each fine, the Joliet seedling showing a little stronger stem, the Wiator entry the brighter color, but each is a big flower, well able to hold its own with Craig on the exhibithe success which has attended the efforts of several growers, there are those who can not yet accept the verdict of the public. It will, however, be tried quite generally next year. A vase of Miss Kate Moulton, from John Monson, of the Minneapolis Floral Co., was set up by the Chicago Rose Co. It had suffered in transit, but was nevertheless to the growers one of the most interesting exhibits. George Field, of Washington, sent a large vase of his La France sport, Tom Field. The blooms were long past their best, but showed great size, and Wm. Laisle, Keokuk, Ia., sent a half dozen flowers of a cream colored sport from Bride, but these, too, were past their best.

Hild Bros., Lake Forest, Ill., had a vase of pink and white stocks which were worthy of special mention.

Anton Then staged his new Winnemac, yellow variegated; Lady Bountiful, Cardinal, Lawson, White Lawson and Enchantress.

Jensen & Dekema set up very fine flowers of Gov. Wolcott, Mrs. Patten, Nelson Fisher, Enchantress, Lawson and Boston Market.

Fred Stielow staged Lorna, The Belle, Lady Bountiful, a good light pink seedling and a better dark pink one.

H. Luedtke, Maywood, brought a vase of a rose pink sport of Enchantress.

R. Fischer, Great Neck, L. I., N. Y., sent Carnation Abundance and a vase of very fine freesia, Purity.

E. F. Winterson was manager of the show.

Club Meeting.

On the evening of March 8 the club held its monthly meeting, one of the best attended of the year and one of the most interesting. Among the visitors were R. Will, Minneapolis; N. Zweifle, Milwaukee, and E. E. Petersen, Denver.

The feature of the evening was J. F. Klimmer's relation of his experience with the varieties of carnations grown last year. Mr. Klimmer has a way of putting things which makes of interest all that he says. His remarks are printed in full in another column of this issue and are commended to all growers of the carnation as the candid, unprejudiced opinion of a good grower and a close thinker. Mr. Klimmer was preceded by J. D. Thompson, who told how he packs cuttings, read his directions for treatment when unpacked and expressed the opinion that if the advice were followed there would seldom be reason for a kick. He made a strong plea for more scrupulous business methods, branding many complaints he received as attempts to get something for nothing. E. E. Petersen said that Mr. Thompson's way of pack-

the present instance lies in the fact that the carnations are of a new variety named Victory. The flowers are crimson colored, of considerable size, moderately fragrant, and the petals are less fringed than American varieties are usually. Whether it is of better quality than some varieties which have already been imported of the same color will have to be determined after cultivation here. In the meantime, we could not conceal our admiration for the excellent grass on the stout, wiry, perfectly rigid stems. Certainly, carnation culture is tion table, and from what Jos. Psenicka, foreman for Wiator Bros., says, one at least is able to stand comparison of growth and blooming record. Mr. Hartshorne has not yet decided what to do with No. 49, and Wiator Bros. will grow No. 55 at least one year more before selling stock of it; it is now in its third year and they are propagating from 2,000 plants.

There were several vases of roses. Killarney, staged by Weiland & Risch, was in good shape and had many admirers as well as some critics for, in spite of ing was doubtless good for eastern shipments, but that for cuttings going to Colorado more moisture is needed on account of the drying effects of the atmosphere.

Jas. Berry, J. S. Dekema, H. J. Stockman, Jos. Psenicka and C. W. McKellar were elected to membership. J. S. Wilson and F. F. Benthey reported on the carnation show, enumerating all the exhibits, and complimenting all the exhibitors on the high quality of their stock. On the suggestion of Jas. Harts-horne, who asked nothing for his own splendid showing, special mention was made of the ten weeks' stocks of Hild Bros. A vote of thanks was given Jos. Ziska for the use of the room for the show. F. F. Benthey reported making a new lease on the hall and sub-letting the fourth Thursday to the Retail Florists' Association.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Meeting of Board of Directors.

When Theodore Wirth reached Dayton, O., March 6, the full board of directors was present and all the officers save Treasurer H. B. Beatty, detained by ill health. The board continued in session to 6 p. m. Wednesday and accomplished much, the general opinion being that there has never been a better meeting.

Perhaps the most important work was the bringing together of the local craftsmen and getting them harmoniously at work for a successful convention.

The fair grounds were selected for the convention, the dates set being August 21, 22, 23 and 24.

The work of the secretary's office was reviewed. It was ordered that hereafter the proceedings of the executive board be published in the annual report.

The secretary was directed to proceed to put into effect the plan of numbered badges and identification book adopted by the society at the Washington convention.

The S. A. F. medals were placed at the disposal of the several societies, as in recent years.

Considerable time was given to a discussion of the proposed school textbook and to school gardening in general, a place for which was made in the convention program outlined.

J. H. Patterson entertained the committee at luncheon at the cash register factory and tendered the use of his beautiful private grounds for the president's reception during the convention.

The following was adopted:

We, the members of the executive committee of the Society of American Florists in meeting assembled, state that the selection of Dayton by the society as the place for the next convention in August was a most fortunate inspiration. We are now enthusiastic as to the successful outcome of this convention.

A convention hall of ample size to accommodate all trade exhibits and to display them to better advantage than ever before has been secured. It is a circular building on high ground with large windows, nine blocks from the center of town, insuring delightful conditions at all times. The surrounding ground will display the outdoor exhibition to great effect.

Dayton, located in the center of the middle west, is a revelation to many of the eastern and western members. Surrounded by one of the richest and most beautiful sections of the country in the entire United States, agriculture, pomology, horticulture, civic and home adornment are carried to as high a place as anywhere in the world.

The deliberations of this body were most ably and efficiently presided over by our new president, William F. Kasting, and the energy and good judgment he has shown in these proceedings will insure an interesting and successful convention.

The committee extends its thanks to the two resident members, Messrs. Ritter and Altick, for their energy and kindness during the sessions of the committee here. It also wishes to express its appreciation for the kindness shown them by John H. Patterson, whose offers will make the convention a great success.

Our national organization is not furthering the interests of the commercial side of our profession alone but it is the means of promoting the florists', gardeners' and horticultural interests in general and in coming to Dayton we can be of much help to all.

National Flower Show.

During the meeting of the board of directors much thought was given to the national flower show authorized by the society at the Washington convention but which could not be brought to consummation in 1906. It is proposed to hold it in the spring of 1907. The conclusions reached were as follows, adopted by the board:

1. It is proposed to engage a manager of proven ability for this show and appoint to act with him three or more members of the board of directors as a finance committee, who shall authorize all expenditures.

2. Your directors recommend that the society contribute not less than $1,000 to the expenses of such an exhibition.

3. We recommend that this show be held in such city where active interest is taken, or in a very central part of the country.

4. The preliminary premium list will be prepared within a few weeks.

5. The leading commercial plantsmen and florists should be asked now to complete the proposed guarantee fund.

6. If the guarantee fund is completed as proposed the board of directors will proceed to carry forward the arrangements for the show, but unless this is done and the national interest thereby indicated, the board will not feel justified in going forward with the work.

The committee which at Washington undertook to secure a guarantee fund of $10,000 for the show, as proposed at Boston in 1906, consists of E. G. Hill, Robert Craig, A. Herrington, F. R. Pierson, A. M. Herr, W. J. Stewart, Peter Fisher, Alex. Montgomery, W. H. Elliott, J. C. Vaughan. This committee secured subscriptions, which it is supposed still stand for a 1907 show, with additions to March 1, 1906, as follows:

Anton Then staged his new Winnemac, yellow variegated; Lady Bountiful, Cardinal, Lawson, White Lawson and Enchantress.

Jensen & Dekema set up very fine flowers of Gov. Wolcott, Mrs. Patten, Nelson Fisher, Enchantress, Lawson and Boston Market.

Fred Stielow staged Lorna, The Belle, Lady Bountiful, a good light pink seedling and a better dark pink one.

H. Luedtke, Maywood, brought a vase of a rose pink sport of Enchantress.

R. Fischer, Great Neck, L. I., N. Y., sent Carnation Abundance and a vase of very fine freesia, Purity.

E. F. Winterson was manager of the show.

Club Meeting.

On the evening of March 8 the club held its monthly meeting, one of the best attended of the year and one of the most interesting. Among the visitors were R. Will, Minneapolis; N. Zweifle, Milwaukee, and E. E. Petersen, Denver.

The feature of the evening was J. E. Klimmer's relation of his experience with the varieties of carnations grown last year. Mr. Klimmer has a way of putting things which makes of interest all that he says. His remarks are printed in full in another column of this issue and are commended to all growers of the carnation as the candid, unprejudiced opinion of a good grower and a close thinker. Mr. Klimmer was preceded by J. D. Thompson, who told how he packs cuttings, read his directions for treatment when unpacked and expressed the opinion that if the advice were followed there would seldom be reason for a kick. He made a strong plea for more scrupulous business methods, branding many complaints he received as attempts to get something for nothing. E. E. Petersen said that Mr. Thompson's way of pack-

the present instance lies in the fact that the carnations are of a new variety named Victory. The flowers are crimson colored, of considerable size, moderately fragrant, and the petals are less fringed than American varieties are usually. Whether it is of better quality than some varieties which have already been imported of the same color will have to be determined after cultivation here. In the meantime, we could not conceal our admiration for the excellent grass on the stout, wiry, perfectly rigid stems. Certainly, carnation culture is tion table, and from what Jos. Psenicka, foreman for Wiator Bros., says, one at least is able to stand comparison of growth and blooming record. Mr. Hartshorne has not yet decided what to do with No. 49, and Wiator Bros. will grow No. 55 at least one year more before selling stock of it; it is now in its third year and they are propagating from 2,000 plants.

There were several vases of roses. Kilmarney, staged by Weiland & Risch, was in good shape and had many admirers as well as some critics for, in spite of ing was doubtless good for eastern shipments, but that for cuttings going to Colorado more moisture is needed on account of the drying effects of the atmosphere.

Jas. Berry, J. S. Dekema, H. J. Stockman, Jos. Psenicka and C. W. McKellar were elected to membership. J. S. Wilson and F. F. Benthey reported on the carnation show, enumerating all the exhibits, and complimenting all the exhibitors on the high quality of their stock. On the suggestion of Jas. Hartsorne, who asked nothing for his own splendid showing, special mention was made of the ten weeks' stocks of Hild Bros. A vote of thanks was given Jos. Ziska for the use of the room for the show. F. F. Benthey reported making a new lease on the hall and sub-letting the fourth Thursday to the Retail Florists' Association.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Meeting of Board of Directors.

When Theodore Wirth reached Dayton, O., March 6, the full board of directors was present and all the officers save Treasurer H. B. Beatty, detained by ill health. The board continued in session to 6 p. m. Wednesday and accomplished much, the general opinion being that there has never been a better meeting.

Perhaps the most important work was the bringing together of the local crafts men and getting them harmoniously at work for a successful convention.

The fair grounds were selected for the convention, the dates set being August 21, 22, 23 and 24.

The work of the secretary's office was reviewed. It was ordered that hereafter the proceedings of the executive board be published in the annual report.

The secretary was directed to proceed to put into effect the plan of numbered badges and identification book adopted by the society at the Washington convention.

The S. A. F. medals were placed at the disposal of the several societies, as in recent years.

Considerable time was given to a discussion of the proposed school textbook and to school gardening in general, a place for which was made in the convention program outlined.

J. H. Patterson entertained the committee at luncheon at the cash register factory and tendered the use of his beautiful private grounds for the president's reception during the convention.

The following was adopted:

We, the members of the executive committee of the Society of American Florists in meeting assembled, state that the selection of Dayton by the society as the place for the next convention in August was a most fortunate inspiration. We are now enthusiastic as to the successful outcome of this convention.

A convention hall of ample size to accommodate all trade exhibits and to display them to better advantage than ever before has been secured. It is a circular building on high ground with large windows, nine blocks from the center of town, insuring delightful conditions at all times. The surrounding ground will display the outdoor exhibition to great effect.

Dayton, located in the center of the middle west, is a revelation to many of the eastern and western members. Surrounded by one of the richest and most beautiful sections of the country in the entire United States, agriculture, pomology, horticulture, civic and home adornment are carried to as high a place as anywhere in the world.

The deliberations of this body were most ably and efficiently presided over by our new president, William F. Kasting, and the energy and good judgment he has shown in these proceedings will insure an interesting and successful convention.

The committee extends its thanks to the two resident members, Messrs. Ritter and Allick, for their energy and kindness during the sessions of the committee here. It also wishes to express its appreciation for the kindness shown them by John H. Patterson, whose offers will make the convention a great success.

Our national organization is not furthering the interests of the commercial side of our profession alone but it is the means of promoting the florists', gardeners' and horticultural interests in general and in coming to Dayton we can be of much help to all.

National Flower Show.

During the meeting of the board of directors much thought was given to the national flower show authorized by the society at the Washington convention but which could not be brought to consummation in 1906. It is proposed to hold it in the spring of 1907. The conclusions reached were as follows, adopted by the board:

1. It is proposed to engage a manager of proven ability for this show and appoint to act with him three or more members of the board of directors as a finance committee, who shall authorize all expenditures.

2. Your directors recommend that the society contribute not less than $1,000 to the expenses of such an exhibition.

3. We recommend that this show be held in such city where active interest is taken, or in a very central part of the country.

4. The preliminary premium list will be prepared within a few weeks.

5. The leading commercial plantsmen and florists should be asked now to complete the proposed guarantee fund.

6. If the guarantee fund is completed as proposed the board of directors will proceed to carry forward the arrangements for the show, but unless this is done and the national interest thereby indicated, the board will not feel justified in going forward with the work.

The committee which at Washington undertook to secure a guarantee fund of $10,000 for the show, as proposed at Boston in 1906, consists of E. G. Hill, Robert Craig, A. Herrington, F. R. Pier son, A. M. Herr, W. J. Stewart, Peter Fisher, Alex. Montgomery, W. H. Elliott, J. C. Vaughan. This committee secured subscriptions, which it is supposed still stand for a 1907 show, with additions to March 1, 1906, as follows:

Since the Dayton meeting the committee has sent out another call for subscriptions.

Outdoor Trade Display.

The executive committee of the Society of American Florists has arranged for an outdoor trade display in connection with the annual convention to be held in Dayton, O., next August. The pavilion in which the meetings and customary trade exhibit will be held is advantageously situated in a large fair ground which is well adapted for outdoor planting. Plans and diagrams are being prepared and will shortly be distributed.

In the meantime the secretary would like to hear from parties who are disposed to take advantage of this excellent opportunity to make a display of hardy or tender material in a community widely interested in the subject of garden adornment. Applications are already in hand for large spaces for the exhibition of cannas, Baby Rambler roses, phloxes, asters, hydrangeas, tuberous begonias, althaeas and fancy conifers. As the time is short for the preparation of the ground and planting, a prompt response to this announcement is urged. Information sheets and entry blanks will soon be ready.

WM. J. STEWART, Sec'y.

Smilax or asparagus, when in bloom, is especially inviting for a shower bouquet. Less ribbon and flowers are needed while these dainty flowers dot the vines.

Wash off some fine specimens of Dutch hyacinths in bloom and replant into a rose bowl or fish globe with pebbles and shells. Add a cyperus, also cleared of the soil, and set among a table or window of the same plants potted.

One "different" arrangement will often go far toward establishing a reputation.

GERTRUDE BLAIR.

A WILCOX WORK.

The accompanying illustration is from a photograph taken at Council Bluffs, Ia., of a funeral piece made by J. F. Wilcox for the obsequies, at Dubuque, of David B. Henderson, formerly speaker of the House of Representatives. The piece was a token of esteem from the Iowa delegation in Congress and was ordered by Senator Allison by wire. The nature of the piece was left entirely to Mr. Wilcox.

The design chosen was a crescent wreath on a base and was seven feet high and five feet in width. Across the top extended a graceful crescent wreath of Bride and Bridesmaid roses, lilies of the valley and asparagus. Below and inside of the wreath was a large panel of green, embedded in which was a flag composed of red and white carnations for the stripes, while stars composed of lilies of the valley shone from a deep blue field of violets. Beside the flag was a gavel of Enchantress carnations. A long bow of black silk ribbon hung from the handle of the gavel. Below the panel was a base of galax leaves, calla lilies and Bride roses.

Mr. Wilcox went personally to Dubuque to see the piece safely delivered and was pleased that it was easily the most striking set piece among one of the largest displays of funeral flowers ever seen in the west.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Speaking of centerpieces, try two or three cyclamens of good size in full bloom, white or white with violet tints as a center. Remove from the pots and bed into sphagnum. Fill in the rest of the space of the frame with sphagnum and cover with sheet moss or ferns laid flat. Stem long-stemmed single or double violets in groups of five or six to half a matchstick and fill around the cyclamens with plenty of violet foliage and some fluffy green to fall out on the table. The group of violets surrounded by their own foliage will resemble violet plants in bloom and the whole piece will be a fresher suggestion than all cut flowers could ever be.

Another favorite centerpiece is composed of all green except the border. Sharpen three or four dozen Sprengeri sprays and set in a group in the middle of the centerpiece, in sphagnum. Let the sprays fall outwards, towards and over the edge. Stem spring flowers and dot around the edge through the green, not very thickly. Sweet peas, tulips, carnations, half blown roses, violets and freesias are all good for this purpose.

At another time set in a good generous group of some of the interesting narcissus family or two or three kinds together, Von Sion, poeticus, Golden Spur, Incomparabilis and jonquils, and plant a heavy border of Sprengeri all around, covering the edge. A cluster of white or purple lilacs with a few poeticus interspersed would make a good combination. Richmond or Liberty roses and poeticus are good, also.

In some such situation use Azalea mollis and deep violet Dutch hyacinths, having the hyacinths planted and the azaleas cut. A liberal use of feathery green, preferably asparagus, will be the best for additional foliage.

White lilacs and shades and tints of violet Dutch hyacinths make a pleasing combination for a funeral spray. The hyacinths furnish the richness and mass to the spray, while the lilacs lighten and touch up the outline. This style of spray should have heavy, large ferns for a background.

Use nothing fancy, fussy or complicated for funeral work. If two kinds of flowers, or two colors of one flower, let the tie match the lighter color. If the spray be of one kind and color of flower, it is in good taste to introduce another harmonious color in the tie. For a spray of Enchantress carnations try a tie of Nile green chiffon or Florida moss. This green is also suitable for white or light tints and crimson. For a large cluster requiring a wide tie, put chiffon over a satin ribbon of the same width and much darker shade. Once in a while throw one of the flowers used in the spray back over the tie or draw it down tight into the knot.

The chiffons will not bear tying as ribbon will. Catch the loops and bows in place with the hand, fasten them in place with baby ribbon and tie around the stem with the same, leaving all the chiffon flying over the stems.

ROSES

MULCHING.

As the season advances when we may expect a longer duration of sunshine and of more intensity, we should, in order to take care of the feeding roots which will now incline to approach the surface, and also to supply those elements which have become exhausted, renew the supply so that the stock may have a store at hand to furnish nourishment to the spring growth which is now due.

The essential elements are nearly all found in their proper proportions in a mulch consisting of two-thirds decomposed cow manure and one-third good, fresh, fibrous loam. This should be well pulverized and thoroughly incorporated and spread on the bench about one to one and one-half inches deep.

Great benefit can be derived by giving the bench a sprinkling of bone meal previous to applying the mulch.

As the mulch has a tendency to absorb moisture, giving the bench a wet appearance, it is well to make a daily examination of the soil, as often the soil may be very dry while the mulch is wet.

With the increase of sunshine we will also have an increase of insect pests and care should be taken that those spring broods find no resting place. A weekly fumigation if efficiently performed will keep greenfly and thrips in check and as our opportunities of using the syringe are more numerous we can easily master red spider.

A sharp lookout should also be kept for mildew, especially among young stock, as a dose of mildew has a very deterrent effect on growth. Painting the pipes once a week with the sulphur mixture and using sulphur in the powder form will hold this in check, especially if the stock has been cool grown and ventilation properly practiced.

CARRYING OVER IVORY ROSES.

Will you inform me whether you would advise planting Ivory the second year? These plants were grown on a side bench and were badly shaded by a center bed of chrysanthemums in their season, which were early planted and grew very tall. The Ivory did not do much until the past six weeks. They are now throwing up a fine lot of canes.

J. H.

Replanting one-year-old stock is always more precarious and more subject to failure than handling young, vigorous stock. Requiring more skill and care to insure success, I have refrained from advising this method of culture.

To insure success these plants should be partially rested before transplanting and after planting they should be thoroughly soaked and the temperature kept as near 56 degrees as possible for a week or so, until root action recommences. After the first soaking they should be allowed to run medium dry, keeping the syringe going every bright day, which will usually supply all the moisture needed until the eyes begin to break, when the temperature can be raised to 58 degrees at night and more ventilation given.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

A paper on "Soluble Fertilizers," by Dudley Malcolm Pray, of the Eastern Chemical Co., has been added to the program of the Boston meeting of the Rose Society since its publication last week.

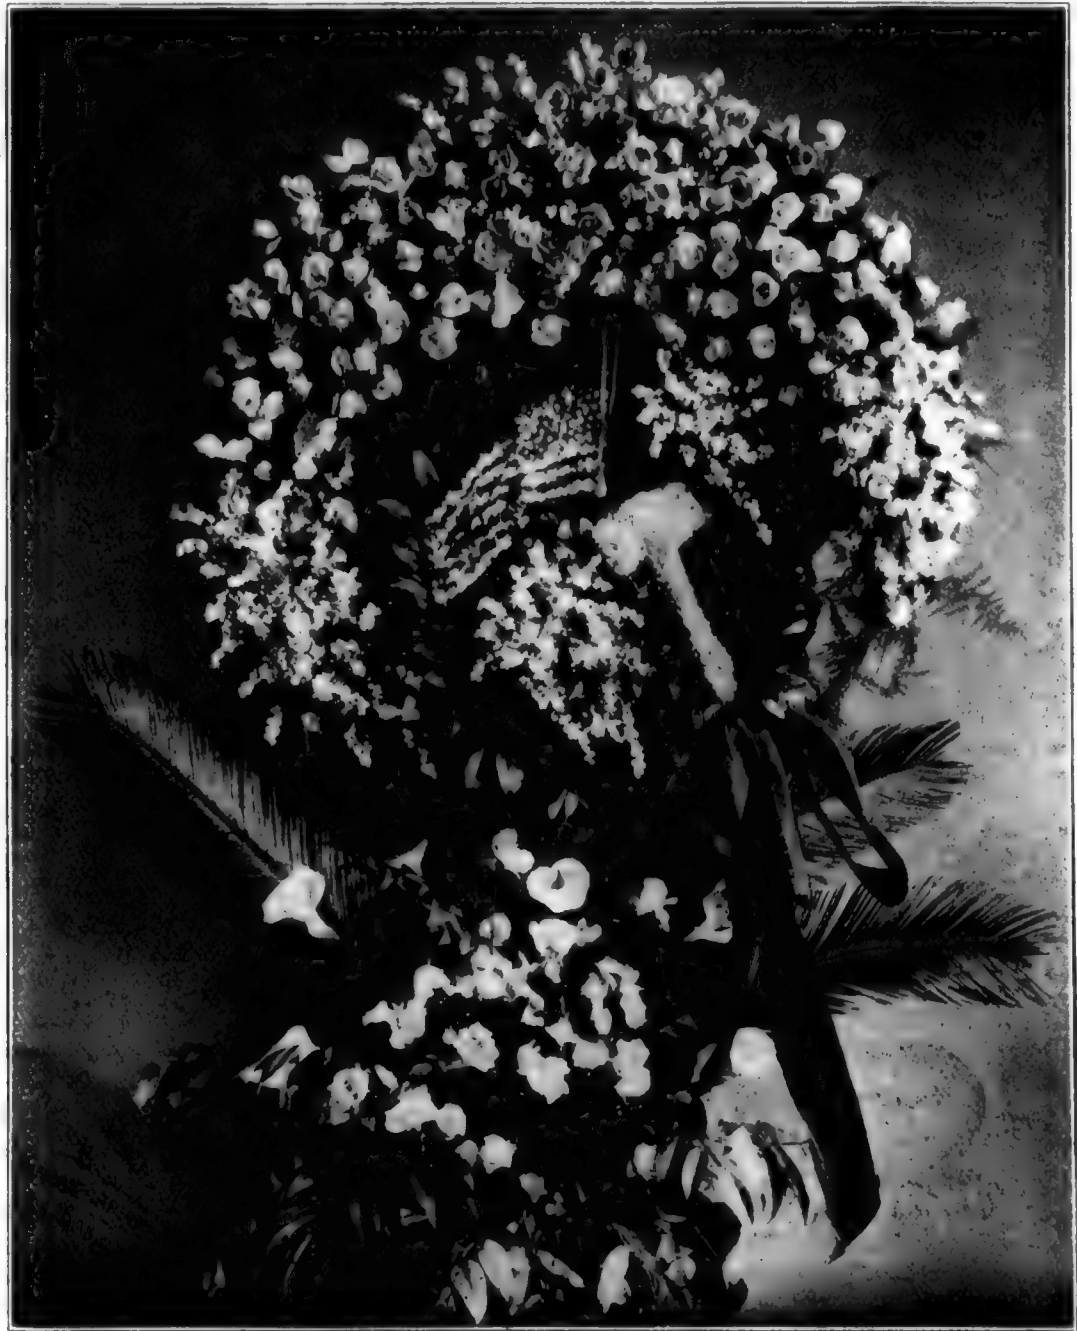

THE GARDEN ROSES.

[A paper by Nell McCallum, read before the Pittsburg and Allegheny Florists' Club, March 6, 1906.]

The rose has been immortalized by the most ancient authors. Homer's allusions to the rose in the Iliad and Odyssey are among the earliest mentions we have. Mr. Paul, in his Rose Garden, gives a translation from the Greek poetess, Sappho, who lived 600 B. C.; it is:

Would Jove appoint some flower to reign
In matchless beauty on the plain,
The Rose (mankind will all agree)—
The Rose the queen of flowers should be.

Historians tell us that those luxurious persons, Cleopatra and Nero, spent immense sums of money for roses and rose petals to strew on the floors and seats of their banquet halls. Pliny also tells us that it is necessary to move the earth to a depth of two feet in their cultivation. Coming down to modern times, Dr. Lindley says the pharmacopœia could be formed of the rose family alone; and Sir R. Christison tells that it takes 100,000 roses, the product of 10,000 bushes of the Damask rose, to yield 180 grains of attar of roses. The Damask rose is parent of the hybrid tea roses of to-day; it was brought to Europe from Syria by one of the crusaders returning from the holy wars.

Roses will do fairly well in almost any soil, providing it is not a wet, or a loose, sandy one; of course the ideal soil is a deep, strong loam and a sheltered position with an exposure to the morning sun shaded from the fierce rays of the noonday sun. A stiff clay land can be helped by draining and working in long stable manure, decayed leaves, sand and ashes and a sandy or gravelly earth by the addition of cow manure, clay, or stiff loam, but any ground which will grow good cabbage will also grow good roses.

Best Season for Planting.

The best season for planting the hardier roses is the late fall, but the more tender teas should be left until early spring. It often happens when you unpack your roses from a distant nursery that you discover the bark all shriveled; it is a good plan to bury them completely, at least six inches below the surface, give the ground a good soaking, and leave so for a couple or three days to plump up again. In planting budded or grafted plants, the point of union should be at least two inches below the surface, so that they may eventually become own root plants. In pruning, first cut out all decayed, crowded or weak growths, then shorten back as required, observing the rule that delicate and weak growers should be pruned severely, and strong and vigorous growers pruned very lightly. The rose chafer is a troublesome pest when he comes, as hand picking and destroying by coal oil, fire, or crushing is the only remedy for him; for other insects a solution of whale oil soap applied with a syringe will prove effectual in ridding the plants.

Many Ways to Use Roses.

There are many ways in which roses can be used to produce decorative effects outdoors, as dwarf plants in beds, as climbers on walls, porches or arches, as pillars, in large, isolated clumps, as a hedge or dividing line, as an edging to other shrubs, or to carpet banks and slopes.

Take, first, roses as dwarf plants in beds; such varieties as Hermosa, Marie Van Houtte, Madam Lambert, La France, Homer, Malmaison, Perle des Jardins, and the old Agrippina are better than the stronger H. P.'s, which are good as masses; such sorts as Baroness Rothschild, Mabel Morrison, Merville de Lyon, Rev. J. B. Camm, Louis Van Houtte, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Alfred Colomb, Marshall P. Wilder, Marie Bauman, Margaret Dickson, Gloire de Margottin, Francois Michelon, Fisher Holmes and Mrs. John Laing being glorious during their flowering season.

The rugosa hybrids are grand and useful roses for hedges or screens, lovely in foliage, flowers and fruit, and hard as nails in constitution. The Wichuraiana and its hybrids are splendid as edgings and to cover banks or ugly places. The rambler varieties, with prairie roses and climbing hybrid remontants and teas like Reine Marie Henriette, Gloire de

Outdoor Trade Display.

The executive committee of the Society of American Florists has arranged for an outdoor trade display in connection with the annual convention to be held in Dayton, O., next August. The pavilion in which the meetings and customary trade exhibit will be held is advantageously situated in a large fair ground which is well adapted for outdoor planting. Plans and diagrams are being prepared and will shortly be distributed.

In the meantime the secretary would like to hear from parties who are disposed to take advantage of this excellent opportunity to make a display of hardy or tender material in a community widely interested in the subject of garden adornment. Applications are already in hand for large spaces for the exhibition of cannas, Baby Rambler roses, phloxes, asters, hydrangeas, tuberous begonias, altheas and fancy conifers. As the time is short for the preparation of the ground and planting, a prompt response to this announcement is urged. Information sheets and entry blanks will soon be ready.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Speaking of centerpieces, try two or three cyclamens of good size in full bloom, white or white with violet tints as a center. Remove from the pots and bed into sphagnum. Fill in the rest of the space of the frame with sphagnum and cover with sheet moss or ferns laid flat. Stem long-stemmed single or double violets in groups of five or six to half a matchstick and fill around the cyclamens with plenty of violet foliage and some fluffy green to fall out on the table. The group of violets surrounded by their own foliage will resemble violet plants in bloom and the whole piece will be a fresher suggestion than all cut flowers could ever be.

Another favorite centerpiece is composed of all green except the border. Sharpen three or four dozen Sprengeri sprays and set in a group in the middle of the centerpiece, in sphagnum. Smilax or asparagus, when in bloom, is especially inviting for a shower bouquet. Less ribbon and flowers are needed while these dainty flowers dot the vines.

Wash off some fine specimens of Dutch hyacinths in bloom and replant into a rose bowl or fish globe with pebbles and shells. Add a cyperus, also cleared of the soil, and set among a table or window of the same plants potted.

One "different" arrangement will often go far toward establishing a reputation.

A WILCOX WORK.

The accompanying illustration is from a photograph taken at Council Bluffs, Ia., of a funeral piece made by J. F. Wilcox for the obsequies, at Dubuque, of David B. Henderson, formerly speaker of the House of Representatives. The piece was a token of esteem from the Iowa delegation in Congress and was ordered by Senator Allison by wire. The nature of the piece was left entirely to Mr. Wilcox.

The design chosen was a crescent wreath on a base and was seven feet high and five feet in width. Across the top extended a graceful crescent wreath of Bride and Bridesmaid roses, lilies of the valley and asparagus. Below and inside of the wreath was a large panel of green, embedded in which was a flag composed of red and white carnations for the stripes, while stars composed of lilies of the valley shone from a deep blue field of violets. Beside the flag was a gavel of Enchantress carnations. A long bow of black silk ribbon hung from the handle of the gavel. Below the panel was a base of galax leaves, calla lilies and Bride roses.

Mr. Wilcox went personally to Dubuque to see the piece safely delivered and was pleased that it was easily the most striking set piece among one of the largest displays of funeral flowers ever seen in the west.

Dijon, W. Allen Richardson, Jules Margottin, Glory of Cheshunt, Victor Verdier, Bessie Johnson, are magnificent as pillars, on arches, walls, or porches. Dean Hole says we should have in our gardens, "Beds of roses, bowers of roses, hedges of roses, pillars of roses, arches of roses, fountains of roses, baskets of roses, vistas and alleys of the rose."

THE COAL STRIKE.

Every day it becomes more certain that there will be a general strike of coal miners on April 1. The committees of operators and miners seem to find no common ground. If anything, each day's developments show the employers and their workmen to be farther and farther apart. The miners' union wants an eight-hour day and an advance of about ten per cent in wages. The operators say that the promises made at the time the nine-hour day was granted have not been made good in that production has not been as great in a nine-hour day as it was in ten. There are various other points at issue, none of which will the employers concede.

It is apparent that the railroads and large employers of labor and consumers of fuel anticipate a protracted struggle. The railroads are storing coal as fast as they can procure it. Where they have no other facilities they are simply dumping it on the open ground in the yards.

A great many florists have taken time by the forelock and put in a sufficient amount of coal to at least last them so long as fires will be needed this season. Any who have not done so would be wise to lose no time. Prices are stiffening every day and will take a big jump as soon as the strike is declared. If the struggle is long continued the prices will not be lower, if, indeed, it is possible to procure fuel, before fires are needed in the fall.

any old pseudo-bulbs, however old they may be, unless they have turned black. If they are green they are sending down the vital force that forms new roots and the growth.

Now, Mr. Craig and Mr. Orpet, don't criticise me too harshly if I have made mistakes. I am much more at home in a carnation house than an orchid collection, but for every one of my readers who knows more about the commercial orchids than does the writer, there are ten who know almost nothing.

Coelogyne Cristata.

Coelogyne cristata, the most useful of the genus, has been much used the last few weeks. It is one of the few white orchids and figured largely in Miss Roosevelt's wedding bouquet, made by Mr. Blackistone, whom all the sports in the trade will remember as the able manager of the shooting tournament at Washington, which is a further proof of what I have always insisted must be the case: To be a successful florist or artist, or even bishop, you must also be a sport, or at least love sport and games, even if you have to curb them to suit conventional ideas.

The coelogyne is a very easily managed orchid and a most profuse bloomer. This is the season of flowering, and when that is over is the time to repot or divide your stock. They are best grown in pans. Their bulbs, which much more resemble a bulb than do the so-called pseudo-bulbs of the cattleya, are formed in thick clusters, and, as they need a great amount of water in their growing season, they should not be grown on blocks. Fill the pan almost full of clean broken crocks. The compost, in addition to fibrous peat and sphagnum, should have some fibrous loam, sod from a pasture with the soil or loam well shaken out, also some broken-up charcoal. Let the roots rest on an inch of this compost and be well surrounded with the same material. Keep the plants shaded and frequently sprayed after shifting or dividing for a few weeks.

Their growing season is from April on through the summer, and until the mature bulb is formed give them copious waterings and frequent spraying. When the bulb is matured less water is needed, but never so dry that the new bulb shrivels during the winter months. They do very well in any ordinary greenhouse where the temperature does not go below 45 degrees, and they flower well in a temperature of 55 degrees, so at least no special house is needed for this pretty orchid. It has been the fad with us of late, when supplying a bunch of 100 violets, to have it crowned with a flower of cattleya or spray of coelogyne.

Stage of Easter Stock.

Questions are coming in as follows: "How early should lilies be to be in flower at Easter." Lilies should now be showing their buds so that you can plainly count them. If not, I consider them late. They will come fast now, as well as endure a high temperature.

Hydrangeas should plainly show their flowers. Hybrid roses should be just about so you can feel their buds in the top of their growth, and the Crimson Rambler should be sending out the small cluster of buds free of the foliage.

MISCELLANEOUS SEASONABLE HINTS.

A Chapter on Orchids.

Many florists have been tempted to try a few orchids, and most likely the one selected will be the useful and beautiful cattleyas. In fact, the great majority of our patrons, when they speak of an orchid, have no other flower in mind, and would not recognize a cyripedium or oncidium as an orchid. It is cattleyas that are wanted.

As they are natives of northern Brazil and Venezuela and adjacent tropical countries, it is evident they must in their native and natural state be exposed to the tropical suns, a high temperature, yet plenty of fresh air. A writer on these lovely orchids says a cattleya house should have ventilation top and bottom, but I have found that plenty of top ventilation will do. A light shading is necessary when the young pseudo-bulbs are growing.

Shifting the Cattleyas.

Shortly after flowering, when the plants are dormant, is the time to do any shifting, cleaning or fixing up with fresh material, so it is rather late now to disturb C. labiata or any species that flowers in early winter, but if growth has not started it can still be done. For those fine species Trianae and Percivaliana it is just the time.

Where large quantities are grown the board system is still largely in vogue, but they can be grown equally as well, if not as cheaply, in wooden baskets or ordinary flower pots.

When removing worn out or decayed peat or moss from the surface or among the roots is a good time to thoroughly clean the bulbs of scale or other insects with which they may be infested. If the roots are loose on the boards or in the baskets they should be securely fastened with wire, for if the plant can sway about the roots will constantly be disturbed and poor results must follow. Experts lay great stress on this, and that the peat used in covering and between the roots should be firmly packed. I am supposing you know all about the liberal amount of drainage that these orchids require. If they thrive and grow wired to a flat board, with only a thin medium of peat and moss for their roots, it is evident they do not need much depth for their roots. This is the case with all the orchids known as epiphytal, or growing in the forks of trees, while terrestrial orchids, like cyripediums, make roots down into the compost of the pots.

Peat and Temperature.

One well known grower says "too much stress cannot be laid on soft peat." By that he means that what is used as peat with us is often like a bunch of wire, hard roots that will absorb no moisture and, therefore, cannot give it off again to the benefit of the orchid roots. Our peat is mostly all the tough fibrous roots of some of our strong growing native ferns, Osmunda regalis, and others. If too coarse and wiry it is not suitable for the orchids, so choose the more tender and younger pieces that will pack in closely around the roots and then cover the surface with live sphagnum moss. When the moss gets old and lifeless it is useless to the orchids; when it is green and growing it is a pretty sure indication that your orchids are doing well.

When making their bulbs they should be given a warm, moist atmosphere and an abundant supply of water. After the new bulbs have matured, and until new breaks appear, less water is needed and more air and sunlight can be given. From 55 to 70 degrees night temperature is most desirable, the latter when they are in active growth, the former from the time the new bulb is matured until they break into growth again after flowering.

A cattleya out of flower is by no means an ornamental plant except to the real gardener, who enjoys to see his charge in perfect health. Don't cut off

PROFITABLE PUBLICITY.

Following the discussion which took place at the Washington convention of the S. A. F., the National Council of Horticulture at its meeting at Cleveland last fall determined to go ahead with a plan to profit all forms of horticultural activity by supplying the newspapers of the country with sane matter pertaining to plants and gardening, giving particular attention to the home gardening enthusiasm, which was the most noticeable feature in the development of our trade in the past year. Leading firms were invited to contribute $10 each to a fund to defray the initial expense, and a sum realized sufficient to the needs of the moment. At the Chicago meeting in January plans were perfected and last week proof sheets of three short articles were mailed to nearly a thousand newspapers. The favor with which the matter is meeting is shown by the accompanying etching showing the use the Chicago Tribune made of the articles in its issue of March 12. The heading is of course the Tribune's, but florists, nurserymen and seedsmen throughout the country will note the same matter appearing in their local papers.

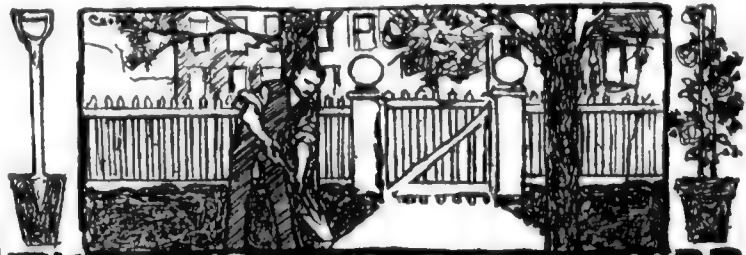

H. C. Irish, of the Missouri Botanic Garden, St. Louis, is secretary of the National Council of Horticulture and has charge of the press bureau. He frames up the matter and turns it over to James Burdette, who is the press agent for the Horticultural Society of Chicago, who sees to its distribution to the press. The success which has attended the first articles, which have already been given millions of circulation, insures the further development of the series. Prof. Irish would be glad to have suggestions from any one as to future articles. The number which can be used is necessarily limited, and it is desired to make each one as good as possible. Write out your ideas and send them to Prof. Irish.

Many editors have responded to the inquiry of the council and expressed themselves as only too glad to have the matter. It is planned to send the same matter to only one paper in a town, and it is hoped to in time get the work on a self-supporting basis, but for the time being all expenses must be paid by subscription. If any one cares to help, his assistance will be welcome. Address Prof. Irish.

The intention is to have the matter broadly helpful—to encourage gardening. No private axes will be ground. First of all the matter sent out will be accurate, truthful. There will be none of the fantastic tales at which we have all felt so many times mingled feelings of amusement and regret. To secure publication, the matter must be interesting. To achieve its end it must be actually helpful. To accomplish the best results it must be kept up. It is no small task for the few men at the helm. They will appreciate the assistance of all those in a position to profit by the rapid increase in the popular love for plants and flowers.

CATSKILL, N. Y.—Trade has been about twenty-five per cent better than last year, with a bright outlook for Easter. Henry Hansen will erect another new house this coming summer, making a total of eight he has put up since starting in business seven years ago.

THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE: MONDAY, MARCH 12, 1906.

THE AMATEUR GARDENER

Starting a Flower Garden.

Spring is here. It is time for flower lovers to begin planting their gardens. It is the time when the average amateur gardener makes his worst mistakes. Too often he buys seed which he does not handle properly, with the results that bare spots in the garden show where he expected beautiful blossoms. The young plants that he expected to flower are killed by the hot sun or choked under heavy or dry soil.

The amateur who would rival the professional florist in the radiance of his garden should make a start now by sowing the seed of many kinds of showy annuals in boxes or pots, to be kept indoors for awhile. The boxes should have holes for drainage in the bottom, but should not be so open as to keep the soil dry. Ordinary garden soil may be used in the bottom, but at the top there should be a lighter soil, well mixed. The small seeds should be sown on the surface; then fine soil spread over them and pressed down, but not so hard as to cause the soil to bake. Coarse seed can best be planted in little drills, or each seed pressed down into the soil, and the whole covered with a thin layer of earth, as with the small seed. The soil should be gently sprinkled with water immediately after the planting. Only the quantity of water which the soil can absorb without becoming soggy should be given. The box should be watered subsequently whenever the soil becomes dry a little below the surface.

It is a good practice to sow the seed in rows, as this enables the soil to be stirred to prevent it from baking. The box should be set by the window and given plenty of light, but at the same time shielded from the hot sun. When the plants have grown to a fair size, it will be warm enough outdoors to set them out in the garden. Only the strongest plants should be chosen for replanting. Ageratum, sweet alyssum, snapdragons, heliotropes, lobelias, nasturtiums, and verbenas can be treated successfully this way.

A Wild Flower Garden.

It will be a sad this year, as one result of an early spring, for amateur flower lovers to plant, for the admiration of their friends, gardens of wild flowers, transplanted from the woods. Many of the plants found in the woods and fields have foliage and flowers as beautiful as the highly cultivated kinds.

With the first touch of spring, before the snow and ice have disappeared from the more densely shaded places, the first wild flowers begin to bloom, and there is a constant succession of gay blossoms, increasing in splendor until late in September, when many of the wild flowers are at their best.

By making trips to the woods at various seasons, the flower lover may transplant such specimens of each variety as please his fancy. At home a bed should be prepared for them, placed where the plants may have some protection from the hot sun, and be watered regularly. The soil should be thoroughly enriched with well rotted manure, or some commercial fertilizer.

It is best to plant the wild flowers as a border, with all varieties mixed, as most of them are perennials, and it will be unnecessary to replant the border yearly, except to replace those that die. Owing to the different flowering seasons of the various varieties, if the bed is well furnished with many sorts, there will be constant succession of bloom all the summer. It is best to begin working the ground for the bed as soon in the spring as it is dry enough. The transplanted flowers should be carefully and regularly watered until they are well established. Afterwards it is only necessary to keep the weeds out. The seeds of many of the best wild flowers can be purchased of the seedsmen.

The Romance of a Sweet Pea.

It will soon be time to plant sweet peas, the pretty flowers which have been brought to great perfection in America, which often thrive in poor soil.

The parent of nearly all the most beautiful varieties of the American sweet pea is the Blanche Ferry, which has a pretty romance connected with its discovery. Some fifty years ago the comely daughter of a well-to-do farmer ran away from home to marry a young quarryman, and her home thereafter was always in a cottage, often but a mere hut, on the thin soil overlying the limestone ridges where her husband worked. When her baby died she went back to her father's farm to bury it, and took with her on returning to her cottage some seed of a white sweet pea, and seed of the old Painted Lady pink.

Thereafter, however great her poverty, she never failed to grow near her cottage home some of these sweet peas, as a reminder of her happy girlhood and dead baby. They were always grown in thin, poor soil, often so thin that they could only be kept alive by constant attention and watering. As a result of such environment for many plant generations they acquired a dwarf growth and a great abundance of bright colored flowers. Some twenty-five years after the baby died, a seedsman passing the little home of the mother, noticed the beauty of the sweet peas and obtained a teaspoonful of the seed. This he multiplied into thousands of pounds and sold as seed of the Blanche Ferry variety, which is now famous throughout the world for its beauty and the many beautiful varieties it has produced.

Greenhouse Heating.

NATURAL GAS.

Referring to the query of G. P. S. in the REVIEW for February 22, he can use natural gas in his boiler without any danger whatever. I have used it in a sectional return flue boiler for eight years with the best of results. Our boiler was located in the center of the plant. All that is necessary is to see that the piping is done carefully, so there are no leaks in the line leading to the boiler. We have experimented with various burners. If G. P. S. has to pay by meter rate, it would be well to carefully select his burner and mixer. But if on flat rates, simply take a 2-inch pipe, cut the lengths to suit the fire-box—two pieces connected in the shape of a U, with three rows of holes drilled an inch apart and three-sixteenths of an inch in size. Cover the grate bars with sheet-iron and bricks. If G. P. S. wishes further information will gladly give same by letter. S. H.

NATURAL GAS VERSUS COAL.

If natural gas can be obtained at 30 cents per thousand feet, how does it compare in cost with hard coal, hauling included, at about $5.25 per ton? My boiler is for hard coal. The piping from the main would be about seventy feet to the greenhouses. My expenses for coal run from $150 to $170 per year. M. B.

It is estimated that 30,000 cubic feet of gas is equivalent in heat producing power to one ton of the best anthracite coal. That would make 30-cent gas as expensive as coal at $3 per ton. To offset this the gas-heating furnace will require little or no attention. There will be no ashes to clean out and no coal to be handled. The value of these offsets must be considered in judging between coal and gas. If you can get the gas at 20 cents it would be a decided advantage, but it is doubtful if you could make it pay at 30 cents unless it saves the wages of a night fireman, which it does not if you use hard coal.

Vegetable Forcing.

A GROWER for the London market writes that "the beautiful little Golden Queen lettuce is pre-eminently the one for frame culture among cabbage varieties during the winter and early spring months, and until such time as lettuce can be obtained from the open borders. It is of a light straw color, without the least suspicion of coarseness in the leaves, and practically the whole plant is fit for salad. It is a variety that hearts quickly, and it may be said to be all heart, firm and solid, almost like a ball. The plants are also most even in growth."

VEGETABLE MARKETS.

CHICAGO, March 14.—Leaf lettuce, 35c to 45c case; head lettuce, $3 to $6 bbl.; tomatoes, $3 to $5.50 case; cucumbers, 50c to $2 doz.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Boston cucumbers, No. 1, $1.50 to $1.75 doz.; No. 2, $4 to $8 case; head lettuce, 35c to 65c doz.; radishes, $2 to $2.50 100 bunches; mushrooms, 15c to 50c lb.; tomatoes, 20c to 40c lb.; mint, 40c to 60c doz. bunches.

BOSTON, MASS., March 12.—Cucumbers, $4 to $12 box; lettuce, 25c to 50c doz.; mint, 60c doz.; radishes, $1.50 to $2 box; hothouse spinach, 75c box; parsley, $1.50 to $1.75 box; tomatoes, 45c to 50c lb.; mushrooms, $1.50 to $2 per four-pound box; rhubarb, 5c to 6c lb.; bunch beets, $1 doz.

PLANTING TOMATOES.

We have in our greenhouse a solid bed six feet two inches wide. We wish to plant with tomatoes. Could we plant three rows of plants in the bed, "staggering" them, or would they be too close? How far apart should they be?

W. C.

Your room is pretty limited for three rows, but I believe you can accommodate that number by planting as you suggest and allowing eighteen inches between the plants in the rows. By training to single stem, sufficient light ought to reach the center row to give it a fair show. As a rule we plant fourteen inches apart, but at this distance in your case the center row would be too much shaded.

MUSHROOMS UNDER GLASS.

I have a range of six houses; five, 20x100 feet and one 30x60 feet, at present occupied with roses, carnations and miscellaneous plants. These houses will have to be torn down and rebuilt in another year; in fact, owing to their condition, we ought not to have used them this winter as the sash bars are decaying and the glass slipping. The windy weather has caused us a great deal of trouble this winter in maintaining a safe temperature. I have decided not to operate the plant another winter for plants and cut flowers, and will not be ready to rebuild until the spring of 1907. I am trying to decide on the best use to which to put these houses the coming year. I shall fill most of the houses with chrysanthemums this coming summer, as we were very successful with them the past year. I wondered if mushrooms would not be the best crop to grow to follow chrysanthemums.

Would the following plan be practical? I thought of covering the entire glass surface with muslin or cloth, treated with some waterproof solution. It occurred to me this would insure the houses being tight, would prevent any drip and would keep the houses warm. I would plant the spawn in the regular carnation and rose beds. The muslin might be made more opaque by means of some coloring matter, thus excluding the light. The houses are heated by steam. Now, will some one versed in mushroom culture tell me if this plan is practical?

H. G. W.

I don't see why your plan shouldn't work. Would tar paper not be better than muslin? It would serve the purpose as regards keeping out wet and cold better and also give you the necessary darkness. Darkness is not absolutely necessary to the growth of mushrooms, but when exposed to light they have a darker color and don't take the market so well. I would not think that the difference in cost would be much between the two materials.

COMMERCIAL GUANO.

hausted, what brand of commercial guano is the best and where can it be bought?

W. E. B.

There are several brands of commercial guano made, but I don't think it would be quite fair to recommend here any one brand over another. Probably you might get some information among your intimate friends; if not, try two or three of the brands and prove them for yourself. Most seed stores of any size handle it, and there are several companies which sell this line of goods, some of which will no doubt have agents somewhere in your locality.

DESTRUCTION OF ANTS' NESTS.

The following method of destroying ants' nests with bisulphide of carbon is recommended: Make a hole eight to twelve inches deep in the nest, or two holes if the nest be very large, by means of a stick or iron bar. Pour into these holes two ounces of bisulphide of carbon, and immediately cover the holes with earth. The bisulphide of carbon will vaporize, and its fumes will kill the ants. The work should be carried out at night or towards the close of the day, but under no circumstances must a naked light be brought near the bisulphide of carbon or an explosion will occur. Care must also be taken by the operator not to breathe the fumes, and if these two points be borne in mind the use of the material is both safe and effective. If an ants' nest should be found alongside a valuable plant, the bisulphide of carbon must be applied so that the liquid does not touch the roots of the plant.

SEA CLIFF, N. Y.

Death of F. Boulon.

On March 6 pneumonia claimed the life of Ferdinand Boulon, one of the best known men in the trade on Long Island. Mr. Boulon was born in France in 1841. At an early age he entered the nurseries of Andre Leroy, at Angers. Later he for a time had charge of some of the noted places in his native country. After working for a short period at his profession in Africa and in Europe, including the establishment of Van Houtte in Belgium, he came to the United States in 1881, starting in business at Homestead, N. J. Later he took charge of Dosoris, the famous estate of Charles A. Dana.

In 1884 Mr. Boulon purchased property at Sea Cliff, L. I., and there founded the Sea Cliff Nurseries. The establishment now includes fifteen greenhouses. Mr. Boulon planned and laid out many of the beautiful estates in that locality. Mr. Boulon was an expert plantsman. He was famed for many specialties, and as a violet grower had few equals.

Mr. Boulon leaves a widow, two sons, Ferdinand, the junior member of the firm, and Paul; and one daughter.

CHICAGO PREMIUM LIST.

The preliminary list of premiums for the annual autumn exhibition of the Horticultural Society of Chicago has been issued. Incorporated with it is the calendar of the exhibition. The most notable change is that a six-day exhibition is provided for, opening on Monday and closing Saturday night. To carry a show for such a time it has been necessary to arrange the premium list for fresh exhibits for each day; otherwise the show would not only wane in interest but the condition of the exhibits in the later days would be anything but attractive.

Last year's great financial success has emboldened the society to add considerably to the premium list, the total sum carried being close to $5,000. In a large number of classes something has been added to the premiums and in many cases they have been much enhanced in value. There are four classes for 100 blooms of chrysanthemums, with three premiums, aggregating $100 in each class. The rose premiums have been increased. For 100 Beauties premiums of $100, $75, $50 and $25 are offered. For 100 Liberty or Richmond the sums are $35, $25 and $12. Other classes for 100 will receive $25, $12 and $8. Vases of 100 Beauties arranged for effect will receive $100, $75, $50 and $25. The best arrangements of cut chrysanthemums will receive similar sums.

On the closing day there will be exhibits of carnations arranged for effect. For five vases of 100 blooms each premiums of $40, $30, $20 and $10 are offered and for best vase of 100 blooms one variety, $20, $15, $10 and $5. There are a number of silver cups. The sweep-stake features have been retained.

Those wishing to receive copies of the list will be supplied if they address E. A. Kanst, 5700 Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago.

WITH THE GROWERS.

Jensen & Dekema, Chicago.

The firm of Jensen & Dekema is one which has in a very brief period made its mark in the trade and which may be looked upon as likely to attain a leading place. The senior member of the firm, J. E. Jensen, is only 27 years of age, and his partner is one year his junior. They are skilled growers, conservative in all their dealings and the owners of a very well kept establishment of approximately 50,000 feet of glass. There are six houses, five of them 25x266 feet; the other 30x266. As shown in the accompanying illustration only half of the houses appear, the view being shut off by the boiler shed. The plant is new, the houses having been built within the past two or three years. All the space is given to carnations, the bulk of the product being shipped directly to retailers, not only at Chicago, but through the country. The quality of the stock is of the very best, but there is a small surplus, consigned to the J. B. Deamud Co. A large business is done in rooted cuttings, very much more than the firm hoped for when a start was made, a little over a year ago.

Lawson, Lady Bountiful, Enchantress, Nelson Fisher and Boston Market are the varieties most heavily grown. Next year Victory will be added to the list, about the only novelty to be grown in quantity, it being the evident opinion that this is the best red in sight. Mr. Jensen gives it as his opinion that in a short time the big four among carnations will be Aristocrat, Winsor, White Enchantress and Beacon. He says that it looks to him as though with these varieties the carnation growers should have about all they need wish for except a good yellow.

J. E. Jensen was born in Viborg, Denmark, August 23, 1878. At 14 he entered upon a four years' apprenticeship embracing all branches of horticulture, after which he started out to see a little of the world. After a short experience in Germany he landed in London and spent a few months each in a number of the leading establishments, arriving at New York March 17, 1899. His first employment in this country was with Hugo Book, Worcester, Mass.

After a brief time he decided to make carnation growing a specialty, and secured a position with Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass., where he remained for nearly two years and a half, making such good progress in the art that the last year and a half was spent in the capacity of foreman. This was at the time Enchantress was disseminated, and Mr. Jensen went west to enter the employ of the Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, of which establishment he was in full charge for almost three years, leaving there February 1, 1905. After a trip to the Pacific coast Mr. Jensen formed his present partnership with Mr. Dekema. Mr. Jensen is a member of the Chicago Florists' Club, the American Carnation Society, the Society of American Florists, is a Mason and an Elk.

John S. Dekema is a Hollander, born at Amsterdam, June 28, 1879. After serving an apprenticeship of two years and a half in his native city he went to the Royal Botanic Garden at Leiden, to spend a year, going thence to Germany, where he was employed at Benary's and in other leading horticultural establishments. After a couple of years in England he came to America in 1900. Prior to entering into partnership with Mr. Jensen he was employed at Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.; Wm. Scott, Buffalo, N. Y.; Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass.; Thompson Carnation Co., and for two years was in charge of the plant of Matson & Kron, which he and Mr. Jensen bought on February 17, 1905. Mr. Dekema is also a member of the Chicago Florists' Club, and it is worthy of comment that each of the partners is single.

BOSTON FERNS.

Louis Wittbold, secretary of the George Wittbold Co., Chicago, states that his firm has been obliged to buy from REVIEW advertisers in the present season over $4,000 worth of Boston ferns to supply the demand after their own large stock of this old favorite variety was exhausted. There is usually a time in the autumn when Bostons are pushing for a market, because of crowded houses, but before spring a stock of Bostons becomes excellent property. The Wittbold Co. says that the introduction of the several new varieties of nephrolepis which have appeared in recent years has not in the least affected the sale of Bostons; that on the contrary the old variety continues to grow in popularity and in the past year the call for it has been heavier than ever before. The Wittbold Co. will devote more space to Bostons this season than ever before and hopes to have stock enough for next year to supply all demands made upon them. They say the call is principally for plants of medium size.

I was of the opinion that by adding lime it would keep some sweet and thereby facilitate the action of fertilizers, but did not think there was any fertilizing properties in lime.

at all. My foreman differs from me in regard to lime and I would like to have your opinion. Also, would you continue to add lime to soil pile, etc.? L. E.

Professor Lindley in his Theory of Horticulture says that "where lime is mixed with decaying matter it hastens its decomposition and renders it more easily assimilated by plants. This is its chief horticultural value, if regarded as a manure. To some plants, such as many conifers, rhododendrons, heaths, etc., it is injurious. To others it appears to be an indispensable article of food, such as potatoes, barley, peas, etc."

Although lime itself is thus apparently a necessary element in the food of many plants, it is more especially valuable in soils by rendering other constituents valuable and reducing them to a state in which they may be absorbed and assimilated.

In applying lime to soil some caution is necessary, as it possesses the important property of setting free the ammonia contained therein, which is one of the indispensable constituents of plant food. Some limes contain a very large proportion of magnesia, which, absorbing carbonic acid very slowly, remains in a caustic state, to the injury of the roots of the plants. Lime rubbish is the old mortar and plaster obtained from old buildings and is an excellent manure, abounding with salts of potash and lime. It should be reduced to powder before using. R.

More About Price Cutting.

I was especially interested in the comments on price cutting in your issue of March 1, as one firm of this city has a bad attack of the same fell disease. They have been at it for several weeks now but the rest of us are all holding to our usual standard of prices, which is fully double theirs. One member of the firm is reported to have made the statement that they intended to put at least one store out of business; but so far we are all at our respective stands and, to the best of my knowledge, are all eating three meals per day as heretofore. I may add that one member of the firm is a retired Congregational minister, and another is a deacon, so it may well be that they are actuated by feelings of charity, especially in regard to putting their competitors out of business. WAY OUT WEST.

GALAX LEAVES.

Galax aphylla is well known as a useful plant for moist nooks at the base of a rock garden, and we often see it exhibited in collections of hardy plants. Yet, as far as I know, no attempt has been made to cultivate it in the British Isles for its leaves, says a writer in the Horticultural Advertiser. It seems to me that in suitable positions it should pay to grow for its leaves, which are now so much in use by florists. The foliage we now get in the market comes from America, and after traveling lasts longer than most English foliage that is used. We get the deep bronzy reddish brown leaves, also some with a bright green surface; the latter are probably grown in the shade, while those with the bronzy tint may be grown where they are fully exposed to the sun. I have recently noted wreaths, crosses, etc., with the bases made up entirely of the galax leaves, with a few flowers standing upon one portion only. I find the leaves are also extensively used for garnishing fruit dishes, etc. Although I have seen it with fairly good bronzy foliage in this country, the leaves have not been so large and bright as those from America. The slender spikes of pure white flowers are very pretty. Another name by which it is sometimes known is Blandfordia cordata. It is a native of Carolina, and was introduced into this country in 1786.

ful," was the only reminder of March 12 eighteen years ago. Some of the old fellows remember it, but it is wonderful how the new generation is developing in the wholesale section. There is room for all in this rapidly growing metropolis and the veterans still hold their own. Some of them have been here for over thirty years, several of them twenty.

With so much building going on around us, what will the growers do to dispose of the output? They build and build until one may safely say of building there is no end. Immense houses, too, some of them. Two up at Scarborough, of the U-bar kind, fifty-five feet wide, are going up soon for the F. R. Pierson Co., inspired doubtless by the Winsor carnation. Up the Hudson, at Rhinebeck especially, coming events cast their shadows, and as long as the soil holds out you may as well reckon on fifty new greenhouses yearly right in the violet section.

Speaking of violets, last week was a stunner. The best of them at times fell to 40 cents, and as to the left-overs, it seems a shame to put the curbstome merchants in competition with the legitimate stores and let them have the goods at $1 per thousand, doesn't it? And yet that is better than the ash can, for every flower does its silent work in behalf of the public taste for the beautiful in nature.

Lent is quite a menace this year; more so than usual. It seems as though the more religion one has, the more flowers he should have in his home! This sack-cloth-and-ashes business I don't believe in. Some day Lent will go out of fashion.

This fine, clear weather will help the Beauties—if not in value, in quantity. Bare as the market was last week, few flowers went above 50 cents. Some of the finest I saw over at Hicks & Crawbuck's, in Brooklyn, and 50 cents was top. I won't be surprised to see them 40 cents everywhere before this week is over.

Carnations are very abundant and the price is lower, though finer stock never reached the New York market. Of bulbous stock there is no limit. Lucky some of the wholesale stores and ice boxes are so large. Pretty soon everybody will have to have one like that of Ford Bros., as big as a house.

What an Easter this is going to be. Everybody is expectant and hopeful. The plantmen are all grandly stocked and buyers are already placing orders.

Lilies are coming fast. One would imagine Easter here to see them. Stock looks excellent and promises well. Little disease and little loss in any of the big houses around New York. What's the use of talking of bulbous stock? It talks for itself on every side. In every window there is enough and to spare.

Saturday was a fine day among the retailers, a sort of evening up for the week by Providence, with plenty of dinners and funerals to make them all contented.

Club Meeting.

At the meeting of the Florists' Club March 12 business was expedited in behalf of the great program in store. Thirteen new members were elected and six were nominated. Mr. O'Mara referred to his visit to Washington, with reference to free seed distribution. He moved that the secretary be instructed to send letters to the New York congressmen requesting their influence toward having the evil abolished, which was unanimously carried.

The exhibits were choice and varied. Henry Metz, of Glen Cove, brought a magnificent specimen of Asparagus Sprengeri in a bamboo basket. He received a cultural certificate. Guttman & Weber sent a fine vase of Victory and received the thanks of the club, later distributing the flowers among the fifty ladies present.

Lager & Hurrell displayed twenty-five varieties of orchids, some very valuable. They received a cultural certificate. Julius Roehrs Co. exhibited cattleyas, calanthes and other orchids, one plant valued at $500. They received a cultural certificate. Both firms deserve great credit for their generous interest in the club, the weather being unfavorable for shipment and many of the specimens being of great value.

The lecture by Prof. Nash, of the Bronx park conservatories, was most instructive and interesting and its value was enhanced by many colored slides. Mr. Sander, of London, England, gave an address on the experiences of his father in orchid growing. Peter Crowe and Phil Breitmeyer were present, but with their usual modesty could not be coaxed to address the crowd.

The commissary department not only supplied a splendid collation for the ladies and a roast beef festival for the men, but a musical entertainment far ahead of any former efforts. Songs, fancy dancing and music of the violin followed each other rapidly and all were worthy of the artists and the club, and it was nearly midnight before the company of 200 departed to the harmony of Auld Lang Syne.

Various Notes.

Wednesday evening, March 14, "Useful and Economic Plants" was discussed at the American Institute, G. V. Nash, the lecturer on the orchids at the Florists' Club, Monday evening, being the principal speaker. Mr. Nash is one of Sam'l Henshaw's pupils.

It was Mr. Blake, of Bonnot & Blake, Brooklyn, who was ill last week, as the balance of my notes concerning him indicated. This firm is badly cramped for room and need a store double the size for their increasing business.

F. H. Traendly and E. V. Hallock, of the S. A. F. executive committee, are home from Dayton, after a very strenuous week's work.

The auctions are in full blast, but the blast is not yet very strong, and the early birds are not quite ready to commence nesting, or planting. Prices are certain to be good this season. Fine rose stock is in demand and scarce.

The plant market will locate at the old stand and under the big tent, as usual. That big building for the market association, which the city was to build, is sidetracked somewhere, but everything will come to him who waits. John Birnie is still optimistic and will live to see his ambition realized.

Joseph A. Manda is still ill at the hospital in Orange where he has been for five weeks. He is very weak, but at last reports was convalescent and hungry.

Chas. Millang is never happy unless he has two or three enterprises on his hands and he manages to make a success of all of them. Now it is a big livery at 104 W. Thirtieth street, where he has leased the whole building. He has just disposed of a fine team to Herman Dreyer, of Woodside.

Max Limprecht, president of the Limprecht Florists' Supply Co., celebrated his forty-fourth birthday last Sunday with appropriate festivities. A surprise party, of over fifty friends, made merry and it was well on in the week before Max realized he was in the Dr. Osler division.

The green carnation is here. The wholesalers anticipate an unusual demand for the manufactured novelty and are preparing for it. The growers, too, are getting wise and Bobby Schultz was seeking the green fluid on Monday to have his finger in the pie with the rest of the Hibernians. The plantmen, too, are anticipating the sure demand for "the dear little shamrock" and many of the wholesalers are stocked. "There's nothing too good for the Irish."

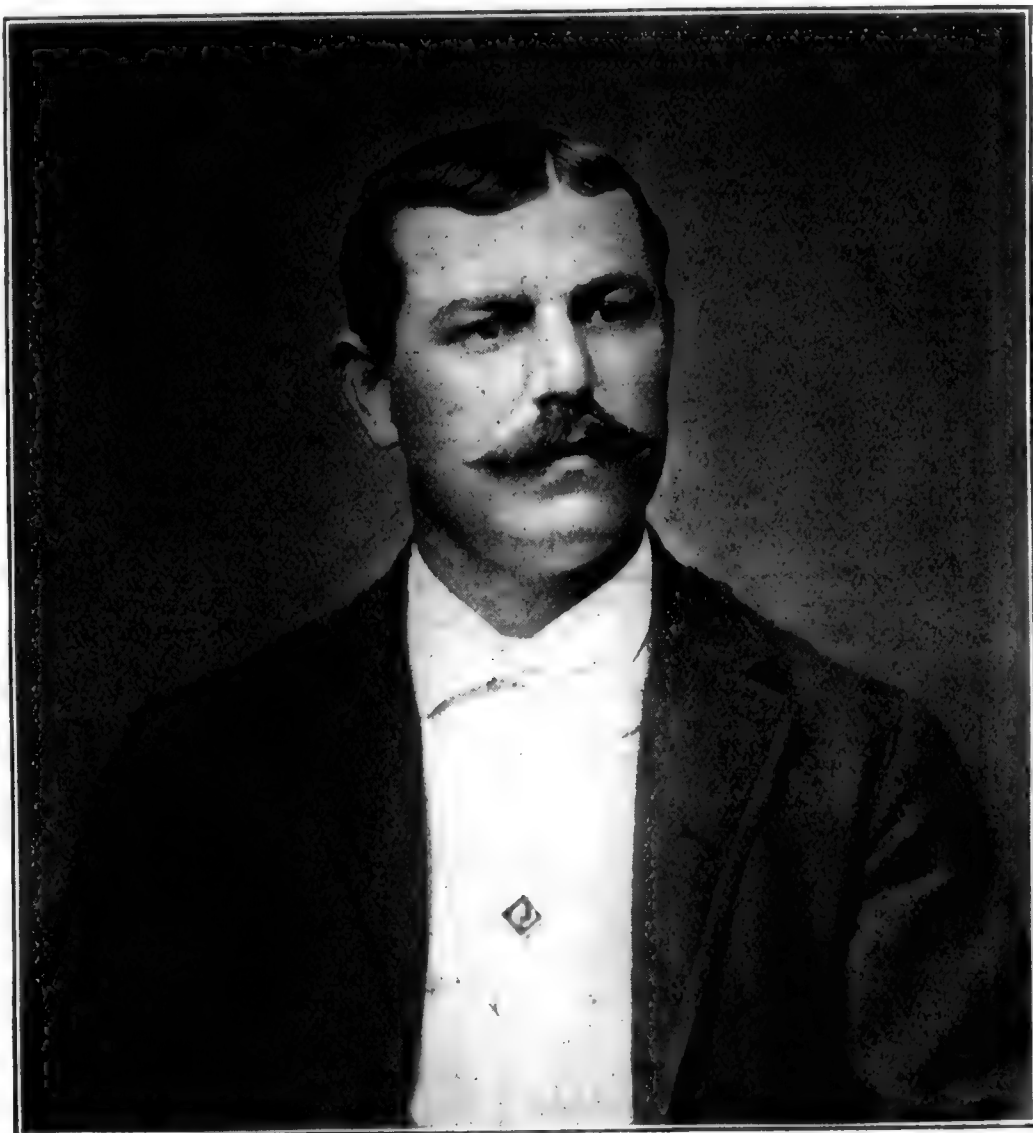

John Lewis Childs' great gladiolus, America, is having a phenomenal sale.

Peter Crowe, Mrs. Crowe and daughter are visiting in New York, also Mr. and Mrs. Phil Breitmeyer, of Detroit.

Mr. Sander, of Sander & Son, the great English orchidists, arrived from London on Saturday, accompanied by Mr. Mellstrom, the firm's new American representative.

Bowling.

Last Thursday, as usual, the Flatbush Bowling Club enjoyed an excellent evening of sport. Two handsome prizes were awarded the highest averages in two games, with the following results:

ILLINOIS FLORISTS.

First Annual Convention.

The first annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association was held at Peoria, March 9. There were about forty present and the organization of the society was pushed along to completion.

The convention was called to order at 10 a. m. by the temporary chairman, James Hartshorne, who introduced Chas. Loveridge, of Peoria, who assumed the chair. After a brief greeting Mr. Loveridge introduced Mayor Tolson, who performed the time-honored function of presenting the keys of the city. The morning session was devoted to the adoption of by-laws for the government of the organization. The by-laws fix the annual dues at $1; life membership, $10.

At noon the florists of Peoria entertained the visitors at lunch at the Hotel Fay. At the afternoon session the following officers were elected: President, J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville; vice-presidents, J. C. Vaughan, Chicago; H. W. Buckbee, Rockford; John Willis, Danville; Albert T. Hey, Springfield; Oscar Augspurger, Peoria; Joseph Heint, Jacksonville; A. W. Webster, Centralia, vice-presidents to constitute the board of directors; secretary, H. Hasselbring, Chicago; treasurer, George A. Kuhl, Pekin, Ill.

An invitation to hold the second annual convention at Bloomington was presented by the Bloomington delegation. The balance of the afternoon was devoted to a discussion of the purposes for which the society is organized, especially the feature of obtaining legislation for experimental greenhouses at the state agricultural college.

The Benthey-Coatsworth Co., of Chicago and New Castle, Ind., had a fine exhibit of Bride and Bridesmaid roses, and W. H. Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., had an exhibit of excellent carnations and roses.

The Chicago delegation present included J. P. Foley, P. J. Hauswirth, H. Hasselbring, L. Coatsworth, John Degan, J. C. Vaughan and Anton Then. Others present were Geo. M. Garland, Des Plaines, Ill.; Jos. Smely, Aurora, Ill.; Jas. Hartshorne and A. F. Longren, Joliet, Ill.; E. E. Petersen, Denver, Colo.; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville; Messrs. Washburn, Bloomington; A. R. Knowles, Bloomington; Jos. Heint, Jacksonville; H. W. Gullett, Lincoln; Albert T. Hey, Springfield, and a number of others. All the Peoria florists were present.

LANCASTER, PA.—J. Paul Eisch will hereafter conduct his place at Marshall and Walnut streets, where he started fifteen years ago. For the past two years he was manager of the Glen Gable Garden at Wyebrooke.

DEKALB, ILL.—J. L. Johnson, who has had the care of the greenhouses at the Boys' Home, St. Charles, Ill., has purchased land in the east end of town and is preparing to build greenhouses for vegetable forcing. A good truck garden has long been needed here.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Detroit is having winter at last. More snow has fallen the past two weeks than since last November, about five inches.

Funeral work! funeral work! That is the general cry among the retailers. Never have the daily papers reported so many deaths as in the last few months. This is really a sad state of affairs, but as it is the florists' bread and butter, we must "grin and bear it."

The market prices remain about the same as in the past few weeks.

Various Notes.

Miami avenue is fast becoming the ideal florists' street. The high rent of property on Woodward avenue is tending to drive such firms as florists, hair dressers, milliners, etc., into the side streets. A magnificent new arcade building will soon be erected on Miami avenue. As it will be devoted entirely to the sale and manufacture of goods for women's wear and kindred industries, it will draw just the people the florists want.

Since the annexation of the village of Woodmere to Detroit, several important events have taken place, among them the incorporation of the Woodmere Floral Co., with Charles Warncke, Jr., as manager. About $5,000 has been invested in several new houses and show house, all iron framework and cypress bars, located at 228, 230 and 232 Woodmere avenue. Hot-water under pressure is used for heating.

The Michigan Cut Flower Exchange has just received about a car-load of sphagnum moss.

Club Meeting.

At the regular meeting of the Florists' Club, held March 7, about thirty-five per cent of the boys turned out to hear what Jas. Taylor had to say about hot-water heating with a forced circulation. Having looked into this method thoroughly, Mr. Taylor is one of its strongest advocates.

In the discussion which followed, it was shown that the piping could be arranged so that in case of a breakdown of the circulating pump, or in mild weather, the heating could be done on the gravity system by simply sending the water through a by-pass.

The question box was next pressed into service. In answer to a question on the best coal, Pocahontas in lump or egg size was thought the best. The prices of coal were compared and it was shown that the price varied a great deal at different dealers, some consumers paying twenty-five per cent more than others for the same coal.

A letter, addressed to the club, from Mr. Wittbold, of Chicago, relative to his new mechanical watering device, was next read by our secretary. We are in hopes that Mr. Wittbold will make a practical demonstration in Detroit one of these days.

A committee, previously appointed, to arrange for a meeting of the growers, was disbanded, as it was found impossible to get the growers together.

Harry van Koolbergen, of Holland, being present, was called upon for a few words.

One flower of a new seedling carnation was shown by J. K. Stock. It is of a pleasing pink shade, somewhat deeper than Lawson, large flower, fringed edge and fairly strong stem.

The combined efforts of B. Schroeter and Hugo Schroeter are to be put into an essay on "Seasonable Preparations for Easter Trade," to be read before the club at its next meeting, March 21.

After the meeting was adjourned most of the boys partook of refreshments, the occasion being Albert Bemb's birthday.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

We have had another touch of winter this week. On Sunday more snow fell than on any previous day this season, and Monday morning the thermometer registered to within 13 degrees of zero. Again on Tuesday snow fell steadily all day. The result has been a noticeable retarding of production and the rose market has stiffened to about where it was a fortnight ago. Beauties are in active demand, with supplies, except on shorter grades, rather under market requirements. It is not always possible to fill late orders. There are enough Brides and Maids to go around and quality is excellent in a large part of the cut, but demand is more brisk and each day's receipts are cleaned up at better average prices than last week. Chatenay is not in abundant supply, but there are increased receipts of Liberty and Richmond, both of superior quality.

The cold, cloudy weather has had less effect on the carnation crop. At least, receipts are nearly as heavy as they were a week ago, although it is possible that had the sun shone we would now be in the midst of a glut. There has not been one full day of sunshine thus far in March. Early this week the market was oversupplied with colored carnations, which were sold cheaply, although of fine quality. At the same time there was a shortage of whites, possibly because the growers are storing them up for St. Patrick's day, when white promises to be in demand for turning into green. N. J. Wietor says that Lady Bountiful is the sort the experimenters have found best adapted to dyeing.

Mignonette is one of the surpluses. Harrisii lilies are more than abundant, large quantities of very short-stemmed stock being difficult to move. Bulbous stock is less pressing than last week, but it is all slow sale except the finer varieties of tulips. Hauswirth used several thousands of these in yellow and red for the Merchants' Club banquet at the Auditorium Saturday evening. Violets are in the dumps. They are making lower averages than at any time this season. It is impossible to sell out clean at any price. The green goods market has taken a pause.

Various Notes.

Interest in "red violets" has given place to discussion of another paramount issue: Who has the best carnation dye? It looks as though the supply of green carnations for Saturday contemplates a whole bouquet for every son of the old sod.

On March 8 the secretary of state listed the incorporation of the Chicago Wholesale Florists' Association, organized for the promotion of business interests. The incorporators named are the organization committee, Chas. M. Dickinson, E. E. Pieser and Leonard Kill.

One of the benefits resulting from the debate at Handel hall March 6 is that the wholesale houses no longer permit crape chasers to make up work in their places. The crape chasers, however, assert that it is no great calamity which has befallen them. They say that, not being beholden to any wholesaler, they are buying enough cheaper so that they can afford a small outlay for rent.

In the item last week as to the Weiland family of florists it might have been stated that the Weilands are first cousins of the Wietor brothers. If one undertook to mention the second cousins in the trade it would require enumerating about all the growers on High Ridge.

E. F. Winterson and Fritz Bahr paid a visit to Joliet on Monday. It will cause regret to Mr. Bahr's many friends to know that his eyes are giving him as much trouble as at any time in the past couple of years.

Weiland & Risch say that their Brides and Maids are a pretty well off crop, but Killarney is still blooming at the old stand.

E. H. Hunt has just received a big consignment of birch bark and twig novelties for Easter. The Dresden fibre ware and the Leichen baskets are very attractive specialties. Twig baskets are now made in Michigan cheaper than in Germany. They are of green twigs instead of dry.

The vase of Kate Moulton roses shown at the club's exhibition March 8 was still on display at the store of the Chicago Rose Co. on March 13 and were in very much better form than when seen at the club meeting.

The Chicago Rose Co. had its formal opening March 8, with refreshments for the many visitors.

O. W. Frese, at Poehlmann's, calls attention to the fact that the cut of the Poehlmann Bros. Co. is now of better quality than it has been at any date this season; much better than when it took the flower show prizes in November.

Louis Wittbold recently sent to a list of florists' clubs a paper on the evolution of watering in greenhouses. It made quite a hit in Washington and at Detroit the club was so thoroughly interested that an invitation has been sent to Mr. Wittbold to visit that city and give a practical demonstration of the operation of his watering apparatus. Geo. A. Rackham tenders the facilities at his place and Mr. Wittbold plans to accept the invitation at an early day.

It is reported that Chas. Heim, the Blue Island Floral Co., has sold out his stock and is endeavoring to rent the 10,000 square feet of greenhouse glass.

Jos. Foerster, at George Reinberg's, says that the demand has been growing steadily all season and now about takes up all they are cutting except colored carnations.

At the J. A. Budlong establishment they are busy grafting 50,000 roses, principally Brides and Maids, but part Richmond.

A. F. Longren is now on the road for the Chicago Carnation Co.

P. J. Foley is about and attending to business, but is not yet enjoying his full strength.

Geo. M. Garland says the iron gutter business this season is better than ever. He has already delivered 20,000 feet of gutters for this season's houses.

ST. LOUIS.The Market.

The trade has felt the effect of Lent only a little the past week, as most of the stores were very busy. A number of large funerals gave us several busy days. Quite a number of decorations were made for large down-town stores, but this kind of work for weddings and receptions is over for the next few weeks. The wholesalers cleaned up pretty well the latter part of the week and stock did not accumulate as it did a week ago. Prices went up a little on first-class stock. All light-colored stock sold well, very little being left over for afternoon sales.

Roses in all popular sorts are not any too many, with selects at $8 per hundred. Brides, Maids, Ivory and Richmond are in big demand. Fancy long Beauties sell well but are in limited supply. Plenty of shorts are to be had but quality poor.

Carnations bring a much better price than a week ago. Fancy grades are again up to $3 per hundred. Among those that have the call are Enchantress, Lawson, Prosperity and all whites. Bulbous stock is still very plentiful and violets are again abundant. Extra fine quality in Californias are offered at 25 cents per hundred. Mignonette is offered freely and meets with good demand. Smilax is selling slowly. On all other greens good sales are reported.

Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held March 8. It was not as well attended as it should have been, only twenty-one members being present. This being the annual rose meeting, the exhibition was practically confined to local growers and was not nearly as large as usual. Fred Ammann staged Ivory, Bride, Maid, Richmond and a fine mixed vase. Henry Braun, foreman for A. Jablonsky, showed an extra fine vase of Bride and Maid. Weber & Sons had a vase of Golden Gate. W. J. & M. S. Vesey, of Fort Wayne, Ind., showed Bride and Maid. The Minneapolis Floral Co. sent its beautiful pink rose, Miss Kate Moulton, which again attracted much attention.

The meeting opened promptly at 2 o'clock, with Vice-president Steidle in the chair. The discussion by Fred Ammann and J. W. Dunford did not take place, owing to the absence of the two gentlemen. The chair appointed Messrs. Koenig, Kellogg and Schray as judges on the roses. They reported as follows:

Best twenty-five white, Fred Ammann first, Henry Braun, both on Bride. Red, Fred Ammann, first, with Richmond. Any other color, Weber & Son first, on Golden Gate. The exhibits were then auctioned off by Frank Fillmore and brought good prices.

The next meeting will take place Thursday afternoon, April 12. At this meeting Messrs. Ude, Jr., and F. M. Ellis will lead discussions.

Various Notes.

J. F. Ammann will have a grand opening of his new store at Edwardsville this week. He has the best wishes of all the local florists in his new venture.

At the next meeting of the Board of Public Improvements, Park Commissioner Aull will ask for an appropriation of $125,000 to improve the greenhouses and lawns in Forest park. The houses are too small to grow the thousands of plants used in the parks of the city.

Max Herzog and his wife are traveling in Cuba.

Mrs. Wm. Ellison, of the Ellison Floral Co., spent a few days in Chicago the past week.

Henry Johan, of Collinsville, was over Thursday to attend the club meeting.

His right arm was broken a week ago. He says he has good times now visiting the different growers.

Henry Ostertag left Saturday night for a week's hunting trip up north and expects to bag a big lot of ducks.

Nick Himmer, at Meramec Highlands, will build five new houses this summer, for carnations and violets.

We read with regret of the death of Perry Finn, the Carthage florist. Mr. Finn was well known among the trade here. His carnation, Carthage, is a good one and should bring a good revenue to those he leaves behind, a wife and son.

Bowling.

The bowling club celebrated a double victory the past week. On Monday they beat the Juniors two games, giving them 100 pins to the game, and on Friday they won two games from the strong Enterprise team. The scores of the

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

One might have found something more exciting than the cut flower business has been the past week. There is a lot of everything; in fact, much more of some things than there is any demand for. The street stands had some very nice carnations marked 25 cents per dozen, which gives some idea where the price on that kind of stock has fallen to. Violets are cheap enough for the peddlers, some good stock being sold as low as $3 per thousand. Roses hold fairly well, but almost everything else is down to the bottom in price. However, the reports are that just a little more business is being done than the corresponding week last year, so there should be no complaint and the fact that it is the Lenten season covers it all.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club met March 6 and took up the subject for the evening, which was "Roses." The meeting was well attended; again let me call to the attention of those who cannot remember the meeting night that they are missing a great deal, as each meeting becomes more interesting. The display for Tuesday night was one of which the growers of the Greater Pittsburg may feel proud.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. displayed Kate Moulton but while the rose was admired and believed to be a very good thing, the growers are so well satisfied with the returns from Chatenay I doubt if many will be planted here this season.

W. H. Elliott, Brighton, Mass., had an exhibit of grafted plants of Killarney and Wellesley which were good; G. & J. W. Ludwig, a vase of MacArthur which were very fine, and Julius Ludwig says the only fault he has with the rose is that he cannot get enough of them.

The Floral Exchange, Tallytown, Pa., had Brides, Maids, Chatenay, Ivory and Queen of Edgely. This stock was generally good but the Edgely were specially fine.

David Fraser, gardener for H. C. Frick, had a vase of Killarney and Mr. Fraser says next year it is the only rose he will grow, as he ships all his flowers to Mrs. Frick in New York and, besides being her favorite rose, it carries better than anything else he has shipped.

The Pittsburg Cut Flower Co. showed Maid, Bride, Cusin, Richmond, Chatenay, Killarney, Perle and Bon Silene.

The Richmond, Chatenay and Killarney were worthy of special mention. This stock was all grown by the Pittsburg Rose & Carnation Co.

And last, but not by any means least, H. L. Blind & Bros. showed Maids and Brides as fine as ever were seen; their Killarney, Richmond and Beauties were strictly up-to-date, also plants of Crimson and Baby Ramblers.

This display of flowers was beyond the ordinary show and called forth many praises for the various growers who could produce such stock, as well as much valuable information on the how to do it. Another feature of the evening was the paper read by Neil McCallum, of the Allegheny cemetery.

It was conceded at the close of the meeting that John Jones was the right man in the right place as president of the club and all felt that they were looking forward to the most prosperous year for the Pittsburg Florists' Club.

CLEVELAND.

Business for the past ten days has been rotten. The shipping trade was the only redeeming feature, as all local florists were sufferers and job lots were about the only orders filled. It seems to be worse this year than at the beginning of Lent last year.

Geo. Bate, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., with a party of friends, spent the latter part of the week at the lakes, near Akron, O., where they enjoyed some fine bass fishing. He did not report the number caught, but says they had a fine time.

S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, spent several days in the city, and booked many good orders. The craft are always glad to see him.

GOVERNOR HERRICK

The New Single Violet

Governor Herrick, is the finest and freest bloomer ever offered for sale, the plants producing over 200 blooms in a season lasting from Oct. 1 to May 14. The color is a rich, dark purple, large open flower, on a very strong stem. It is the best keeping Violet on the market and received special mention at the Boston Carnation Convention after being picked four days and traveling 700 miles before being judged. At Louisville, Ky., the Governor Herrick was one of the sensations of the exhibition.

Prices of rooted cuttings are as follows: Per doz., $2.00; per 100, $10.00; per 1000, $75.00; 5000 or more, $60.00 per 1000. All orders will be filled in rotation, with the finest stock ever sent out. Write me to day for full description of the Governor Herrick.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Conditions are rather difficult to describe. Business is fairly active, but a little irregular and there are too many flowers for the requirements. The result is lower prices. Carnations, violets and sweet peas will all average much lower, though the best bring fairly good figures. American Beauty roses are lower this week, but there is not a sufficient supply in sight to warrant the belief that prices on good stock will recede much further for a week or two. The shorter grades of Bridesmaid roses are extremely hard to sell, averaging less than the same quality of Brides. The appearance of southern daffodils noticed in this column last week has preceded an increasing supply. These flowers are not usually perfect. They are popular with the street men, and affect the price of the northern grown stock, which is always taken in preference. Valley is plentiful. Lilacs still can be had in quantity. Easter lilies are more plentiful, and in moderate demand. Callas are almost a drug. There are some good tulips about.

St. Patrick's Day.

The feature of the plant business this week has been the great quantity of clover, politely termed shamrock, distributed by the department stores. These little clo—I mean shamrocks—grown in small pots, are given to every customer, whether he or she be a son or daughter of Erin or no, who enters the sacred portals of Lit's, Gimbel's or other of the large stores.

The manager of one of the flower shops, speaking of this eleemosynary business, said that he did not wish to sell his customers clover for shamrock, "and besides," he added, "the department stores give them away." There are, however, some of the genuine shamrock to be seen. Edw. Reid was sending out quite a nice lot of the simon-pure article. The price is, however, higher.

Southampton.

In a pretty hamlet on a faraway little railway Stephen Mortensen has built up a flourishing business in the growing of roses for cut flowers. Every morning except Sunday his night fireman takes large boxes of Brides and Bridesmaids, Liberties and Richmonds to the station, thence to be conveyed by express to Samuel S. Pennock, the wholesale florist of this city.

The influence of Wm. A. Leonard, familiarly known as the great grafter, is apparent in Southampton, for Mr. Mortensen, imbued with the idea that grafted Brides and Maids were better than own roots, purchased a couple of thousand from the aforesaid Wm. A. Leonard two years ago. They have done extremely well, as have all the roses here, but when compared with the plants on own root there is an absence of ground canes, so pleasant to look upon at this season of the year. Richmond is the gem of the collection.

To quote Mr. Mortensen's words at the rose meeting of the Florists' Club, "Richmond has paid me better than any other rose." Liberty will be discarded next season, and probably 5,000 Richmonds planted instead.

Various Notes.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., whose reputation as introducers and growers of sweet pea seed is world-wide, suggest the following varieties as best for outdoor sowing for cut flowers: Whites, Mont Blanc; pale pink, Katherine Tracy; bright pink, Burpee's Earliest-of-All (Blanche Ferry type), and lavender, Lady Grisel Hamilton.

Wm. J. Moore has the distinction of being the only one of the wholesalers who has not enough carnations to meet the requirements of his large business. Some of Mr. Moore's growers are, unfortunately, not producing as many flowers as last season.

A number of florists left this city on Monday afternoon to attend the annual banquet of the Baltimore Florists' Club. Among those who went were Robt. Craig and D. T. Connor. They expected to be joined by W. K. Harris, G. C. Watson, and, possibly, John Westcott.

John McIntyre has accepted a position with the Leo Niessen Co. He began work there last Monday.

Philip Freud arranged an attractive window for the Henry F. Michell Co., with shamrock, grass seed and sweet pea seed; the idea strongly brought out is

The Market.

After a period of showers and spring-like weather, we are having a touch of winter again, with the thermometer around 22 degrees. This has had the tendency of shortening up the supply and consequently the prices have advanced. While roses have at no time been in excess of the demand, carnations rolled in last week in very large quantities and the price dropped. Now there are not nearly so many of them and they are not so soft. Other varieties of stock are about the same as last reported. Some very good double violets are to be had; also, lilies are in heavier supply. Bulbous stock is selling very well, especially good hyacinths and tulips. Green goods are none too plentiful.

Carnation Show.

On Saturday, March 10, our annual carnation show was held, and it was a daisy. There were a large number of blooms on exhibition, our club rooms being filled to the limit. Never have I seen a collection of carnations of better quality. The show was open to the public from 3 to 8 p. m. and I will venture to state that at least 4,000 people passed through the hall. There was a constant jam. Never have we had a collection of blooms which was more representative of the carnation industry of the United States, as can be well seen from the following list of exhibitors:

rived in first class shape. When you consider the distance they traveled, it well proves their good staying qualities. He staged Winsor, White Lawson, Variegated Lawson, and Red Lawson, all finely finished blooms.

The W. C. Hill Floral Co., Streator, Ill., sent a vase of the shell pink sport of Lawson. It has a very pleasing color and looks to be a good one. One of the remarkable features of the show was that Lawson was shown in five different colors, all of them appearing to be good commercial sorts.

The H. Weber & Sons Co., Oakland, Md., sent some fine blooms, among them being My Maryland and a pink seedling, Mabelle. A few blooms of a seedling on the order of Prosperity, but darker in color, was quite a novelty.

Geo. Bayer, Toledo, sent a vase of very well grown Lawson, also one of Enchantress.

Honaker, Lexington, Ky., staged Enchantress in fine form.

The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., made a very fine exhibit, staging among other varieties, Lawson and Enchantress in great shape.

The Miami Floral Co., Dayton, O., had Enchantress and Prosperity in very good shape.

John Hartje, Indianapolis, showed a vase of Candace which made a very good impression.

Heller Bros., New Castle, Ind., staged a fine vase of Lawson for exhibition only.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. sent their new rose, Miss Kate Moulton.

Of our home growers, Wm. Murphy, George & Allan, Thos. Windram, Frank Snyder and Frank Huntsman staged some very finely grown blooms. Geo. Murphy showed some very good pan-sies.

Last, but by far not least, was the exhibition of our own Dick Witterstaetter. It is sufficient to say that the blooms he staged were fully up to his standard. Among the many new sorts none was more admired than Afterglow. It was surely in fine form.

The judges were Henry Schwarz, C. E. Critchell and D. Sunderbruch. The awards were made as follows. Best vase fifty blooms white, H. Weber & Sons Best 100 blooms, not less than six commercial varieties, E. G. Hill Co. first.

Best general display went to R. Witterstaetter.

The S. A. F. silver medal went to R. Witterstaetter for Afterglow. The bronze medal went to the Minneapolis Floral Co. for Miss Kate Moulton, subject to the approval of the national society.

W. E. Hall, of Clyde, O., sent a vase of his seedling carnation named E. G. Gillett. It was entered for our society's certificate but lacked two points of obtaining same. It shows all of the marks of a first class commercial variety, but it has a brick red color and, the judges thinking the darker shade of red to be the best, it lost heavily on that point. It was exhibited at our fall show, when it scored eighty-six points against eighty-three at the present time.

The H. Weber & Sons Co. entered their seedling Mabelle for a certificate. It scored eighty-two points.

In response to invitations sent out by our society, there were a large number of visitors in the city. At 6 p. m. they gathered at our clubrooms and then in a body adjourned to the Burnet house, where a banquet was in waiting. Covers were laid for sixty-seven persons and a jollier gathering it would be hard to imagine. Wm. Murphy, the president of our society, acted as toastmaster and during the course of the evening many of those present were given an opportunity of speaking on a variety of subjects.

At 9:30 a meeting of the society was called to order. J. W. Weber, of Oakland, Md., and Ray Murphy were proposed for membership. The rules being suspended, they were unanimously elected. E. G. Gillett spoke of the flower shows which will be held in September, during the Fall Festival, stating that at least $1,000 would be offered to be competed for. The Fall Festival Association wishes the florists to co-operate in making up a schedule which will produce the best showing at that time of year.

Among the visitors present were John Larsen, Wm. Hack, Henry Rieman, Homer Wiegand, E. A. Nelson, John Hartje, Sidney Smith, Fred Hukriede, Wm. Billingsly and Irwin Bertermann, of Indianapolis; Herbert Heller, New Castle, Ind.; H. M. Altick, J. Boehner, Geo. Bartholomew and J. B. Heiss, of Dayton, O.; Chas. Pommert, Amelia O.; J. W. KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business was poorer last week than it has been for some time. Large quantities of carnations are being sent in and this, in addition to the department store sales, has forced the price of this popular flower down. Roses do not seem to be overplentiful and are still selling for good prices, the best grade bringing $1.50 per dozen. Violets are sold at all kinds of prices, some being offered as low as 15 cents a bunch. Bulbous stock is in good demand, with plenty coming in.

Various Notes.

What will be, when completed, probably one of the most up-to-date and finely appointed retail stores in this city, will be erected the coming summer. For some time the vacant lot at the corner of Main street and Woodworth avenue

Guaranteed Fertilizers

Our Fertilizers are prepared especially for Florists' use and are analyzed by an expert chemist to see that they are free from all acids. You can depend upon their being just what you want, AND SAFE.

You ought to have these on hand at all times, ready for use.

PURE BONE MEAL

The brand we are selling has no superior. It is an absolutely uniform grade of pure bone, guaranteed free from acids, and is sold at as low rates as many inferior brands, which cannot be used with safety in greenhouse work.

PULVERIZED SHEEP MANURE

One of the most effective of fertilizers and largely used by the best growers, both as a top dressing and in the manure tanks. A trial order will convince the most skeptical of the superiority of our brand. It is the Pure Sheep Manure. No dirt, no weed seeds, nothing but what will give results. Sheep manure is a perfect fertilizer, containing all the necessary plant foods which are lacking in most soils.

has been adorned with a large sign bearing this inscription, "The Rosary Conservatory will occupy this lot." Diligent inquiry failed to elicit any information as to who was back of this new concern, but the secret has at last leaked out, and we have the information from a very reliable source that Ed. Ellsworth is to be the head of the project. We understand that a wealthy citizen of this place, at present unknown, is the silent partner and is furnishing the capital, while Mr. Ellsworth will be the active manager and furnish the experience. The location is without exception one of the best in the city for a business of this kind, as it is in the heart of the most aristocratic residence section of the city. Mr. Ellsworth has been the manager of Geo. M. Kellogg's store for some time and is well known here. He possesses both the ability and experience to make a success at his new venture.

Samuel Murray handled one of the most elaborate decorations of the season last Saturday, at Leavenworth, Kan., for the wedding of Miss Angell to Lieut. Mimms. The parlor was decorated with pillars of Easter lilies, over 300 lilies being used in this room. One hundred long-stemmed American Beauties and a large amount of ferns and smilax were used. The rest of the house was decorated with spring flowers. The bride's bouquet was a handsome creation of white lilacs and forget-me-nots and was a tribute to Miss Hayden's artistic ability.

W. J. Barnes will put in the decorations for the Emory, Bird, Thayer department store's spring opening next week. This is an annual event with Mr. Barnes.

This section is in the grasp of another cold wave, which may have a tendency to curtail the supply of stock and boost prices a little.

Mrs. J. E. Lord, of Topeka, and J. P. Cohen, of Lexington, Mo., were visitors last week.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

As forecasted in last week's notes, business has improved. There is considerable entertaining in a quiet way and several large decorations were furnished during the week. Several events are planned for the near future that promise to equal, if not excel, anything this season has brought forth. The supply of good stock is almost unlimited, fine roses and carnations being prominent. Carnations are being much used for table work but tulips and jonquils are also in demand. All spring flowers move freely. Hydrangeas and smaller stock in pots and pans continue to be in demand.

Club Meeting.

By a unanimous vote in each instance the following officers were elected at the meeting of the Florists' Club March 6: President, Peter Bisset; vice-president, Louis Freeman; secretary, Charles McCauley; treasurer, W. H. Ernest, re-elected.

President Bisset, since the reorganization of the club, two years ago, has served faithfully and well as secretary. His unanimous election was but just recognition of the faithful and efficient service he has rendered the club.

Retiring President W. F. Gude was tendered a vote of thanks for his efforts for the club's welfare and presented with a silver mounted gavel, the wood being sent from historic Mount Vernon by Superintendent of Horticulture Franklin Whalen. The head of the gavel was made from the wood of a tree planted by Gen. Washington, the handle from a tree planted by Lafayette. Mr. Gude, in response, spoke feelingly of the progress made by the club and expressed his determination to work for the erection of a permanent home for the club.

The carnations John E. Haines, Glendale and Red Sport, were exhibited at the meeting. John E. Haines, which, as is well known, was originated by the grower of that name of Bethlehem, Pa., having been exhibited three times at the club's shows, was awarded a certificate. Glendale, a fine variegated bloom, is by the Veseys, of Ft. Wayne, Ind. Red Sport was disseminated last year by A. B. Davis & Son, Purcellville, Va. Though not as large as some of the new scarlets, it has established an enviable reputation as a good commercial bloom.

The Banquet.

The club banquet at Freund's was an enjoyable event and furnished a feast of reason and other things and a flow of soul. As toastmaster, Pres. Gude called on George Field to respond to the toast, "American Beauty Rose." As Mr. Field discovered and disseminated American Beauty, he was literally at home with his subject.

Fred H. Kramer responded for Queen Beatrice and President-elect Bisset, E. A. Moseley, N. S. Hammer, Chas. Henlock and others spoke entertainingly.

The Market.

Conditions are somewhat improved compared to a week ago. No fancy prices are being obtained, but stock on the whole is clearing up better, the demand being nearly equal to the supply. The weather now is such that fakers can ply their trade daily and this relieves a good deal of the congestion which would otherwise take place. Roses are much more abundant and the poorer grades are harder to move. Some very fine Beauties and Queen of Edgely are now arriving and the best continue to make $50 to $60 per hundred. On Brides, Maids, Chatenays, Wellesleys and Killarneys prices vary from $4 to $12 per hundred, a small number of fancies going a trifle higher.

Carnations make $2 for ordinary, fancies going at $4, with a few higher. Violets are very little changed. In spite of the heavy output of these, few are unsold. From 35 cents to 75 cents are outside quotations, 40 cents to 50 cents being a good average price. Bulbous stock makes from $1.50 to $2. Some Murillo tulips sell at $3 to $4. Quite a few Orange Phoenix narcissi are seen. Callas and Easter lilies are abundant. The latter sell rather the better, at $10 to $12.50 per hundred. Green stock is abundant and of fine quality. Shamrocks are in heavy demand this week, varying in price from 50 cents to $2 per dozen, the latter being for small pans. Varieties are as numerous as ever, each store having its special brand labeled the "genuine" article.

American Rose Society.

Unless all signs fail the coming exhibition will prove a record breaking one in every way. Not only will exhibits far surpass those of 1905, but the attendance of rosarians from a distance will be fully double that of a year ago.

The annual banquet to be given the visiting delegates of the Rose Society by the horticultural interests of Boston under the auspices of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will take place on Saturday evening, March 24, at the Hotel Brunswick, Boylston street. Tickets are purchasable from James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery, P. Welch, W. J. Stewart and J. K. M. L. Farquhar. No tickets will be sold after March 23.

American Rose Society, will be more extensive than ever before. Already practically all available space is applied for and difficulty will be found in accommodating late applicants. Rambler and other decorative roses in pots, orchids, azaleas, cyclamens, cinerarias and bulbous stock will be special features. Carnations will also be extensively shown.

Band concerts will be given on Saturday and Sunday afternoons and evenings. These always swell the attendance largely.

The spring flower show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which will open at Horticultural hall, Boston, on Friday, March 23, promises to be one of the notable events of the present season. In connection with it will be held the annual exhibition of the American Rose Society, which will afford a rare opportunity of witnessing the perfection of bloom and beauty attained in the cultivation of this queen of flowers by the principal growers throughout the country.

Other features of the combined exhibition will be a magnificent display of spring flowering bulbs and Easter plants, together with Indian azaleas, orchids and carnations. There will be in addition collections of winter apples and vegetables.

The schedule of the Massachusetts Society offers 210 prizes to the value of $1,200, in addition to medals, while the Rose Society's list aggregates 188 prizes, ranging from $5 to $250 each.

The exhibition will open on Friday, March 23, at 6 p. m., continuing Saturday and Sunday, March 24 and 25, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., W. H. Grenell, Saginaw, W. S., Mich.; First Vice-Pres., L. L. May, St. Paul; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland. The 24th annual meeting will be held at Toledo, G., June 26-28, 1906.

THE market gardeners are now predicting a late spring.

SPINACH seed goes up two notches higher out of sympathy for sweet peas.

REPORTS indicate that many unexpected shortages in seed stocks are developing.

VISITED CHICAGO: E. M. Parmelee, of the John H. Allan Seed Co., Sheboygan, Wis.

THE growers are now after the farmers who will take a few beans on contract for next year.

BUSINESS is reported booming all along the line in spite of a week of very unfavorable weather.

SWEET CORN of the early varieties is causing trouble on account of its scarcity—or at any rate the uncertainty of its whereabouts.

MRS. A. L. AUSTIN, wife of the president of Rogers Bros., Chaumont, N. Y., and herself vice-president of the corporation, died March 7.

SEEDSMEN are cordially welcome to the use of this column in announcing business changes, or any other matters of general interest to the seed trade.

SOME of the people outside of the seed business who were induced to speculate on seed of the flat varieties of onions are reported to be sorry they spoke.

THE onion set situation is reported to be differently viewed from different standpoints. This is as it should be; if we were all alike nobody would make much of a show.

A CHICAGO market gardener is said to be looking for a congressman named Mann who it appears did not send him enough radish seed to fill up the frame he had prepared for it.

E. H. HUNT, Chicago, plans to handle Bermudian and Japanese bulbs, in case lots only, extensively this season. This department of the business has not been pushed the last year or two, but will now be given the same attention as the other lines.

ACCORDING to the State Board of Agriculture, the timothy seed crop in Illinois in 1905 was 64,625 bushels, valued at $1.75 per bushel, against 483,571 bushels in 1877, valued at $1.25 per bushel. The clover seed crop of the state has also been annually diminishing.

WINNIPEG, MAN.—The seed special which has been run over the Canadian Northern Railway returned March 3. Dr. Fletcher, Dominion entomologist and botanist; G. H. Clark, seed commissioner, and T. N. Willing, chief seed inspector for Saskatchewan, were the only passengers. They report an increased interest among farmers in regard to the importance of selecting good seed. The aggregate attendance at the 206 meetings which were held was 28,910.

The capital stock of the corporation is $25,000, and the charter covers a wholesale and retail seed and poultry supply business.

UP TO THE GRANGERS.

Ed. REVIEW:—You will probably be interested in the enclosed clipping from the Philadelphia Press. A number of us, including members of firms in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Richmond and Cincinnati, spent the last two days in Washington, and it really looks as if there were considerable hope now of work against the free distribution of common seeds becoming effective, provided we largely hide ourselves and induce our customers and others, particularly grangers, throughout the country, to write to their members of congress.

W. ATLEE BURPEE.

The enclosure to which Mr. Burpee refers was a report by J. S. Henry covering the Cocks motion to strike out from the agricultural appropriation bill the provision for the seed distribution, as reported in last week's REVIEW. Mr. Henry's story of the degeneracy of the said distribution, among other merits, is one of the most accurate yet published, and it appears that the several seedsmen who visited Washington March 5 and 6 may have done the trade no small service in attracting the attention of the country to the present opportunity to be rid of this petty congressional graft.

Burnet Landreth, secretary of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League, sends out the following:

At a meeting of seed merchants held in the city of Washington, D. C., March 5 and 6, it was decided to issue suggestions to the general seed trade as follows:

The following draft or skeleton for a line of argument has been drawn for the purpose of aiding the compilation of similar articles to be distributed by seed merchants to their wholesale customers, retail customers and to others, their friends who might be disposed to communicate promptly with their respective members of congress in many states, urging them to sustain the action of the committee on agriculture in expunging from the general agricultural bill that particular item covering the purchase of seeds for free distribution.

You are requested, therefore, if this thought meets your approval, to at once have printed some thousands of slips covering the subject and have them inserted in every letter sent out and in every package of seed, so that the united action of the seed trade will start tens of thousands of voters into communication with their respective congressmen.

The bill for its final passage will come up about the last of March, and it is imperatively necessary that congressmen be influenced to sustain the vote of the committee. The following are the outlined suggestions:

The appropriation for the free distribution of seeds for next year is now before congress and will be decided upon for or against by the first of April. The original law, enacted in 1862, authorized the Department of Agriculture to distribute only new and valuable seeds and plants. This authority has been stretched into annually increasing proportions, and has departed entirely from the idea embodied in the law. No attempt has been made to work strictly along the lines laid down originally; only the commonest kind of seeds have been sent out, and in such enormous quantities as to seriously hamper the postal service. They have been distributed at random, causing a reckless waste of public money. All right-minded people concede that it is an unwarranted use of public funds, and if you will write immediately upon receipt of this, today, to your representative in congress urging him to use his best efforts to cancel the appropriation for free seeds, you will aid in having a very valuable work accomplished.

SEED NOTES FROM ENGLAND.

The retail seed houses in England are now in full swing and they look to be having a good time. The advertising is heavier than ever before and some of the catalogues of the large houses are perfect works of art and complete garden guides in themselves. No amateur need do more than get a catalogue from such houses as Kelway's, of Longport; Sutton's, of Reading, or Veitch's, of Chelsea, to know all his hobby and by following the directions given can be sure of moderate success in almost any seed he buys. No one can accuse the British retail seedsman of not being enterprising and up-to-date.

I notice we have some well-known names from America entering the ranks and catering to the British amateur seed user. We have seed firms now delivering to the public by post and otherwise direct from Germany, France, Holland, Denmark and America. All these firms might be content to supply the British seedsman wholesale. They would not be losers in the long run. B. J.

ADAPTATION TO LOCALITY.

country for a number of years is moved to another section where soil and climate are different the plant always undergoes more or less change during the first two or three years before it becomes "adapted" to its new conditions.

The definite effect of climate in modifying the corn plant is shown in the following experiment: Seed of two varieties of corn, Snowflake White and Iowa Gold Mine, was obtained from Iowa and grown in Nebraska for two years. In the third year seed was taken from this, and seed was also obtained from the same original source in Iowa. These were all planted in adjacent plats at the experiment station. A marked difference was shown throughout the experiment between the different plats. In the Snowflake White variety the stalk from the seed that had grown in central Nebraska for two years had decreased almost a foot in height, the ear was 8.8 inches lower down and the ear shank almost two inches shorter, while the plants from Nebraska seed had an average of 1.2 fewer leaves.

The weight of both stalk and ear was found to be heavier in the corn grown from the seed just from Iowa, but the proportion of ear to stalk was higher in the acclimated corn. The Nebraska corn averaged almost 200 square inches less leaf area, which was to be expected of plants grown in a drier climate. The yield of grain was in favor of the home-grown seed.

The lesson to be learned from this is that to get the best results in corn growing the seed must be home-grown, and grown not only in the same state, but in the same locality.

NOTES FROM ENGLAND.

Japanese fern balls are an absolute drug on the English market. The various shapes, such as monkeys, flying storks, ships, etc., are never now asked for in the trade.

The novelty of the moment appears to be the earthenware figures in which a particular kind of grass seed is sown and after the figure is filled with water seed sprouts, and a crop of green grass appears. The clay figures are being extensively stocked, not only by seedsmen and allied trades, but also by other trades.

The Ghent azalea trade this year is very bad. It has been for many years a standing feature with small provincial nurserymen doing a weekly market trade to buy in a quantity of named azaleas each year from the Belgium growers, the size that will pot up comfortably into a 5-inch pot being most favored. Gradually prices have receded until this year a heavy loss in many cases will be made. Grand plants were on offer in a large provincial center this week at 6d each, which was not half the cost of the plants. The general opinion of the smaller growers now is that the time has come when there is no profit, or very little, to be made in England in any article but what can be grown throughout in the nursery. Prices for nearly all classes of goods have so declined that they will not now warrant more than a coke laborer and rent bill, and any article that there is an additional big bill to pay for stock plants is not profitable.

Quite a feature of the London market this year is the idea of ferns and flowers in one pot. This is accomplished by using a 4½-inch pot for an adiantum and placing at the edge of the pot at the time of potting the fern, four or six bulbs of tulips, Roman or Dutch miniature hyacinths and also using in the same way half a dozen or a dozen lily of the valley crowns. A very pretty effect is made when the bloom is seen mixed and half buried in the foliage of the ferns. A very ready sale for them has been obtained at fairly remunerative prices.

The shortage of Japanese lily bulbs, especially the forcing varieties, such as longiflorums and lancifoliums, promises to become acute. Although stocks are practically exhausted, quite a number of provincial growers have not yet got in their supplies, with the result that instead of prices getting lower, they have rapidly gone higher.

The begonia has entered the field of competition in the business of booming

BERLIN, ONT.

The town of Berlin, which is situated about sixty miles west of Toronto, is growing very rapidly. Four new factories are to be built this spring, two of those already established are doubling their capacity and one or two other factory firms are negotiating to locate here. Over seventy distinct manufacturing concerns are in operation here now, with still more to follow.

Notwithstanding all this prosperity the town of Berlin is not an ideal one for the florist. The Germans, who predominate, although lovers of flowers, are not prodigal in the purchase of luxuries. Nevertheless, H. L. Janzen, who in 1878 started in the market gardening and nursery business, and who of late years has been extending his florists' business, has about 35,000 square feet under glass. About one-half of the product is shipped. This latter branch has expanded so rapidly that it was deemed advisable to procure a new site. A short time ago fourteen acres of land were secured, located only about 300 feet from the present plant. This block of land is bounded on three sides by a 66-foot street and on the other side for a distance of 1,200 feet by the main line of the Grand Trunk railway. A spur from the latter will bring the coal direct to the boiler house.

It is the intention, in the course of a few years, to cover the larger portion of this land with greenhouses. Contracts have been awarded for the material for four houses 25x300 feet. The block system will be adopted. The entire construction is to be of the most modern type.

The King Construction Co. is supplying the structural material, all of which will be of the latest pattern, such as steel gutters, skeleton iron purlins, roof trussing and skeleton ventilators. This style of building eliminates all supporting posts excepting the iron posts immediately under the gutters. The glass, which is being especially imported, is twenty inches wide, of a superior English brand; it will be uniformly thick and cut perfectly square at the ends. Not an ounce of putty will be used, as all the glass will be butted. The heating will be by steam and, as the boiler house will be located on land much lower than the floor of the greenhouses, all the water will be brought back to the boilers by gravitation.

TWIN CITIES.

The Market.

Business the past week has not been very good. Stock has been coming in in large quantities. Some growers no doubt have overestimated the demand for bulbous stock, as a number of them have been compelled to throw it away in large quantities. While we have experienced a good demand for it, it has been grown in much larger quantities this season. The forepart of the month it was very cold and up to this date it has remained so; until we get good spring weather it can hardly be expected to dispose of bulbous stock in large amounts.

Roses and carnations have been coming in nicely; as the demand has not been very heavy nearly all the florists are carrying heavy stocks and the buyers can find almost everything they want. Violets are plentiful and some of the retailers have already begun to cut the price of them, one dealer selling them all week for 25 cents per bunch. Greek fruit dealers have been handling more stock the past week than heretofore. On account of the surplus of stock they have been able to buy cheap, and, of course, sell at a greatly reduced figure. Trade in the Twin Cities has been cut up to a large extent on account of the Greeks and the department stores.

Country trade in this section has grown to large proportions, and it is hard to find a florist but what is reaching out for it. As a rule, good legitimate prices can be obtained.

St. Paul.

C. F. Vogt reports a great increase in his country trade. This he says is due to the pains he takes in selecting the best stock for that trade. He does no advertising whatever, but every few weeks is able to add one or two new customers to his list.

One of our growers who has had poor success in growing lilies and has not been successful in getting them in on time has our best wishes for a crop in time this season. Judging from reports he is going to be successful this season. This is his eighteenth year.

F. G. Franke is bringing in some good roses, but a glut on the market makes it hard to dispose of them.

C. Bussjaeger is preparing to build one large rose house. With this additional house he will have six nice houses. He is now cutting some nice Beauties.

N. C. Hansen is cutting some fine violets, but the demand for them is not heavy. They are as plentiful as all other stock.

Minneapolis.

John Monson, of the Minneapolis Floral Co., has been very successful in disposing of his large stock of bulbous stock. He planted 500,000 tulips alone, and between his country and city business has been able to dispose of large numbers.

Geo. S. Murtfeldt reports a fair business. His store is one of the most attractive in the city and he is gradually building up a nice business in the face of hard competition.

Ralph Latham is well satisfied; his large acquaintance brings considerable trade. He makes it a point to always carry a good stock. FELIX.

PACIFIC COAST.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—At a meeting of the board of directors of the Southern California Horticultural Society, held March 1 at the rooms of the secretary, the following officers were elected: President, Walter Raymond; vice-president, Fred H. Howard; secretary, Ernest Branton, Los Angeles; treasurer, Jacob Dietrich, Los Angeles; directors, H. W. O'Melveny, Walter Raymond, J. W. Walters, E. H. Rust, Fred H. Howard, J. G. Morley, T. H. EXTERMINATING GREENFLY.

Would you kindly tell me a good and sure remedy for greenfly on outdoor stock in southern California? This is the first season they have troubled me. I tried the hose on them, but they seemed to be twice as many the next day. F. S.

From the above query I take it that the correspondent has made an effort to destroy the greenfly by turning a force of water on them from a hose. This remedy he will find quite effective if he persists in using it with a good force behind the nozzle. One or two applications will not be sufficient but if it is kept up three times a week for several weeks he will have no trouble with the annoying greenfly. It is possible to entirely eradicate them with whale oil soap, made in a solution, using one pound to five gallons of water. This, however, takes a great deal of trouble and if there is considerable space to cover it uses up quite a quantity of material. If only a few plants are to be treated it makes but little difference, as it is easily applied with a sponge or brush.

I have had good success with a good stream of water applied with plenty of force behind it, and have yet to see anything in the line of growing plants that could not be kept entirely free from greenfly if the application be kept up for a week or two at intervals of several days. G.

MUMS WITH CARNATIONS.

Will you inform me whether or not I can grow carnations and chrysanthemums successfully in the same house under Oregon climatic conditions, and what is the proper temperature for each. R. W. M.

Chrysanthemums and carnations can be grown in the same house, although it is quite a waste of room to grow the former in beds, as they are fully as easily handled in boxes and brought into the house from six to eight weeks before they are expected to blossom. I do not know whether the correspondent has any use for the benches he proposes to devote to them, but as the season is very short they can be put almost anywhere to perfect the blooms, then thrown out and the space utilized for other stock.

If he intends to plant them in solid beds they can be grown with little trouble in the same temperature as that given to carnations. They require plenty of air and unless for the very late blooming sorts, the temperature need never be kept over 50 degrees at night; and this is quite sufficient in this climate for carnations.

If he concludes to plant them in boxes and handle them in that way, they should be planted not over twelve in a box 12x24x6 inches. This I have found to be a very profitable way, as it regulates space very nicely and, as I state before, there is no necessity of devoting over three months at the most to developing and cutting the entire stock. They can be brought on in a shade house and will give better results in most cases than if grown in a house during the warm summer. The season for cutting carnations is from six to eight months after planting and the correspondent will do better to devote his benches to them.

G.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The continued warm weather of the last few days has brought many kinds of outside blooms into town with a rush. The white varieties of narcissi are completely out of bloom, likewise the Roman hyacinths. Daffodils, except the late blooming sorts, are over. Carnations have dropped quite suddenly in price and the best fancy stock can now be had at three dozen for a dollar. The other kinds do not net the growers more than $2 per hundred. Roses are only in fair supply and the demand does not more than equal it. Brides and Maids cost the stores about $4 to $6 per hundred and short-stemmed stock at about half that price. Violets are daily becoming scarcer and in a couple of weeks they will have arrived at their growing season when the blooms become very shabby. Freesias are holding out well; also valley and Dutch hyacinths. The prospects are good for a big crop of Easter lilies; our mild winter and abundance of sunshine has had a great deal to do with the case. Wild flowers of various kinds have commenced to make

C. W. Bennett, of Berkeley, has one large house devoted entirely to Liliun Harrisii and from present indications he will strike it right for the Easter trade. NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Pres., E. Albertson, Bridgeport, Ind.; Vice-Pres., Orlando Harrison, Berlin, Md.; Sec'y, Geo. O. Seager, Rochester; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester. The 81st annual convention will be held at Dallas, Texas, June, 1906.

WM. PLUMB has engaged in business as landscape architect at New York city.

THE park commissioner of Saginaw, Mich., is planning to further beautify the parks of that city by the addition of tall spruce, cedars, etc. The work will be done by I. E. Ilgenfritz Sons' Co., Monroe, Mich.

B. RUYS, Dedemsvaart, Holland, never has sent an agent to the United States, but says that the constantly increasing demand in America is not to be ignored by one who has stock to sell, and proposes to make a trip to the principal nurseries of this country in April and May.

CHARLES CITY, IA.—The Sherman Nursery Co. will make extensive improvements this summer. Additions to the greenhouses as planned will amount to 20,000 square feet. Adjoining the new office building on the northwest a packing and storehouse, 160x300 feet, is to be built. This will be constructed of stone from their own quarries and enclosed on top with a gravel roof. The company is installing a fifty drop system of telephones, twenty of which are now in operation. When completed this will connect all parts of the nursery with the office. They will also put in an electric bell system in all of the buildings.

THE demand for peonies for spring planting is fully up to expectations.

THE two-story frame office building of the Green Nursery Co., Rochester, N. Y., and its contents, were destroyed by fire March 8. The fire started in the basement and it is thought it was caused by an explosion of gasoline. In the offices on the first floor were orders for the spring and summer trade amounting to thousands of dollars. These were burned and cannot be duplicated. The money loss is estimated at $10,000.

GUTHRIE, O. T.—As a result of the difficulties which R. M. White, an Enid nurseryman, has had with the territorial board of agriculture regarding the issuance to him of a permit to sell nursery stock in the territory, the Santa Fe railroad has on its hands a car-load of nursery stock, shipped to White from the Watson nurseries at Topeka, Kan., now on a Denver, Enid & Gulf siding, awaiting final disposition. Charles H. Woods, assistant solicitor of the Santa Fe, who is representing the railroad in the matter, says that the Santa Fe will not deliver the goods until they have been carefully inspected, according to law, by the entomologist of the A. and M. college. As the board of agriculture has refused White a permit, it is not certain that this inspection will be granted, and there the matter stands.

Fifeshire, where his father was employed as a forester. His boyhood days were spent on this beautiful place, where the early love for gardening was imbued. At the age of 15 he went as an apprentice to the Earl of Rosebery's gardens at Dalmeny Park, near Edinburgh, where he learned gardening under the late John Moyes. His next place was at Riccarton, near Edinburgh, Sir James Gibson Craig's place. Leaving here he came to America in 1889 and found employment with Geo. C. Rand, at Lawrence, Long Island. From there he went to take charge of Henry Arthur's place at Sands Point; then to Edward Mally's place at New Haven, Conn. From there he went to Washington to take charge of Gardiner G. TO CONTROL THE SCALE.

C. L. Marlatt, entomologist in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, takes a pessimistic view in a bulletin issued March 10 in which he says that "the San Jose scale is so widely disseminated and has become so firmly established in the principal deciduous-fruit regions of this country that its extermination is now, in most cases, out of the question. In the main, therefore, the San Jose scale must be recognized as a permanent factor to be regularly dealt with as are other insect evils or the fungous diseases of plants."

He goes on to say that extermination is possible only where the scale is detected at the very outset on new or recently planted nursery stock or, at least, before any considerable chance of spread has been afforded. It is true that by the greatest care in the introduction of nursery stock the San Jose scale may, for years, perhaps, be kept out of districts now free from it, and one is warranted, therefore, in adopting every precaution to avoid introducing this scale and even to attempt extermination wherever the conditions are reasonably favorable. There is only one method of exterminating the scale, and that is by digging up and burning all infested trees. This is an heroic remedy and is advised only under the conditions of very recent introduction of nursery stock—in other words, where the scale is discovered within a few months after the purchase of the infested trees.

One of the main objects of the bulletin, therefore, is to emphasize the importance and value of honest efforts to control this insect for the great majority of districts where it has established itself, rather than efforts at extermination, which will at best rarely prove successful and will always be accompanied with great immediate loss. The other principal object is to designate briefly the means of control which experience has shown to be of practical value.

The methods of control which have been especially followed in the eastern states are (1) the lime-sulphur wash, (2) the soap treatment, (3) treatment with pure kerosene, (4) treatment with crude petroleum, (5) treatment with mechanical mixtures of either of the last two oils with water, and (6) petroleum emulsion with soap. All of these methods have proved themselves to be successful against the San Jose scale when properly carried out. As compared with the lime-sulphur wash, the next three mentioned are much more expensive, and the two oils, unless very carefully applied, are more likely to injure the treated plants. They are, on the other hand, more certain to effect nearly or quite complete extermination of the scale.

One's choice of method must therefore be governed by availability, special needs, and experience. In the main these remedies, including the lime-sulphur wash, are winter treatments and may be employed at any time when the trees are in dormant, leafless condition. The weaker oil-water mixtures and the emulsions may, however, be used in the growing season. The treatments enumerated are all for trees in the orchard. Nursery stock badly enough infested to require such treatment is best destroyed. For the general disinfection of nursery stock the hydrocyanic-acid-gas treatment is the standard and only satisfactory means.

FREE NURSERY STOCK.

J. W. Stubenrauch, a Texan, reports that the government distribution of nursery stock is progressing along the same lines as has brought the free-seed distribution into disrepute. "A few days ago, in a veritable snowstorm with a cold north wind, our rural carrier seemed to be extra heavily loaded. Asking the cause was told, 'An overdose of free seeds and plants.' When opening a parcel that was directed to myself, behold what I found: Two Lenoir and two Herbemont grape vines, all the way from Washington by mail, worth at the most, if they were needed, 10 cents. Jerusalem, what a gracious government! No wonder we farmers are prospering when we get such gifts. Now, the Herbemont grape is one of the oldest we have. Nurseries sell them at 5 cents apiece by the 100. The Lenoir is not worth standing room in our section of country. I discarded them as worthless twenty years or more ago."

HARTFORD, CONN.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held Friday evening, March 9, President Huss in the chair. The annual election of officers took place with the following result: President, J. F. Huss (third term); vice-president, Joseph Vidbourne; treasurer, Robert Scrivener; secretary, Alex. Cumming.

President Huss exhibited two plants of a new type of balsam impatiens and two fine specimens of the new hybrid, Cineraria stellata, for which he was awarded a certificate of merit.

The club as a body recorded its regret at parting with its late efficient secretary, C. N. Ruedlinger. Mr. Ruedlinger has been appointed forester on a large estate near Minneapolis, Minn., and will leave for the west in a few days. As a proof of the esteem in which he has been held the club members and other friends presented him with a gold chain and appendage and he leaves Hartford with the best wishes of the entire horticultural community.

MISS KATE MOULTON

The Beautiful New Pink Rose

WE ARE READY FOR YOU! We have a fine stock of plants for April and May delivery and we are booking orders every day.

We want YOUR order as early as possible, for you must not get left, as this is, as everyone says, "A mighty good rose." It is a winner on every side, praised everywhere by the growers, not for one point alone, but it excels in all points that constitute a good, practical Rose. It has no drawback.

WE are making no absurd statements, for we can back up what we say. Read what the Eastern people say about it:

Pittsburg, Pa., March 7, 1906.

MINNEAPOLIS FLORAL CO.,
Minneapolis, Minn.

Gentlemen—Our Club meeting last night was a very successful one, with a very large and good display of roses. You will be glad to hear that the "Miss Kate Moulton" arrived in good condition and was successfully staged. We admired it very much. I reported our meeting for "Horticulture," and you will see there more at length what we think of it. We think it was very kind of you and very plucky, too, to ship to us from Minneapolis in spite of the great distance, and in behalf of the Club, I tender you our thanks. Wishing you all success that the rose and your courage deserve, I am,

Respectfully yours,

THE PITTSBURG AND ALLEGHENY FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

H. P. Joslin, Sec'y.

Lenox, Mass., March 6, 1906.

MR. JOHN MONSON, Minneapolis Minn.

Dear Sir—Your box of Rose "Miss Kate Moulton" safely to hand yesterday, the 5th inst. It arrived in splendid condition, which proves it to be a splendid shipper. Unfortunately we did not get it in time for our regular meeting, however we held a special meeting to consider it. The committee awarded it a First-Class Certificate, and the unanimous opinion of all the members there (thirteen in number) was that it was well worthy of a certificate and the prettiest rose we ever saw.

Thanking you in behalf of the Lenox Horticultural Society, I am,

Very truly yours,

GEORGE FOULSHAM, Sec'y.

MILWAUKEE.

Trade conditions have been on the fluctuating order since the beginning of Lent. Stock would accumulate in all lines when there was a slump in trade and, followed up by a brisk demand, would clean up at fair figures. Bulbous stock is coming in at its best now, but no "get-rich-quick" prices are obtained. Violets are moving slowly and quality is on the wane. Carnations and roses are moving fairly steady, but demand is principally for cheaper grades. The quality of stock now coming in is unusually fine; some Enchantress, Lawson and Lady Bountiful are equal to exhibition stock.

Some growers are making preparations for an increase in glass, as the season so far has been a profitable one. Ben Gregory built two new houses last season and expects to tear down the balance of his old houses and erect new ones in their place. The new addition will mean two 200-foot houses and two houses about 100 feet. Mr. Gregory also erected an office and show room and put in a subway, which gives him direct underground connection with his residence from his greenhouses.

The park board will also erect several houses the coming summer.

A. M. York, of Hancock, Mich., is a visitor in the city. INCOG.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The New Bedford Florists' Club, at its monthly meeting, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Peter Murray; vice president, E. H. Chamberlin; secretary, S. S. Peckham; treasurer, R. E. Noffs. Executive committee: George Borden, E. Y. Peirce, Arthur Ashley.

Wm. Linsey intends to build another house in the spring.

S. S. Peckham is shipping his flowers to New York.

Trade is quiet, but there is plenty of funeral work. Flowers are cheaper this year than they ever were before.

Peter Murray, of Fairhaven, is having great success with the Winsor carnation. He sells them faster than he can cut them. Everyone claims it is "the" coming carnation. F. C. C.

ELIZABETH, N. J.—Early Sunday morning an overheated pipe extending from the boiler in the greenhouse of K. E. Juul, 312 Walnut street, set fire to the roof. Beyond upsetting Mr. Juul's nerves little damage was done.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y.

The regular monthly meeting of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held in the Vanderbilt building Tuesday evening, February 27, Pres. Mooney in the chair. James Wiseman, Tarrytown, N. Y., was elected an active member, and Mrs. John Hennessey an honorary member.

W. K. Wikes' prize, a set of flower vases, was won by Mr. Langle, of White Plains, N. Y., with a fine bunch of Farquhar violets. He also showed a promising new variety, a sport from the above.

Mr. Ward, from Queens, Long Island, N. Y., showed three fine vases of carnations, Alma Ward, Robert Craig and an unnamed seedling.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., showed a fine vase of their new carnation, Winsor, which is bound to make a sensation when the stock is disseminated. It certainly is a wonder; a beautiful light pink in color.

David McFarlane showed a new variety of tomato. Some of the fruit stalks had from ten to twelve ripe tomatoes on them.

Questions presented at the January meeting and not answered were discussed, several of the members taking part. Light refreshments followed.

J. B.

TOLEDO, OHIO.

Toledo is the center for a large market gardening and greenhouse section. New glass is constantly being put up here. The many inquiries for greenhouse material and hotbed sash and constantly increasing business in this line have prompted the Maclaren & Sprague Lumber Co. to give this a special department in their establishment. The greenhouse department is to be under the management of E. B. Yaryan, vice-president of the corporation, who is also a heating engineer, and has installed hot-water plants in a number of the best known places in this section, notably at George Bayer's. The Maclaren & Sprague Co. is one of the largest in its line in this vicinity and has been established for thirty years with a well-equipped woodworking plant.

Some People have taken our advice as published in these columns recently and are buying My Maryland for trial. We reiterate here—if it succeeds with you as it does with us, it will prove the best white carnation you ever grew. Despite the variety's apparent failure in several places, we strongly advise all growers to give it a trial. We have been frank about its faults as developed in other places. We doubt if these will develop in many places.

Jessica we believe, will succeed generally and will prove to be the best red and white variegated ever disseminated. Few varieties show as strong constitution as this one does and it is a wonderful producer. Extra fine stock of both varieties ready now. R. C., $2.50 per doz.; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000. Pot plants, $3.00 per 100 extra.

TORONTO.

The Market.

During the last two weeks trade has not been up to the average. This is more noticeable on account of the increased supply in all lines and, while the wholesalers' receipts are as good, perhaps in excess of January and February, yet much stock is being sacrificed in order to keep down the supply. The only exceptions are white roses and white carnations, which are finding ready sale and many orders are going short.

Various Notes.

E. Crowhurst, of Mimico, is at present sending in some of the finest Lawson and Enchantress seen in the Toronto market, also some good longiflorum lilies.

Many changes are noted among the Toronto florists and we will not be surprised to hear of other shifts. Dunlop's King street store has been leased for a cigar store, and we understand that they will give up possession after Easter, moving into their Yonge street store.

T. A. Plumb has sold his greenhouses to Grobba & Wandrey, of Mimico. They intend using these houses for growing small ferns and palms and for general stock houses for the holiday season. These being within the city limits, it gives them facilities for delivery on short notice.

John Bryan, who for a number of years has been at the head of the carnation growing department for John H. Dunlop, has taken the position of head gardener at the central prison. This is a government position and we understand the salary is a very substantial one. We also understand that Mr. Tuck, one of Dunlop's Beauty growers, has handed in his resignation and will erect greenhouses for himself. It is unfortunate for Mr. Dunlop that he should lose three of his best men within a few weeks.

We understand that John McKerrigan has about closed the deal for his greenhouse on Davenport road, and is now looking for a purchaser for his store on College street. D. J.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Godfrey Aschmann reports trade fair in January, but rather light in February; it is just gathering headway for Easter. As usual, he has his place filled to overflowing with Easter stock, which he says is the best quality he has ever offered, and has a big lot of spring stock coming on.

New Geranium ORA D. HILL

We claim for this that it is better than any other geranium on the market. It is semi-double, cerise red, a very free bloomer and grower; easiest to propagate of any geranium grown; extra good bedder and house plant; good, strong, 2¼-inch stock, $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100. Can ship all orders the day of receipt.

The Market.

Trade has been much better this past week than for some time. Prices have softened quite a little, as there has been a large increase in the supply of all kinds of cut flowers, especially carnations and bulbous stock of all sorts. Violets have also been in very ample supply. The florists feel very well satisfied, indeed, that the market has cleaned up as well as it has, for certainly we have had a big lot of stuff to work off.

Various Notes.

Graff Bros. have been having a violet sale; they worked off a large quantity in bunches of twenty-five flowers for 15 cents each.

The fakers are getting quite thick about town; so far they have handled carnations almost exclusively. The morning price is 35 cents per dozen; Saturday night it got down to 15 cents.

The Livingston Seed Co. has been receiving lately some splendid Princess of Wales violets, which have found a ready sale at good prices.

The first Florists' Club meeting for this month was held Tuesday evening, March 6. President Stevens was in the chair, and a goodly number of members were present. A letter of invitation was read from the American Rose Society, most cordially urging our members to attend the annual meeting and exhibition of that society in Boston the last of this month. After the regular business was gone through with, all our members took hold with a will, and began papering the seeds for the annual distribution in the schools, the bulk seeds having previously been secured from the Livingston Seed Co. After a long evening's work, the meeting adjourned to next Tuesday evening, when the work will be continued.

SAN ANGELO, TEX.

Citizens of San Angelo, particularly the flower-buying citizens, take much pride in the fact that one of the most up-to-date greenhouses in this part of the country is located here. J. J. Nussbaumer is the proprietor and finds satisfaction in the thought that his place is about as well kept as a greenhouse can be and that it excels most in the Lone Star state. He grows a few of the finest varieties of carnations, such as Mrs. Lawson and Enchantress for light and President for dark; also, marguerites, narcissi, pansies and Gloire de Lorraine begonias. His Easter lilies are doing fine and will bloom at the right time for a good Easter trade.

The potting house and the propagating house adjoin the plant and cut flower house. The houses radiate from a common center, the workroom, where everything is arranged for the greatest convenience. Coal bins and the boiler are beneath the workroom. Connected with the room is a well-equipped office.

There are establishments that are larger, but that the size of a house is no criterion as to the quality of the plants grown may readily be proven by a visit to Mr. Nussbaumer's place.

FIRST HAIL.

John G. Esler, secretary of the Florists' Hail Association, reports the first hail-storm of the season. It took place at Dallas, Tex., March 1, and hit the Green Floral and Nursery Co. Of course Col. Green was a member of the Hail Association.

SIoux CITY, IA.—The weekly bulletin of the First Congregational Church for March 4 said: "Since last Sunday one of our members has departed. In the death of J. C. Rennison this church has lost a choice spirit, this city a valued citizen, the Grand Army a loyal comrade. Mr. Rennison scattered much sunshine and good will. He has been very generous to the church and his friends with flowers. He has given the communion flowers to this church for many years. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family."

NORTHERN TEXAS.

Warm one day, cold the next, with high winds every day, has been our experience the past week, making it a hard proposition to move around. Business has been excellent so far. Reports from different places in this section give the increase of business so far this year from thirty to sixty per cent. Stock is looking fine and those days that will allow of people moving around bring good business to the florists, as this is the season when nearly everybody wants to plant out, and the demand for blooms exceeds the amount grown.

Bulbous stock is up out-doors; I find that the call is not for common, but for first-class stock, as we are told that the customers have plenty of common flowers. Sweet peas are about six inches high, peonies nearly a foot high, lilacs nearly in full bloom; fruit trees are in full bloom.

Narcissi are all planted and there will be none for Easter. I find that when the bulbs are flatted up, as we used to do north, the bulbs come up very quickly and are soon gone. But the bulbs will keep in this climate without sprouting all winter. I planted some two weeks ago which are coming now in full bloom. This is true of Roman hyacinths and narcissi. The Dutch bulbs I planted in November are now peeping through the litter and will come in nicely for Easter. The Keizerskroon is something new here, and when a bloom shows, is eagerly snapped up. Harrisii is showing color and it will be hard to keep them until wanted. Carnations are looking good, and in some places are doing fine. Valley is also looking good and prices are keeping up well. Potted stock is commencing to move lively.

There is a craze for landscape work; the demand for hardy stock is increasing, and promises to be very lively next fall. There has been quite a large number of funerals, which have cleared up all the stock, and the number of social functions is on the increase, keeping things lively.

J. W. Goree, of Whitewright, met with bad luck last week while away from home. His fireman, not knowing much about boilers, allowed gas to escape into the house, ruining the entire stock of roses.

H. O. Hannah & Son, of Sherman, have rebuilt their furnace room, which was destroyed by fire two weeks ago. Some of the stock was damaged a little by smoke, but it was not serious.

The nurserymen in this section find it a hard matter to get enough help to move their stock, which is increasing rapidly each year. NARCISSUS.

EUREKA, ILL.—C. E. Brady, of the firm of Brady & Son, died March 8. He was 63 years old and had resided in this vicinity for thirty years.

BROWN'S

PAT. BY THOMAS L. BROWN, SEPT. 27, 1904

EASY WEEDER

THE WEEDER FOR FLORISTS

The inner edge is sharp. Its oval shape permits the operator to weed behind the plants while standing in front. The pushing edge is thin enough to work easily through the soil, but too dull to damage the stems of the plants should it come in contact with them.

It takes out the weeds and leaves the surface smooth. What's more, it does all the work so rapid it will pay for itself in one day's use.

U-Bar Greenhouses

ARE THE BEST GREENHOUSES BUILT

No other form of greenhouse construction compares with the U-Bar type for lightness, strength, durability, adaptability, simplicity and conformity to all horticultural and architectural requirements. It is a clean departure from the old methods of construction and a great step in advance. A prominent gardener writes us: "My predictions are that all up-to-date horticulturists will demand this type of construction in the future." With those anticipating the erection of a greenhouse, we will be pleased to correspond or have representative confer in person.

PEOPLE who know a good thing when they see it, and will take advantage of the same, must be possessed with good judgment and are generally successful. One of our successful growers has this year taken out 6000 feet of wooden gutters, which were only 5 years old, and replaced the same with 6000 feet of the GARLAND IRON GUTTER, this being his fifth annual order.

Our long list of orders of this kind is our best reference. By writing any of the large growers at Chicago you will confer a favor on the

TRUSSED HOUSE QUESTION

It is nothing new with us this using of trusses in greenhouse construction.

For years we have used the truss to eliminate columns or other members when in the way. The truss has always been a regular stock matter with us, but we have now carried it a bit farther, leaving out additional supporting members and perfecting an ideal trussed house. We base our trussing on the principles adopted by the best engineers in the country. We truss two ways: Along the purlin at every sixth bar with struts at every other bar, and from the ridge to eaves on every sixth, tying the house together with the necessary crossties.

Other forms of truss construction strut at every fourth bar, which, of course, increases the shading members and also adds to the expense of the house. The sashbar we use is increased in depth and decreased in width. This, of course, casts less shade and greatly increases the strength of the bar. At the ridge we secure the sashbars with wrought iron hold-fasts, which are secured directly to the bars and on to the ridge piece. This prevents all possibility of the house spreading.

Another feature is the use of our new gutter. Now, this new gutter is a subject that will interest you greatly, so next week we will talk gutter.

It is not always a question of the new, but the use of the old thing a new way. That is what our trussed house is.

TO PROTECT OWNERS OF HORTICULTURAL NOVELTIES.

The subject of adequate protection for the originator or owner of a horticultural novelty has been discussed before trade societies since time immemorial. The matter was thought to have been covered by previous copyright and trade-mark laws but these were found inadequate and a few days ago Representative Allen, of Maine, introduced in congress the following:

A bill authorizing the registration of the names of horticultural products and to protect the same:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That any person who has discovered, originated, or introduced any new variety of plant, bush, shrub, tree, vine or other horticultural product, and gives and applies thereto a name, shall, upon application to the Commissioner of Patents, have such name registered in the United States Patent Office under the provisions of the act entitled "An act authorizing the registration of trade-marks used in commerce with foreign nations, or among the several states or with Indian tribes, and protect the same," approved February twentieth, nineteen hundred and five: Provided, That no name for which application for registration under the provisions of this act may be made shall be refused registration unless such name—

(a) Is identical with a previously registered name for the same variety of product;

(b) Is identical with a known unregistered name for the same variety of product belonging to a person other than the applicant; or

(c) Has been dedicated to the public by the discoverer or originator of such variety.

SEC. 2. That every certificate of registration issued on an application for the registration of a name of a horticultural product shall contain a grant to the registrant, the legal representatives or assigns of such registrant, for the term of twenty years of the exclusive right to propagate for sale and vend such variety or horticultural product under the name so registered throughout the United States and Territories thereof; Provided, That the fruits or flowers produced from such registered variety or varieties may be sold by any person whatsoever for any purpose other than that of propagation.

SEC. 3. That all applications for the registration of horticultural names applied for as trade-marks pending in the office of the Commissioner of Patents at the time of the passage of this act may be amended with a view of bringing them, and the certificates issued upon such applications, under its provisions, and the prosecutions of such applications may be proceeded with under the provisions of this act.

Upon receipt of word of the proposed bill, which was referred to the House Committee on Patents, the nursery interests of Rochester held a meeting at which all the leading firms were represented. It was the unanimous opinion of men like Chas. J. Maloy, of Ellwanger & Barry; Chas. J. Brown, of Brown Bros. Co., president of the American Retail Nurserymen's Protective Association; O. G. Chase, of Chase Bros. Co.; Wm. Pitkin, president of the National Association of Retail Nurserymen and secretary of the Eastern Association of Nurserymen; Irving Rouse, the widely known importer, and others that the bill is inimical to the best interests of the nursery trade and a plan was outlined for work against it. The Rochester representative in Congress was asked to see that the bill is not passed until the wishes of the nursery interests can be consulted and President Albertson, president of the National Association of Nurserymen, has been advised that the bill is safely buried in committee where it will remain until such time as a request for its passage comes from the trades affected.

Here is the opinion of a leading nurseryman on the bill:

This bill seems to me too broadly drawn. It would tend to encourage fraud. If the public should be protected by having the Agricultural Department test and pass on the merit of the proposed patented article before dissemination it would perhaps remove the most serious objection. Still, even then, it is a question if the introducer would not do better and make more money in open competition. I do not believe that you will find much indorsement for this kind of a bill among the nursery trade.

IRVING ROUSE.

The following letter sets forth the opinion of a firm which is among the largest buyers and distributors of new things in all departments of the trade:

We think the main objection the nurserymen have to the bill is the protection that it would give to those who had articles that were absolutely of no value. Anybody could register anything, and the only thing they would have to do would be to select some name that was not already applied to other fruit. There seems no provision to find out whether the articles registered were an improvement on old sorts or not, and you can readily see how all kinds of fakes could be put out a great deal easier and better than they can now.

The originator of anything new that is desirable always puts it out at a high price, and should get a fair remuneration for his expenses the first year or two that it is introduced. We paid $15 for six small plum trees this spring, a new variety to test. We would sell anybody six better trees for $1 of any of the old standard sorts. Under this new arrangement we would be prohibited for twenty years from using any of the buds or propagating wood from these six trees, although the introducer is getting good pay for the new fruit, in the price he is charging, the first year or two, before nurserymen get to propagating it, and it seems to us that such a law would simply put a damper on the trade for all new things. One man could not introduce and furnish all the trade might want in a good many years if it amounted to anything. If it did not amount to anything no one would care to invest money in anything he could not propagate, while the introducer would have papers from Washington to make people believe that it was all right.

STORRS & HARRISON Co.,

Per J. H. Dayton.

Here is the way a leading seed house looks at the matter:

If this bill were to become a law and if section two of it would hold good in practice as in theory, it would be a good thing for the registrant and would have no material effect on the trade in general, inasmuch as all would have the same chance to buy and sell the article under the conditions. We do not see, however, how anyone could be legally prevented from disposing of any surplus seed he might grow from any acquired quantity of it. Such being the case, the matter would stand just as it does at present, viz.: The originator would only have the benefit of the high price for his novelty at the time of its introduction.

When "Cleveland's Alaska" pea was introduced a number of years ago it was registered under the trade-mark law and the originator endeavored to have his right to the name protected under the law. There was a ruling made that he had a right to the name as it stood but this did not prevent others from selling Alaska peas the following season; neither did it prevent them from stating that what they offered had been grown from "Cleveland" stock.

We recognize the right that a man would have to get a better price for something that he would give especial attention to and insofar as his name attached to the article would benefit him in any way, we think that it would be a good thing to protect him in it, at the same time considering the trouble that would arise in establishing exclusive rights, and the short time that the extra value of any seed novelty lasts, we hardly think it would be worth anyone's while to bother about it.

LEONARD SEED CO.

Here is the opinion of a man who is not only the raiser of numerous novelties but the disseminator of many raised by others:

Should the proposed bill become a law it would mean the placing of the originator of a new plant, be it fruit or flower, on the same plane with the inventor of a new machine or any hitherto undiscovered process or valuable recipe. If this were done it would only be doing simple justice to the hybridist or plantsman who, by his own genius or handiwork, produced a valuable new fruit or a new variety of flowering plant.

It would greatly stimulate the efforts now being put forth and horticulture, and in no less degree floriculture, would be the beneficiaries of the renewed work in this line. All argument which gives the right of the mechanic to the benefit of the fruit of his labor would apply with equal force in the domain of pomology or floriculture.

I think in equity such a law should be passed, for it would prove of incalculable benefit to the trade at large, in that it would protect not only the originator or holder of the certificate of registration, but would enable the party in interest to control the markets for a time at least should the new plant or fruit prove of value.

Whether the bill covers the case in all its details. I am not lawyer enough to say, but from my viewpoint it seems like a move in the right direction. If the time-limit for the letters of registration were made ten years from date of issue it would seem ample as I view it. I confess the bill deserves better thought and more time than I have been able to give it, but I cannot help thinking it is only a fair deal for the originator of a new plant.

CAREFUL PACKING.

In this season, when the cutting and plant shipments are very numerous, it is worth while to say a word on the subject of packing. The man who packs stock well but lightly has a decided advantage over the shipper who doesn't, quality of stock being equal. An instance was reported the other day where fifty rose cuttings were ordered by a man in Texas. They came to him packed in an old shoe blacking case, weighing eight pounds when empty, and the express charges were $1.75.

Shippers who care to see their business grow have several things to do: First, they must send out good stock; it must give satisfaction. Second, it must be packed so that it will travel safely, but at the same time regard must be had for the amount of express charges, especially on long shipments. Third, every complaint must have a courteous answer, and promptly; it is an excellent rule to have all of the goods returned if part are claimed to be unsatisfactory, and refund the money if another shipment is not desired; enclose a printed slip to that effect. Fourth, when you are nearly sold out of stock, cut that item out of your advertisement in the REVIEW.

MISCELLANEOUS SEASONABLE HINTS.

Shifting the Geraniums.

We have for two weeks been busy shifting geraniums from 3-inch to 4-inch pots. We should like to leave this job till after Easter, when we have more room, but this year that would mean April 20 before we could get around to it and then the time would be too short between the shift and the time of planting out, or when there is the greatest demand for them.

Some neighbors complain that the leaf disease is more prevalent than ever. While the roots are apparently quite healthy, the leaf is curled and puckered and the flower amounts to nothing. We never have been seriously troubled with this disease except on the good old Emile de Girardine and it was so addicted to it that the variety became useless. We have always considered it more the result of unfavorable conditions than any specific disease, but I should like to have the opinion of Prof. J. C. Arthur, of Indiana, or some other able plant pathologist. One thing I know, it will never pay to bother with these 10-cent plants if once attacked. "Raus mit dem."

Compost to Use.

In the last shift of these ever-popular bedding plants do not use much animal manure. Sod that was piled up last summer, if of a heavy texture, is ideal, and in place of manure or leaf-mold, which produces leaf growth, use bone meal or flour. We add a fifth of old hotbed compost to the loam, which must be devoid of ammonia, but it makes the potting soil more porous. Pot firmly and stand the plants on a perfectly light bench where they will get the full blaze of the sun.

Plunging versus Shading.

By the middle of May, if they dry out too frequently, it is much better to plunge the plants on the bench than to shade them. Use tan bark or decayed stable manure, but best of all is refuse hops, if you are not in a prohibition state. There is no need to plunge them to the rims of the pots, or with the care you would a fruiting pineapple, but just throw two or three inches of the material against the last row and then push up another row. A man or lad who knows his business will set or stand over almost as many pots in a day as he will on the usual 1/2-inch of sand or ashes. The difference in color, robustness and vigor of geraniums and many other plants so treated, is remarkable compared to those exposed to the daily drying out process, at least in our climate. The continuous use of the hose soon exhausts the soil. The effect of this partial protection of the pot is not from any stimulant, but from the uniform moisture of the roots which results.

In speaking of bone dust, or any of the finer grades of this excellent fertilizer, it is very necessary that you procure it pure. We have indisputable evidence that hundreds of tons of hydraulic cement, which in appearance much resembles bone dust, is shipped to fertilizer works and you can guess it is not used for concrete or building watertight cisterns.

Acacia Armata.

Referring once more to Easter plants, the attractive Acacia armata has a bad habit of many of the little globular yellow blossoms turning brown a few days after they are fully developed. Therefore I think it best to bring this pretty plant out slowly and only giving sufficient heat a few days or a week before you expect to sell them. When fully out for ten days we have lost the sale of many plants by losing the flowers, as stated above. There is no telling what the weather will be. It has before now upset all our prearranged program.

Timing Easter Crops.

Single tulips it will be well to give seventeen or eighteen days in a light house, at about 55 degrees. Von Sion, any of the early narcissi, and Dutch hyacinths often need only two weeks in the greenhouse. At this time of the year much will also depend on the condition of the bulbs out of doors. If frost has penetrated the covering of soil and has held the bulbs in arrest they will need several more days indoors than if they have been growing all winter under protection and are almost ready to pop their petals open with a few days of genial heat and light. This will be exercise for the gray matter and will be more profitable study than memorizing the individual scores of the ladies of the Kalamazoo Bowling Club.

Alternanthera.

The most useful of carpet bedding plants, the alternantheras, will want attention between now and the first of April. Some growers will have struck plants from cuttings taken in August and put into flats as per advice in these columns; others, where very large quantities are used, lifted the old plants and after trimming them back put them in three or four inches of light soil in flats. In any case, if further quantities are needed, any fragment of the plant will root in a short time and after a few days in the house can be put into a hotbed with the old plants. They can be divided and potted and go into a hotbed by the middle of April, or you can defer dividing the old plants till the above date and just plant them into two or three inches of soil on the surface of the hotbeds.

Some may wonder at a twentieth century florist recommending such old-fashioned structures as hotbeds, but I do for two reasons: First, the alternanthera will make more growth in a hotbed in two weeks than it will in two months in the lightest and warmest bench in an expensive house.

Tuberous-rooted Begonias.

Tuberous-rooted begonias and gloxinias can be started now, the former for bedding plants, the latter for summer-flowering window plants. Begonia bulbs one year old are very quickly started by using flats of two or three inches depth and half full of light loam, with one inch of sand on the surface. Bed the bulbs half their depth in the sand and place the flats over some mild hot-water pipes. They will soon make a bunch of roots and send out leaves and should then be potted, the strongest in 4-inch and others in 3-inch pots.

If intended for bedding here again is a case where the hotbed is better than a greenhouse, not the hotbed that old gardeners made for cucumbers and melons, four feet deep. If it is only a foot in depth after treading down and four inches of some refuse loam is put on top, it will be sufficient warmth for most bedding plants.

The Second Reason.

And this reminds me that I did not give my second reason for advocating these primitive greenhouses: It is that if the materials are thrown in a heap at midsummer, the following winter it is a most excellent material for lightening soil, an excellent substitute for genuine leaf-mold and a little better. Plunged in a mild hotbed, the begonias can be given the full sunlight, plenty of ventilation and after the middle of May the sash can be removed entirely, fitting the plants for their future environment.

The tuberous begonias are not well thought of as bedding plants. I think it is because the experimenters have tried only large plants grown soft in a shaded house.

Gloxinias.

The first short story the writer ever penned for a floricultural paper was on the gloxinia, and I can't improve on it. Start the bulbs in 3-inch pots in a night temperature of 55 degrees to 60 degrees. After the first watering very little is needed till the leaves start. When the leaves extend to the edge of the pot or a little more, shift into the flowering pot, a 5-inch or 6-inch. Put a few crocks in the pot and cover them with a piece of wood or green moss, not sphagnum; it rots too quickly. You cannot put any greenhorn or fossil at shifting gloxinias or many of their leaves will be broken. The leaves should never be wet if you can avoid it and if you do wet them facility should be given for them to quickly dry off, and perhaps that is why the best we ever raised were elevated on inverted 6-inch pots and plenty of room allowed between each plant. They want water when they need it. A gardener knows what that means. They should be moderately moist. If allowed to get very dry the blossoms will wilt and shrivel and, like grandfather's clock, never go again.

Stevia Serrata.

The few old plants of sweet stevia you cut down after New Year's should be covered with cuttings. Put them in the sand. This rank growing plant is of easiest culture. All you need is some nice little plants in 3-inch pots by the first of June for planting out in the field in a not too rich but light soil.

Gypsophila Paniculata.

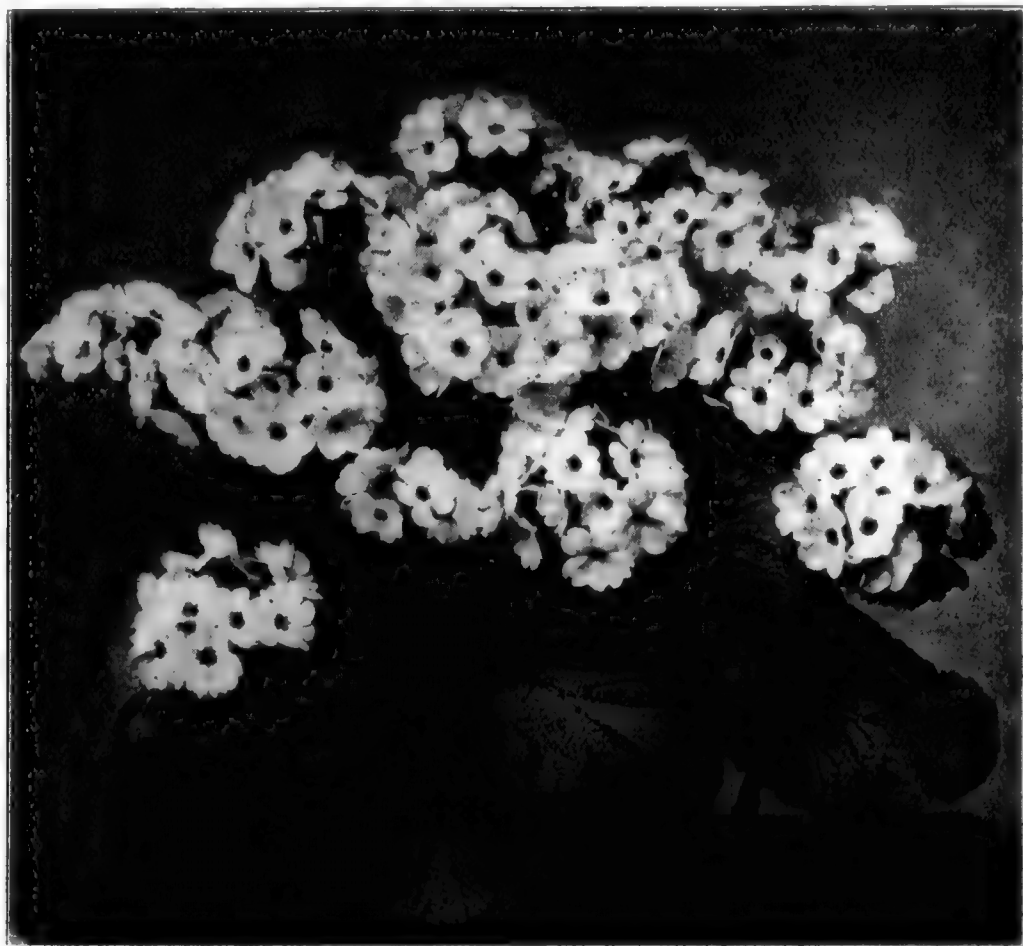

I cannot let you make the mistake of not having a few dozen plants of Gypsophila paniculata (baby's breath) on your place. You can sow the seeds at once and have plants that will flower freely this summer, or if you don't succeed with seeds, buy a few dozen plants. It is one of the best rock-work plants, but grows freely in any ordinary garden soil. It adds grace and lightness to any bouquet or design and is the savior of many otherwise crude formal piece and stiff bunch of flowers. It is to a summer bouquet just what our Stevia serrata is to formal flowers in winter. Our most refined ladies ask for this delicate and refined baby's breath.

Seeds to Sow.

Here are some of the seeds that should be sown now or a few days later: Tropæolum for baskets and veranda boxes; thunbergia for baskets; ten weeks' stocks, balsams, zinnia, celosia, several kinds; linaria and maurandia, Pyrethrum Golden Feather, and cobæa. Sow cobæa in a flat of light sandy soil, and unless you know the proper end to insert into the soil it will be all right to push the seed about two-thirds its breadth in the soil on edge. Do not sow it flat as you would most all seeds. No covering of soil is needed. WILLIAM SCOTT.

SIGN 'EM.

The REVIEW is always glad to answer queries, especially on topics not of everyday discussion. But those who send queries must sign their names to receive attention. Just at this time a great many ask, "How far developed should my lilies be?" and forget to add their signature. If the question is not of general interest reply is made by mail if a stamp is sent.

Primula Obconica Grandiflora Compacta.*A THANKFUL WINTER BLOOMER

Henry Schmidt, Union Hill, N. J., is a large grower of Primula obconica, and says he finds it "a very thankful winter bloomer." The specimen illustrated certainly looks wholesome. Although Bailey, in his Cyclopedia of American Horticulture, in commenting on Primula obconica, remarks that it "is very easily grown," the degree of its thankfulness, as with more difficult subjects, largely depends upon the quality of the culture given. Mr. Schmidt uses the variety P. obconica grandiflora compacta, and the plant illustrated is growing in a 6-inch azalea pan. Grandiflora, of course, produces larger flowers than the type, and Mr. Schmidt says that he finds the compact form to be preferred. He makes seed sowings at intervals, beginning in April, to have a continuous supply of stock.

EASTER PLANTS.

[A paper by David Lumsden, read before the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Boston, March 20, 1906.]

There is something mysterious at the approach of the Easter festival that inspires us with zeal and ambition. The very plants themselves seem to herald the approach of Easter. The lily, the queen of Easter flowers, appears to wear a whiter gown than at other seasons of the year, as Dame Nature smiles and adds beauty and coloring to all flowers; from the glorious rose to the humble little violet, all share in gladdening the hearts of some during Eastertide. It also imbues mankind with new hopes and ambition, and a spirit of generosity is prevalent on all sides, not only in the homes of the wealthy, but also in the humble abodes of the cottagers. Each shares in trying to make someone happy on that glad day by sending a box of flowers or a plant with Easter greetings, also, from time immemorial it has been customary to decorate our churches with Easter plants and flowers, and the very plants and flowers themselves extend to all an Easter greeting and seem to say,

"The cold weather and snows are now over, the happy springtime is at hand." Also, thousands make the first visit of the season to the cemeteries to adorn the graves of their loved ones with flowers. I could speak in this strain for a length of time, but it is somewhat diverting from my text; yet feel I could not let the opportunity pass without making a few remarks regarding the Easter festival.

I do not purpose tonight to enter into minute details as to the culture of the Easter plants, as time would not permit me to do so but will try and treat each subject as briefly as possible.

Lily Ranks First.

First and foremost ranks the lily. Picture yourselves what Easter would be without the lily! Each year sees more lilies grown than the previous year, and every year sees the lily more in evidence. Our lily bulbs we receive during the fall months from Japan and the Bermudas. Lilium longiflorum and types. They are then potted up. Some growers pot them immediately into their flowering pots, which is considered a saving of labor, while others pot the bulbs into 4-inch or 5-inch pots, to be repotted later, when well rooted and active growth has commenced, the soil used being a good, heavy, fibrous loam with a liberal dressing of well decomposed manure, with the addition of a little sand to keep the soil open. They are then placed in a cold frame covered with about three inches of loam, the surface of the soil previously having been covered with a layer of sand or ashes. After watering in order that when taken out of the frame the covering loam will not adhere to the pots, they are next covered with leaves, old straw, or anything available, and shutters placed over them until from the middle to the end of December, when they are taken out and placed in a house temperature of about 60 degrees nights. By that time they should be well rooted and should have commenced to show signs of growth. The grower who pots his bulbs in their flowering pots at first has, of course, to commence to feed his lilies earlier than the grower who gives them a shift when they are well rooted in the small pots.

Unfortunately for the lily grower, disease is prevalent and we have found no means of detecting it until the lily is well in foliage, so that considerable expense has been added before it is thrown out.

Regarding the correct temperature to grow lilies to be in flower for Easter, it would be a difficult matter for me to state, as so much depends on the weather. But the main point is to get the bulbs well established or rooted before you commence to force them. As I have previously stated, a night temperature of about 60 degrees from January 1 should bring them along all right. Of course you are aware that all bulbs do not mature at exactly the same time in their native habitat, so growing lilies for Easter trade necessitates a good deal of moving and shifting from house to house to have them all in good shape for Easter. It is far better to err in the way of being a little early than to have to force them during the last minute, as it naturally makes them soft and impairs their keeping quality. They are not so up, placed in a house kept at a temperature of 38 degrees to 40 degrees and brought in the forcing house at a temperature of 60 degrees from time to time, as required.

The varieties most suitable for Easter trade are Bernhard Andreas alba, double white; Emperor du Bresil, double rose; Empress of India, rich rosy salmon; Mme. Vander Cruyssen, semi-double crimson; Professor Wolters, single, undulated pink, white margin; Haarenseana or Easter Lady, double salmon shaded white; Dr. Moore, double deep rose, a very fine variety.

Strange to say, with few exceptions the single varieties of Azalea Indica do not sell well with the commercial florist, although they are among the best in coloring and form of flower.

Dwarf azaleas on their own roots make pretty plants for Easter and command a ready sale. The varieties are Chas. Enke, single salmon with white margin; Marie Louise, single white striped rose, and Firefly, semi-double crimson scarlet and a very desirable variety.

Rhododendrons.

Rhododendrons we treat practically the same as azaleas, with the exception

Camille de Rohan, white with brown spots, and Princess Louise, white edged with rosy purple.

The rhododendron, although such a desirable Easter plant, does not sell readily, a limited quantity only being sold.

Crimson Rambler.

The Crimson Rambler rose is a standard Easter plant with us all. Strong plants from the field may be lifted during the month of November, potted and kept cool for at least one month, the shoots having been shortened back to about four feet. When commencing to force, start them slowly, allowing about twelve to fourteen weeks, which will be none too much time to allow them to be in nice shape for Easter.

I may here state that it is not policy to allow the shoots to run up straight. You get better results by training them around stakes in the pots. They make more even growth and much better shaped plants.

The Baby Rambler also will become a very valuable addition to our Easter plants, treated practically the same way as the Crimson Rambler, with the exception of not being trained around the stakes. If judiciously pruned before starting it needs no stake at all, and being of a very floriferous nature and compact growth, makes a handsome little plant which will sell at sight.

In hybrid roses in pots for Easter we have to mention Ulrich Brunner, Magna Charta, American Beauty and Gen. Jacqueminot.

Other Choice Stock.

Hydrangea Otaksa makes a nice plant for Easter, but the sale is only limited.

Astilbe Japonica and varieties, better known as spiraea, is also grown as an Easter plant by some, also in large quantities for cutting for Memorial day.

Lilacs are used in quantity for Easter trade, and the varieties most suitable for forcing are Marie Legraye, white, and Charles X, purple.

Acacia armata or paradoxa is a desirable plant. When treated like the azaleas it readily can be forced for Easter.

Cytissus, better known as genista, although we cannot class it as a good house plant, owing to its flowers and leaves dropping, caused by the dry air in the room, sells well at Easter. The deep yellow of the flowers as well as the profusion in which they are borne tempts the buyer. The variety racemosus is the best seller. Canariensis is a trifle deeper in color.

The Geranium.

I would not be doing my duty if I omitted everybody's plant, the geranium, from my list of Easter plants. With due respect to all other plants, the geranium stands without a peer in its class and many persons who cannot afford to pay the price for a lily will gladly pay 25 cents for a geranium for Easter. Geraniums also made up in bulb pans, about four plants to a pan, with nice flowers make a very attractive Easter gift and command ready sale.

In no matter what situation we find the geranium, it exists and even flowers in the dimly lighted garret as well as in the palace of the millionaire.

Then, too, the geranium is grown in large quantities to be presented to the scholars of the various Sunday schools on Easter, and it is a real pleasure to watch the little ones leaving the schools

J. B. Heiss.

(President of the Newly organized Dayton Florists' Club.)

desirable to handle as lilies that have been well on time and have had a chance to harden up the last week prior to delivery.

Azalea Indica.

Next in importance to the lily comes the azalea, which we receive in large quantities each year from Belgium during the early fall. They are then potted that rhododendrons must be shaded heavily during forcing or the leaves will burn and disfigure the plants. The varieties best adapted for forcing purposes are Blandyanum, deep rosy crimson; Everestianum, rosy lilac; John Waterer, deep amaranth; Kate Waterer, rosy crimson, yellow center; Mme. Carvalho, blush changing to pure white; Mrs. R. S. Holford, rich salmon; Prince and each carrying his little plant, which they treasure and which impresses on the child, perhaps for the first time in his or her life, a love for flowers, and which love is never forgotten.

Bulbous Stock.

In bulbs for Easter we find large quantities of the Dutch hyacinth grown, from five to a dozen bulbs in a pan and when well grown and not too far out they make an attractive Easter plant. The following varieties are among the best: Gertrude, rosy pink; Norma, a fine pink; La Grandesse, extra fine variety, pure white, large spike; Innocence, pure white, massive spike; Chas. Dickens, dark blue, compact spike, and Grand Maitre, porcelain blue.

Tulips in variety in pans also command a ready sale, the following being a few of the best single tulips: Belle Alliance, scarlet; Couleur Cardinal, bronze scarlet; Duc Van Tholl, scarlet; Keizerskroon, bright red with broad yellow edge, extra large flower; La Reine, pure white, a good forcing variety; Mons Tresor, golden yellow, extra large flower; Rose Grisdelin, one of the best pink tulips in cultivation, and Yellow Prince, a fine yellow variety.

In double varieties we have Coronne d'Or, yellow; La Candeur, white; Murillo, pink; Salvator, rose, and Tournesol, red and yellow.

In narcissi, Von Sion takes the lead and for cutting and pan work it is a good variety to handle. Bicolor, Horsfieldii, Golden Spur and Princeps are all valuable varieties.

Lily of the valley, both cut and in pots and pans, is invaluable for Easter decoration.

The True Genius.

There are other valuable Easter plants I have not mentioned, including various made up combinations of flowering plants in pots and pans that time will not permit me to speak on. So I shall briefly conclude my paper by stating that any plants well grown in flower at Easter will find a ready sale. We sometimes hear it remarked when we see well grown plants brought into our cities: "That grower is quite a genius." I think that the word genius is truly applicable to a good grower, for Carlyle defined that word where he states: "Genius is at first little more than an infinite capacity for taking pains."

DAYTON FLORISTS ORGANIZE.

The florists of Dayton held a second meeting at the store of J. B. Heiss on the evening of Monday, March 12, and formed a permanent organization to be known as the Dayton Florists' Club. Officers were elected as follows: President, J. B. Heiss; secretary, Harry Frank; treasurer, H. H. Ritter.

Since the meeting of the executive committee of the S. A. F., a great deal of hard work has been done and at this meeting a guarantee fund of $3,500 was subscribed to insure the success of the August convention. Much outside support is being received and all corporations, city and county officials are lending all possible aid. Application has been made to the board of public service for free water for the use of the gardeners at the fair grounds in caring for the outdoor trade display.

A number of new ideas were discussed at the recent meeting and it is assured that the convention will be one of the best the society has ever held. Committees have been appointed, on railroads, hotels, exhibits, ladies' entertainments, etc., and the work is now well under way. The club will hold frequent meetings from now until the convention days.

THE COAL STRIKE.

The week's developments make a general tie-up of the coal industry seem rather less likely than a week ago. Each side appears to hesitate to precipitate a conflict that will have such far-reaching effect upon so many lines of industry. It is not by any means certain that trouble will be avoided and florists everywhere should see that they have a reserve supply of fuel in anticipation of possible trouble April 1.

PRIMULA POISONING.

I have noticed from time to time several correspondents complaining of the poisonous effects of Primula obconica, and having had some experience of the same kind, both myself and my help, and having tried a good many remedies with little benefit, I offer one of my own. If those who are poisoned by handling primula will bathe their hands freely in good, sharp vinegar I believe they will be relieved from the poisonous effects, as I have never failed to be relieved if I used it in time.

NOTES FROM ENGLAND.

It is announced that an exhibition of South African fruit is to be held at the Royal Agricultural hall, London, June 22 to 24. The exhibition will no doubt be an excellent medium to bring before intending emigrants the exceptional values of South Africa as a fruit-growing colony.

There is much activity at present in market establishments in building additional glass houses. A large number of growers throughout the country, and more especially around London, are making very extensive additions. An immense number of tomato houses es-has, of course, to commence to feed his lilies earlier than the grower who gives them a shift when they are well rooted in the small pots.

Unfortunately for the lily grower, disease is prevalent and we have found no means of detecting it until the lily is well in foliage, so that considerable expense has been added before it is thrown out.

Regarding the correct temperature to grow lilies to be in flower for Easter, it would be a difficult matter for me to state, as so much depends on the weather. But the main point is to get the bulbs well established or rooted before you commence to force them. As I have previously stated, a night temperature of about 60 degrees from January 1 should bring them along all right. Of course you are aware that all bulbs do not mature at exactly the same time in their native habitat, so growing lilies for Easter trade necessitates a good deal of moving and shifting from house to house to have them all in good shape for Easter. It is far better to err in the way of being a little early than to have to force them during the last minute, as it seriously weakens them and impairs their keeping quality. They are not so up, placed in a house kept at a temperature of 38 degrees to 40 degrees and brought in the forcing house at a temperature of 60 degrees from time to time, as required.

The varieties most suitable for Easter trade are Bernhard Andreas alba, double white; Emperor du Bresil, double rose; Empress of India, rich rosy salmon; Mme. Vander Cruyssen, semi double crimson; Professor Wolters, single, undulated pink, white margin; Haaren seana or Easter Lady, double salmon shaded white; Dr. Moore, double deep rose, a very fine variety.

Strange to say, with few exceptions the single varieties of Azalea Indica do not sell well with the commercial florist, although they are among the best in coloring and form of flower.

Dwarf azaleas on their own roots make pretty plants for Easter and command a ready sale. The varieties are Chas. Enke, single salmon with white margin; Marie Louise, single white striped rose, and Pretty, semi double crimson scarlet and a very desirable variety.

Rhododendrons.

Rhododendrons we treat practically the same as azaleas, with the exception

Camille de Rohan, white with brown spots, and Princess Louise, white edged with rosy purple.

The rhododendron, although such a desirable Easter plant, does not sell readily, a limited quantity only being sold.

Crimson Rambler.

The Crimson Rambler rose is a standard Easter plant with us all. Strong plants from the field may be lifted during the month of November, potted and kept cool for at least one month, the shoots having been shortened back to about four feet. When commencing to force, start them slowly, allowing about twelve to fourteen weeks, which will be none too much time to allow them to be in nice shape for Easter.

I may here state that it is not policy to allow the shoots to run up straight. You get better results by training them around stakes in the pots. They make more even growth and much better shaped plants.

The Baby Rambler also will become a very valuable addition to our Easter plants, treated practically the same way as the Crimson Rambler, with the exception of not being trained around the stakes. If judiciously pruned before starting it needs no stake at all, and being of a very floriferous nature and compact growth, makes a handsome little plant which will sell at sight.

In hybrid roses in pots for Easter we have to mention Ulrich Brunner, Magna Charta, American Beauty and Gen. Jacqueminot.

Other Choice Stock.

Hydrangea Otaksa makes a nice plant for Easter, but the sale is only limited.

Astilbe Japonica and varieties, better known as spiraea, is also grown as an Easter plant by some, also in large quantities for cutting for Memorial day.

Lilacs are used in quantity for Easter trade, and the varieties most suitable for forcing are Marie Legraye, white, and Charles X. purple.

Acacia armata or paradoxa is a desirable plant. When treated like the azaleas it readily can be forced for Easter.

Cytissus, better known as genista, although we cannot class it as a good house plant, owing to its flowers and leaves dropping, caused by the dry air in the room, sells well at Easter. The deep yellow of the flowers as well as the profusion in which they are borne tempts the buyer. The variety racemosa is the best seller. Canariensis is a trifle deeper in color.

The Geranium.

I would not be doing my duty if I omitted everybody's plant, the geranium, from my list of Easter plants. With due respect to all other plants, the geranium stands without a peer in its class and many persons who cannot afford to pay the price for a lily will gladly pay 25 cents for a geranium for Easter. Geraniums also made up in bulb pans, about four plants to a pan, with nice flowers make a very attractive Easter gift and command ready sale.

In no matter what situation we find the geranium, it exists and even flowers in the dimly lighted garret as well as in the palace of the millionaire.

Then, too, the geranium is grown in large quantities to be presented to the scholars of the various Sunday schools on Easter, and it is a real pleasure to watch the little ones leaving the schools much as lilies that have time and have had a chance in the last week prior to de-

Azalea Indica.

No matter how late to the lily comes the Azalea, which we receive in large quantities each year from Belgium during the early fall. They are then potted and rhododendrons must be shaded heavily during forcing or the leaves will burn and disfigure the plants. The varieties best adapted for forcing purposes are Blandyannum, deep rosy crimson; Everestianum, rosy lilac; John Winterer, deep magenta; Kate Waterer, rosy crimson, yellow center; Mme. Camille, bluish, changing to pure white; Mrs. R. S. Holford, rich salmon; Prince and each carrying his little plant, which they treasure and which impresses on the child, perhaps for the first time in his or her life, a love for flowers, and which love is never forgotten.

Bulbous Stock.

In bulbs for Easter we find large quantities of the Dutch hyacinth grown, from five to a dozen bulbs in a pan and when well grown and not too far out they make an attractive Easter plant. The following varieties are among the best: Gertrude, rosy pink; Norma, a fine pink; La Grandesse, extra fine variety, pure white, large spike; Innocence, pure white, massive spike; Chas. Dickens, dark blue, compact spike, and Grand Maître, porcelain blue.

Tulips in variety in pans also command a ready sale, the following being a few of the best single tulips: Belle Alliance, scarlet; Couleur Cardinal, bronze scarlet; Due Van Tholl, scarlet; Keizers Kroon, bright red with broad yellow edge, extra large flower; La Reine, pure white, a good forcing variety; Mons. Tresor, golden yellow, extra large flower; Rose Grisdelin, one of the best pink tulips in cultivation, and Yellow Prince, a fine yellow variety.

In double varieties we have Coronic Or., yellow; La Candeur, white; Mirolo, pink; Salvator, rose, and Tourne sol, red and yellow.

In narcissi, Von Stern takes the lead and for cutting and pan work it is a good variety to handle. Breider, Horsfield, Golden Spur and Princeps are all valuable varieties.

Lily of the valley, both cut and in pots and pans, is invaluable for Easter.

The True Genius.

There are other valuable Easter plants I have not mentioned, including various made up combinations of flowering plants in pots and pans that time will not permit me to speak on. So I shall briefly conclude my paper by stating that any plants well grown in flower at Easter will find a ready sale. We sometimes hear it remarked when we see well grown plants brought into our cities: "That grower is quite a genius." I think that the word genius is truly applicable to a good grower, for Carlyle defined that word where he states: "Genius is at first little more than an infinite capacity for taking pains."

DAYTON FLORISTS ORGANIZE.

The florists of Dayton held a second meeting at the store of J. B. Heiss on the evening of Monday, March 12, and formed a permanent organization to be known as the Dayton Florists' Club. Officers were elected as follows: President, J. B. Heiss; secretary, Harry Frank; treasurer, H. H. Ritter.

Since the meeting of the executive committee of the S. A. F., a great deal of hard work has been done and at this meeting a guarantee fund of $3,500 was subscribed to insure the success of the August convention. Much outside support is being received and all corporations, city and county officials are lending all possible aid. Application has been made to the board of public service for free water for the use of the gardeners at the fair grounds in caring for the outdoor trade display.

A number of new ideas were discussed at the recent meeting and it is assured that the convention will be one of the best the society has ever held. Committees have been appointed on railroads, hotels, exhibits, ladies' entertainments, etc., and the work is now well under way. The club will hold frequent meetings from now until the convention days.

THE COAL STRIKE.

The week's developments make a general tie-up of the coal industry seem rather less likely than a week ago. Each side appears to hesitate to precipitate a conflict that will have such far-reaching effect upon so many lines of industry. It is not by any means certain that trouble will be avoided and florists everywhere should see that they have a reserve supply of fuel in anticipation of possible trouble April 1.

PRIMULA POISONING.

I have noticed from time to time several correspondents complaining of the poisonous effects of Primula obconica, and having had some experience of the same kind, both myself and my help, and having tried a good many remedies with little benefit, I offer one of my own. If those who are poisoned by handling primula will bathe their hands freely in good, sharp vinegar I believe they will be relieved from the poisonous effects, as I have never failed to be relieved if I used it in time.

NOTES FROM ENGLAND.

It is announced that an exhibition of South African fruit is to be held at the Royal Agricultural Hall, London, June 22 to 24. The exhibition will no doubt be an excellent medium to bring before intending emigrants the exceptional values of South Africa as a fruit growing colony.

There is much activity at present in market establishments in building additional glass houses. A large number of growers throughout the country, and more especially around London, are making very extensive additions. An immense number of tomato houses is pecially are being rapidly completed, for tomato growing is a trade in which growers are fairly safe, as it only requires the prices to fall so that ordinary quality is in reach of the masses for the markets to be rapidly cleared.

Grape growers do not appear to grumble so much at the present time, when getting only 1 shilling per pound for best indoor grapes, as they did years ago when receiving 4 or 5 shillings, or even more. At that time growers complained that good grapes could not be grown at the then prevailing prices, and yet they certainly now appear to be living and doing fairly well. No doubt the cost of production is cheapened to meet the requirements of these modern times.

I am informed a motor wagon service is being formed to run between London and the Southampton fruit districts during the coming season, which will be most convenient for growers, enabling them to get their produce to market with only one loading and unloading from farm to market stand, which is a great improvement on the many handlings packages receive when ordinary railway traffic is used. PACKING FOR SHIPMENT.

Good packing when shipping cuttings or young plants is as important as it is in shipping cut blooms, and great improvements have been made along that line in recent years. Your cuttings may be ever so good when you take them out of the sand, but if you do not get them to your customers in good condition, they will prove no better in the end than poorer cuttings that arrived in as good condition as they started.

Years ago the common way of packing rooted cuttings was to take up twenty-five in one hand, holding them in a tight bunch, and after wrapping a bunch of wet sphagnum around the roots, wrap the whole in a piece of paper, the same as you would a young plant, leaving the top open but turning the bottom side of the paper in after one roll of the bundle, finishing up with a couple of wraps with cotton twine. Under this mode of wrapping it was found that in case a cutting had only a few roots, or if they were rather fleshy and brittle, often they would be broken off and it much sand clung to any of the cuttings it would grind and cut any roots that were young and tender.

A Better Method.

A much better method has taken the place of this, which is as follows: Cut your wrapping paper into sheets about 10x16 inches. Lay a thin layer of damp sphagnum in the middle of this and running from the end next to you half way across the sheet. Take the cuttings one by one and lay them with the roots on the sphagnum. It will take about two layers to hold twenty-five cuttings. Then roll into a bundle and when all the cuttings have been turned in, fold in the paper below the sphagnum and continue rolling until the end of the sheet, tying the bundle to hold it together. Roll these bundles tolerably tight, so that in handling the cuttings can not move around and allow the sand to grind up the roots.

Use substantial boxes to pack them in. Line well with several thicknesses of newspaper, on all sides and top and bottom. Cover the bottom with a layer of excelsior, then begin laying in the bundles. Begin at one end, laying the root end against the end of the box and press together well, so that they will be tight; lay the roots of the next row on the tops of the first row and so on until you come to the end of the box, where you will reverse the bundles to better fill up the space. Put in another good layer of excelsior and proceed as before, but begin at the other end of the box, continuing thus until your box is full. Press the whole down tightly, fold over the paper linings and nail on the lid.

Tight Packing Desirable.

When ready for the lid the box should be so full that you will have to bear down on it heavily in order to nail it fast. Don't be afraid that you will injure the cuttings. The excelsior will prevent that, but if they began moving around there would be damage done. This tight packing is one of the secrets of success in shipping and must be practiced as long as the employees of the express companies handle our boxes as roughly as they do. You can mark "this side up" and "handle with care" all you want to, it does not stop them from slamming your boxes around as though they were handling baled hay. If packed loosely it will take but few tumbles to work the bundles loose and when moving around begins then trouble begins. If several varieties are in the box they will become mixed, besides the damage done to the plants.

After nailing up the box, if the weather is liable to be cold, cover again with several thicknesses of newspaper and finally with heavy wrapping paper.

Nail on the tag in the upper left hand corner. With an oil crayon write the address on the box in case the tag should be mutilated before reaching its destination. On the tag should be printed the necessary instructions in regard to the contents being perishable plants, etc., besides your name and address. This will count heavily in case of suit for damages, if that ever becomes necessary.

The best shipping tag we have ever run across is one that we copied from the F. Dorner & Sons Co. and which we are now using. Any express company that fails to deliver a package in good condition with that tag on it can offer no excuse except negligence, providing your packing was good.

Packing Young Plants.

When packing young plants from pots the same rule should prevail. Wrap each plant separately instead of wrapping four or five in each bundle. There will be less breakage and you can pack them better. If the distance is short no sphagnum will be needed, but if they travel a thousand miles or more, and are likely to be packed up for four or five days, then you had better put a little damp sphagnum around the roots, but be sure you keep it away from the foliage.

Line your boxes just the same as you do for cuttings and lay the plants in the box the same with excelsior between, as recommended before, only be sure you pack as solidly as possible. There should be no chance for them to shove together endways in case the box is turned on end and dropped, which is very apt to occur if it is heavy. We have seen boxes of plants arrive in miserable condition, due entirely to loose packing. Don't use too large boxes in packing, even if the order is large. Medium sized boxes stand a much better chance of getting through in good condition. Another thing which will greatly aid in securing proper handling is to put handles on the ends of the boxes, especially if the boxes are good sized. The expressmen can get hold of the boxes better and, if the handles are put on properly, the box can only be lifted and carried the proper way and there will be no occasion for rolling or dropping them, and besides, the handles will not permit the box being stood on end.

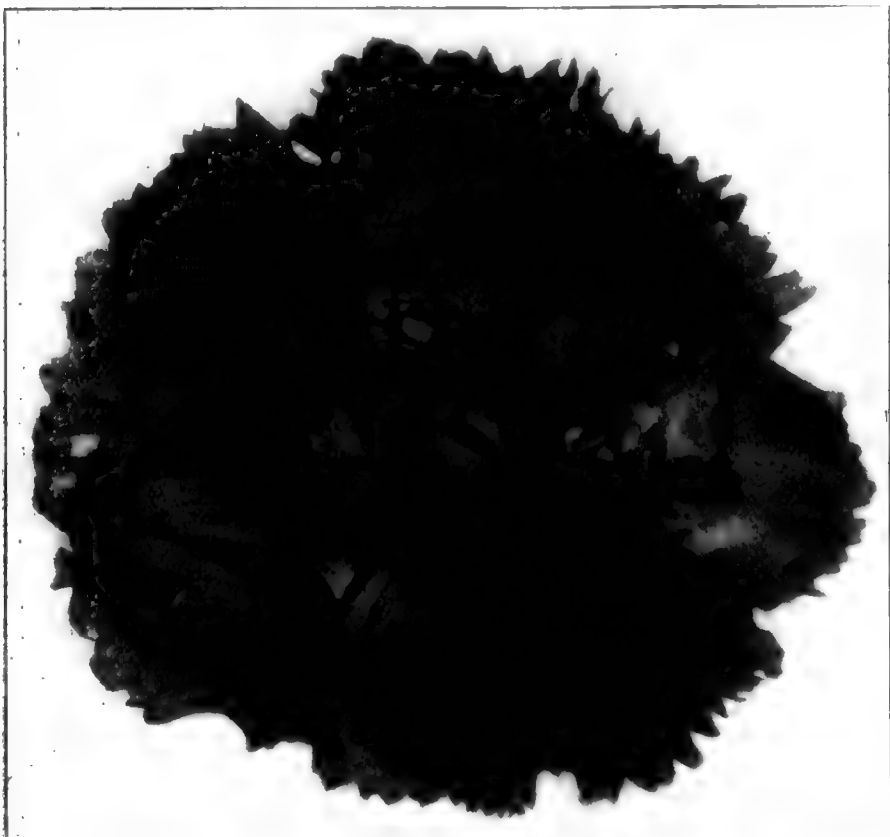

Another Good Plan.

Another way of packing young plants is to set them upright in the bottom of the box, and this is a very good way, in many cases preferable to the other. Line your box as before and, instead of a layer of excelsior, cover the bottom with a layer of damp sphagnum before setting in the plants; press the plants together as tight as you can and after about every fourth row nail in a cleat to hold them firm. Fold the paper over the top and instead of nailing on a solid lid, nail on slats so the expressman can see that the box is not packed solid. Boxes packed this way should always have handles on them. This method is more practicable in mild weather than in severely cold weather, as you can not line except on the inside of the box.

When wrapping the plants, see that none are wrapped with the soil in a dry condition. Keep in mind the time they will be on the road and calculate to have them reach their destination just a little on the dry side. Excessive moisture is not good for them, either, while packed up tight, and if they can be in just a normal condition there will be less danger of damping, and they will be in better shape to take hold when potted up again. A WIETOR SEEDLING.

The establishment of Wietor Bros., Chicago, is noted as the place where chrysanthemum cuttings and young plants are produced in greater quantity than elsewhere; as the place where White Cloud carnation has held its own in spite of the competition of the many good whites of recent introduction; as the place where a big business is transacted with less apparent effort than in many cases where only a little is accomplished. It is shortly to be known as one of the places whence come novelties, attention heretofore having been devoted entirely to growing primarily for cut flowers and secondarily for young stock, varieties of other people's introduction. A number of new sorts in roses are being tested in search of something worth while, but it is with the red carnation shown in the accompanying illustrations that the immediate future will have to deal.

No. 55 is a bright shade of red, a lively, useful color. It originated in a batch of seedlings three years ago and was at once recognized as a promising sort. Now there are about 2,000 plants and it is better liked than ever. Another year's trial will be given it before deciding on its future, as it is proposed to make no false start in a new field by sending out a variety which will not "trot." The flower is large, full, fringed and abundantly produced, according to tests to date. The growth is quick and healthy, the stem strong and wiry.

GROWING THE CARNATION.

[A paper read by A. H. Secker before the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society, Madison, N. J., March 14, 1906.]

In reading this paper to you on a subject so universal to the trade as the carnation, I feel some doubt as to the result. However, if these few remarks are found to be of service to even one of you, my efforts shall have been successful.

The carnation, as it is today, has proved itself a public necessity and, as such, should be handled and treated accordingly. That it has rapidly gained in popularity and is the equal, or, shall I say, the more successful rival of its fair competitor, the rose, is due largely to its keeping qualities, fragrance and adaptability, for it is found first in the expensive social function and foremost in the workingman's home.

All honor is due to the noble army of men who are giving of their time and finances to hybridizing and producing new varieties in an effort to keep the carnation to the front; many times, no doubt, their efforts are useless, but when we see an array of the finest, such as is before you tonight, we can feel sure that progress is ever on the march, and that success surely crowns honest effort and rewards untiring zeal.

The carnation, as I remember it ten years ago to the present day production, has made rapid strides and although Mr. Ward may claim that it takes 1,000 years for each added inch, the last one seems to have appeared in considerably less time than that. What a contrast we find between Portia and Robt. Craig or Victory, Daybreak and Enchantress, Lizzie McGowan and Lady Bountiful or Queen! Yet even these old favorites are not to be despised, for they had in them the blood with which the hybridizers have been enabled to produce the present-day wonders.

Grading Carnations.

In looking over an exhibition of new creations and noting the differences of the various kinds, I have often thought that growers will one day be grading the carnation as the rose into fancy, first, standard and common classes. The fancy class will embrace all those productions known as novelties, among which might be mentioned Aristocrat, Helen Gould, Winsor, Robt. Craig, Alma Ward and others we have with us of even less recent introduction. The first class will include Enchantress, Harlowarden, Prosperity, Cardinal, etc. The standard class will comprise the various Lawsons, Queen, Peru, Gov. Roosevelt, Fair Maid, etc., while the common class will take in what are left, and these are grown more for profusion of bloom than for stem and size, among which we might include Glacier, Genevieve Lord, Frances Joost and Floriana.

A stimulus might be given the grower if he is able to produce good flowers from varieties of one class equal to the varieties of the next class, by having the price paid for the flowers the same.

The cultivation of the various grades, too, will need to be looked closely into, and it requires the best use of all the judgment and common sense the grower may have.

In the fancy class we have a type of flower which can be truly likened to the race horse, and as surely as we strive after a higher ideal and try to improve on the existing improvements, so will the treatment of same require to be given accordingly; but as the majority of us, dealing with the present-day varieties and not with what are to follow, perhaps a few remarks about those grown and proven successful may not be amiss.

Easy to Select Popular Sorts.

It is easy to select those kinds which meet with popular approval among the growers, not because of their color or fragrance, but because the grower is able to adapt himself readily to the requirements of his stock. If this is not so, how is it that one variety does so well with one, and shows up so poorly with another?

Is it climatic conditions or treatment, that brings Cardinal to the fancy class in Canada, while in our own neighborhood it is almost useless? Yet I fail to find one man who is complaining of Enchantress or Lawson. The same can be said of Prosperity in the first class, and, although now beginning to age, I do not doubt but what this variety can be brought to pay for its keep. Having had to do with a house of this kind the present season, I must say that results are more than satisfactory and I believe that with early propagated cuttings grown from then until benching in July in pots, success may be had. I find, too, that it is a little on the race horse type, a trifle stubborn and needs the "jolly-ing" which a little extra heat may give it to bring it along.

This fact is very noticeable, especially to one continually working among the variety, and whenever the plants are handicapped for want of heat, there we find the less flowers. This defect can be seen to perfection in the house just mentioned, where one end is always 4 degrees colder than the other, besides being subject to drafts, when going in and out the house, which is apart from the others, causing the plants to be backward all winter. At the warmer end there is no trouble producing fancy flowers, long stems and clean foliage.

Enchantress and its sports, the various Lawsons, Roosevelt, Queen and Harlowarden are all varieties which can be depended upon to produce good marketable flowers, and if handled right, can be brought to a successful paying investment. I would advise the average commercial grower not to go too heavily into the newer varieties until by due trial and observation he feels himself capable of handling the same, as it is best to try first and succeed afterwards.

Right Kind of Soil.

The question of soil is a serious one for the majority of growers, and very often considerable outlay is necessary for the procuring of the right kind. What is the right kind? Each grower seems to have his own ideas about that. One successful man, located near Buffalo, with an area of 20,000 square feet of glass, has used the same soil continually for the past seven years, mixed, of course, with manures and fertilizers. If I could procure discarded rose soil, thoroughly mix this up outside with lime and bone meal or cow manure, proportionately, I venture to say it would be no bother to produce good flowers, providing good care and treatment were given.

In the matter of planting the different varieties in the benches, I have been most successful using nine inches between the rows and seven inches in the row. This applies, of course, to medium sized plants and to those which grow compactly; most of them can be made to do so by the usual method of wire and string support. One point I must bring before you strongly is that in planting these distances apart, careful watch will have to be kept for red-spider. To the beginner in carnation growing I would advise planting a little further apart each way.

Care in Feeding.

During the growing season care should be exercised in feeding, as some varieties require considerably more than others and if overdone it simply can't be undone. As to what is considered the best way of feeding the plants is a matter of conjecture, but I would recommend the frequent application of pure bone meal, as it can be handled far more easily and is cleaner than manure. The one great advantage I find this method has over manurial waterings, is that each plant gets its own share and can absorb the nourishment at leisure, while a heavy douche of manure water given once a week, besides occasional clear waterings between times, has a tendency to keep a good many plants too wet. I have yet to find the greenhouse so situated that all the plants are ready for water at the same time; consequently, if you are soaking the plants that are wet with your weekly feed, the result is soon apparent, as the benches will be empty. I would not in any way despise top dressing of cow manure or other manure and consider it of a decided advantage in giving a change of diet, but as soon as the manure goes on the bench your troubles begin, with weeds, mites, sour soil, worms and, incidentally, I might say stem-rot.

The past season has been a very poor one in regard to propagation, owing no doubt to the long spells of cloudy weather making the growth soft; but not all the blame can be laid to that alone, as, in a matter of so much importance, the question of experienced help arises, and this part of the work should be undertaken by an efficient man.

Should Coach Green Help.

During the past few years it has been my misfortune to have to deal with green help and while I have learned something, the knowledge has been derived after losses which could have been avoided. When the operation of trimming the cuttings commences, take the time to give careful instructions to the uninitiated; yes and to some of the so-called "experienced," not to destroy the outer skin or bark at the base of the slip, thus exposing to the water and air the soft pith which has no power to withstand the elements; consequently after four or five days these cuttings will have rotted. In putting in the sand, too, the same care should be given to see that each cutting rests firmly on the sand. This fact is the reason why so many cuttings look dry at the top, yet, when pulled out, the part in the sand is all right. How is that? you ask. The reason is that when inserting them in the sand, the cut was so deep that many short cuttings did not reach the bottom and when watered in, were hanging, held up by the sand which closed the cut. Now, unless these two, the bottom of the cutting and the sand, come directly in contact with each other, the capillary action does not commence its work, and as the action which is all on the side of the cutting is not a magnet to draw the moisture up, the result is apparent in a dry cutting.

The Split Carnation.

The split carnation is a topic to which one might perhaps be able to devote an entire paper, so that here I might say that the two great causes, in my mind, are the sudden changes in temperature and the lack of sunshine. The first can be avoided by constant attention to the ventilators and boilers, so that in the cold, bright days of midwinter when the fires are low, care should be taken to have the pipes hot enough to let the temperature drop easily as the sun departs. The latter cause can be helped somewhat by giving all the air possible consistent with common sense, so that the plants may become strong. Also, in the selection of stock for propagating, select only the strongest and best cuttings, as this trouble of splitting is, I believe, hereditary and, while some varieties will split however good you treat them, we can keep down the percentage if we handle them correctly.

The every-day varieties I find do best in a night temperature of 54 degrees and in the day 68 degrees to 70 degrees when the sun shines. On cloudy days air is given when the thermometer reaches 60 degrees, accordingly as the weather is boisterous or calm.

Cutting and Packing.

The cutting and packing of carnations for the market is work that should be done by experienced help, as upon this depends the success of your enterprise. Try and arrange to have all flowers, if possible, in water at least twelve hours before shipping, and keep them in a cool place. Now that the warm days are approaching, our flowers will be in a more salable condition and last longer when the customer purchases them if we can find it convenient to cut them the first thing every morning, after they have recuperated over night.

We all know that stock shipped in is not handled with the best of care by express agents, so exercise judgment in packing the same firmly in strong, clean boxes, so that when jolted backwards and forwards, the necks of the flowers will not be broken. This will save you lots of unnecessary worrying and arguing with your agent, and will enable him to secure better prices. In time your reputation will become established as a first-class grower and, by attending to even the smallest detail, sooner or later success will be yours.

HOUSE OF FINE LAWSON.

Anyone who has an idea that the Lawson carnation is running out should take the trouble to inspect the house of that variety at the establishment of W. S. Garland, at Des Plaines, Ill. The accompanying illustration does the subject little justice, beyond showing the height of the growth, with some indication of the sea of buds which greets the eye of the visitor. The house is 27x250, and since the middle of February has been yielding a cut of 1,000 blooms a day. Stems are of excellent length, flowers large, and there has been a surprisingly small percentage of splits, not over fifty a day. The plants are in the very best of condition and promise to continue large returns to the end of the season. The cut is handled by Percy Jones, on the floor of the Flower Growers' Market at Chicago.

VEGETABLE PLANTS.

The exact time for sowing seed for the raising of plants for subsequent planting outdoors must be regulated to a certain extent by the locality in which the grower is placed, or by the time at which the plants can be safely planted outdoors without danger of injury by frost in said locality. Though the time does not vary to such great extent, nevertheless a week or two makes a good deal of difference in the growth of plants and that week or two must be allowed for.

The first essential is to have the seed planted in time to have the plants large enough and strong enough by planting time. But the time must be so regulated that the plants will be in the best possible condition when the time for planting arrives. If sown too soon the plants either become overgrown to such an extent that they receive a severe check in being transferred to the open ground, or they become so hampered in tight quarters that they become hard and stunted and take so long to make a start after planting that much valuable time is lost in place of time being gained by making an early start.

The idea should be to regulate the sowing so as to have the plants just large enough but at the same time have them in a healthy, free-growing state.

We have often seen such subjects as egg plants and peppers sown the first week in April beat plants from seed sown the beginning of March. As these are rather tender subjects, they cannot, as a general rule, be trusted outdoors much before the end of May, so by sowing at the end of March it gives two months from sowing to planting out. This allows nice time to get the plants in the best possible order, if proper care is given and the proper facilities are available.

Cabbage and cauliflower plants can be grown large enough in seven weeks from time of sowing but to give time for proper hardening off eight weeks had better be allowed. These being hardier, may safely be planted from two to three weeks earlier than egg plants or peppers.

Lettuce plants in nice order for planting can be grown in six weeks from time of sowing and may, as a rule, be set out about the same time as cabbage.

The time of setting out is apt to vary somewhat on the warmth of the season, but seldom enough to affect the condition of the plants. The proper hardening off of all vegetable plants previous to setting out should always be carefully attended to as it insures against check and enables the plants to better withstand the variations of temperature which are liable to occur.

Greenhouse Heating.

PIPING FOR FOUR HOUSES.

I am building four 50-foot houses; two houses ten feet wide, four feet to eaves, seven feet to ridge; one house fourteen feet wide, four feet to eaves, eight feet to ridge; one house sixteen feet wide, four feet to eaves, nine and one-half feet to ridge, with two feet glass on east side, for carnations. The houses run north and south, with boiler shed and workroom on north ends of houses. The houses have glass in south ends from gutters and eaves up; the outside walls are double-boarded with paper between. Each house will be separated from the others by one thickness of siding. I want to know how many runs of 1½-inch pipe are needed for each house, also how large the pipe under the ridge ought to be and what horse-power steam boiler I need to maintain 55 degrees to 60 degrees at zero outside.

H. T.

Each of your small houses 10x50 feet can be piped with a 1½-inch flow under ridge and six 1¼-inch returns on side wall or under benches.

The 14-foot house should have a 2-inch flow or riser under ridge and eight 1¼-inch returns, while the 16-foot house should have a 2-inch flow and nine 1¼-inch returns. The combined requirement of the four houses is less than 1,000 square feet of radiation. A boiler with 130 square feet of heating surface should be ample to provide steam for these houses. This would be equivalent to about twelve horse-power.

MORE RADIATION NEEDED.

I have a greenhouse 20x50 feet, side walls four feet, sashbars twelve feet, which I am going to extend fifty feet this season. I have a hot-water system at present and heat my dwelling with the same riser that heats the greenhouse. My piping arrangements are as follows: A 3-inch riser six feet high to ell, then six feet to branch for dwelling, continuing with 2½-inch pipe into greenhouse, where it branches into two 2-inch pipes to right and left that feed a coil of three 1½-inch flows arranged above three 1½-inch returns on gutter posts. The system has worked with perfect satisfaction during the past season.

When I extend the house fifty feet farther, making a house 100 feet long, will this arrangement of pipes give the same satisfaction as before? Would it be more satisfactory if I should run two 2-inch flows along each purlin to feed four 1½-inch returns on side walls, or would one 2½-inch flow be better than two 2-inch flows? Will the 3-inch riser mentioned be large enough to furnish between 600 square feet and 700 square feet of radiation?

In my dwelling I heat one room 12x27x9 feet, separated by a screen partition into two rooms, with 99 square feet of radiation. The room faces north, is exposed on three sides, has four common size and two large size windows and one outside door. We are much exposed to northwest winds. During the past winter I found we had not enough radiation. How much radiation will I need to keep the dwelling at 70 commercial grower not to go too heavily into the newer varieties until by due trial and observation he feels himself capable of handling the same, as it is best to try first and succeed afterwards.

Right Kind of Soil.

The question of soil is a serious one for the majority of growers, and very often considerable outlay is necessary for the procuring of the right kind. What is the right kind? Each grower seems to have his own ideas about that. One successful man, located near Buffalo, with an area of 20,000 square feet of glass, has used the same soil continually for the past seven years, mixed, of course, with manures and fertilizers. If I could procure discarded rose soil, thoroughly mix this up outside with lime and bone meal or cow manure, proportionately, I venture to say it would be no bother to produce good flowers, providing good care and treatment were given.

In the matter of planting the different varieties in the benches, I have been most successful using nine inches between the rows and seven inches in the row. This applies, of course, to medium sized plants and to those which grow compactly; most of them can be made to do so by the usual method of wire and string support. One point I must bring before you strongly is that in planting these distances apart, careful watch will have to be kept for red spider. To the beginner in carnation growing I would advise planting a little further apart each way.

Care in Feeding.

During the growing season care should be exercised in feeding, as some varieties require considerably more than others and if overdone it simply can't be undone. As to what is considered the best way of feeding the plants is a matter of conjecture, but I would recommend the frequent application of pure bone meal, as it can be handled far more easily and is cleaner than manure. The one great advantage I find this method has over manurial waterings, is that each plant gets its own share and can absorb the nourishment at leisure, while a heavy douche of manure water given once a week, besides occasional clear waterings between times, has a tendency to keep a good many plants too wet. I have yet to find the greenhouse so situated that all the plants are ready for water at the same time; consequently, if you are soaking the plants that are wet with your weekly feed, the result is soon apparent, as the benches will be empty. I would not in any way despise top dressing of cow manure or other manure and consider it of a decided advantage in giving a change of diet, but as soon as the manure goes on the bench your troubles begin, with weeds, mites, sour soil, worms and, incidentally, I might say stem-rot.

The past season has been a very poor one in regard to propagation, owing no doubt to the long spells of cloudy weather making the growth soft; but not all the blame can be laid to that alone, as, in a matter of so much importance, the question of experienced help arises, and this part of the work should be undertaken by an efficient man.

Should Coach Green Help.

During the past few years it has been my misfortune to have to deal with green help and while I have learned something, the knowledge has been derived after losses which could have been avoided. When the operation of trimming the cuttings commences, take the time to give careful instructions to the uninitiated; yes and to some of the so-called "experienced," not to destroy the outer skin or bark at the base of the slip, thus exposing to the water and air the soft pith which has no power to withstand the elements; consequently after four or five days these cuttings will have rotted. In putting in the sand, too, the same care should be given to see that each cutting rests firmly on the sand. This fact is the reason why so many cuttings look dry at the top, yet, when pulled out, the part in the sand is all right. How is that? you ask. The reason is that when inserting them in the sand, the cut was so deep that many short cuttings did not reach the bottom and when watered in, were hanging, held up by the sand which closed the cut. Now, unless these two, the bottom of the cutting and the sand, come directly in contact with each other, the capillary action does not commence its work, and as the action which is all on the side of the cutting is not a magnet to draw the moisture up, the result is apparent in a dry cutting.

The Split Carnation.

The split carnation is a topic to which one might perhaps be able to devote an entire paper, so that here I might say that the two great causes, in my mind, are the sudden changes in temperature and the lack of sunshine. The first can be avoided by constant attention to the ventilators and boilers, so that in the cold, bright days of midwinter when the fires are low, care should be taken to have the pipes hot enough to let the temperature drop easily as the sun departs. The latter cause can be helped somewhat by giving all the air possible consistent with common sense, so that the plants may become strong. Also, in the selection of stock for propagating, select only the strongest and best cuttings, as this trouble of splitting is, I believe, hereditary and, while some varieties will split however good you treat them, we can keep down the percentage if we handle them correctly.

The every-day varieties I find do best in a night temperature of 54 degrees and in the day 68 degrees to 70 degrees when the sun shines. On cloudy days air is given when the thermometer reaches 60 degrees, accordingly as the weather is boisterous or calm.

Cutting and Packing.

The cutting and packing of carnations for the market is work that should be done by experienced help, as upon this depends the success of your enterprise. Try and arrange to have all flowers, if possible, in water at least twelve hours before shipping, and keep them in a cool place. Now that the warm days are approaching, our flowers will be in a more alable condition and last longer when the customer purchases them if we can find it convenient to cut them the first thing every morning, after they have recuperated over night.

We all know that stock shipped in is not handled with the best of care by express agents, so exercise judgment in packing the same firmly in strong, clean boxes, so that when jolted backwards and forwards, the necks of the flowers will not be broken. This will save you lots of unnecessary worrying and arguing with your agent, and will enable him to secure better prices. In time your reputation will become established as a first-class grower and, by attending to even the smallest detail, sooner or later success will be yours.

HOUSE OF FINE LAWSON.

Anyone who has an idea that the Lawson carnation is running out should take the trouble to inspect the house of that variety at the establishment of W. S. Garland, at Des Plaines, Ill. The accompanying illustration does the subject little justice, beyond showing the height of the growth, with some indication of the sea of buds which greets the eye of the visitor. The house is 27x250, and since the middle of February has been yielding a cut of 1,000 blooms a day. Stems are of excellent length, flowers large, and there has been a surprisingly small percentage of splits, not over fifty a day. The plants are in the very best of condition and promise to continue large returns to the end of the season. The cut is handled by Percy Jones, on the floor of the Flower Growers' Market at Chicago.

Greenhouse Heating.

PIPING FOR FOUR HOUSES.

I am building four 50 foot houses, two houses ten feet wide, four feet to eaves, seven feet to ridge; one house fourteen feet wide, four feet to eaves, eight feet to ridge; one house sixteen feet wide, four feet to eaves, nine and one-half feet to ridge, with two feet glass on east side, for carnations. I want to know how many runs of 1 1/4 inch pipe are needed for each house, also how large the pipe under the ridge ought to be and what horse power steam boiler I need to maintain 55 degrees to 60 degrees at zero outside.

H. F.

Each of your small houses 10x50 feet can be piped with a 1 1/2 inch flow under ridge and six 1 1/4 inch returns on side wall or under benches.

The 11 foot house should have a 2 inch flow or riser under ridge and eight 1 1/4 inch returns, while the 16 foot house should have a 2 inch flow and nine 1 1/4 inch returns. The combined requirement of the four houses is less than 1,000 square feet of radiation. A boiler with 150 square feet of heating surface should be ample to provide steam for these houses. This would be equivalent to about twelve radiators.

MORE RADIATION NEEDED.

I have a greenhouse 20x50 feet, side walls four feet, sashats twelve feet, when I am going to extend fifty feet this season. I have a hot water system at present and heat my dwelling with the same riser that heats the greenhouse. My piping arrangements are as follows: A 3 inch riser six feet high to eaves, then six feet to branch for dwelling, continuing with 2 1/2 inch pipe into greenhouse, where it branches into two 2 inch pipes to right and left that feed a coil of three 1 1/2 inch flows arranged above three 1 1/2 inch returns or gutter posts. The system has worked with perfect satisfaction during the past season.

When I extend the house fifty feet farther, making a house 100 feet long, will this arrangement of pipes give the same satisfaction as before? Would it be more satisfactory if I should run two 2 inch flows along each side to feed four 1 1/2 inch returns on side walls, or would one 2 1/2 inch flow be better than two 2 inch flows? Will the 3 inch riser mentioned be large enough to furnish between 600 square feet and 700 square feet of radiation?

In my dwelling I heat one room 12x17x9 feet, separated from the rest of the house into two rooms, with 100 square feet of radiation. The other room, 12x12 feet, is exposed on three sides, has four common size windows and six windows and one outside door. It is much exposed to northwest winds. During the past winter I found it was not enough radiation. How much radiation will I need to keep the room at 70 degrees while the greenhouse stays at 40 degrees to 50 degrees during 15 degrees below zero weather, both dwelling and greenhouse being heated by the same boiler? During the past severe weather both dwelling and greenhouse kept at the same temperature, 45 degrees. Would you advise using a separate riser for the dwelling, or change the present 3-inch riser to a 3½-inch or 4-inch riser? W. K.

If you add fifty feet to the length of your present greenhouse, making it 100 feet long, it should be provided with about 740 square feet of radiation with water at 180 degrees to maintain the temperature you desire. This can be provided by extending each of the 2-inch branches of the riser to the distant end of the house and there dividing to return by six 1½-inch returns on each side. This will give two 2-inch risers the length of the house and twelve 1½-inch returns, which will give the piping desired. In the dwelling the space heated is about 2,900 cubic feet, which makes your present radiation about one to thirty. It should, in my judgment, be about one to twenty. If you add a 50-foot radiator, this will give the additional radiation necessary to heat the room. L. C. C.

SHOULD HAVE LARGER BOILER.

I am building a house 27x100 feet for carnations, seven feet two inches and six feet to eaves and fourteen feet to ridge. I will use two 2½-inch flow pipes and ten 2-inch returns, placed three each under north and south bench and two under each of the two center benches. Do you consider that plan sufficient to maintain a temperature of 52 degrees, zero weather outside? My boiler is a horizontal tubular, firebox in one end, eight horse-power. Do you think it large enough to heat above house? A. R. W.

I do not think you have sufficient radiation in the house to maintain a suitable temperature for carnations. The house should have about 1,000 square feet of radiation to maintain 60 degrees during severe weather; you have provided about 750 square feet, which leaves about 250 square feet to be supplied. You can undoubtedly keep frost out in severe weather, but I believe it would be safer and better to add four more 2-inch returns, one under each bench. Such an arrangement would add 248 square feet, and would make the radiation about normal. The boiler in question, if eight horse-power, is not large enough for the house piped as above suggested. A fifteen horse-power boiler is about right. L. C. C.

PERFECT HEATING SYSTEM.

Since the publication of that little piece about my system of heating, February 22, I have received communications from so many that I again appeal to you as a means of communication, hoping that I will not burden you.

My houses are small compared with some establishments. The tank and the pipes flowing to and from the tank should correspond in capacity or size to the dimensions given in that issue. Have the tank as near over boiler as possible, with the bottom of tank ten feet above the floor of the greenhouse; then connect ¾-inch pipe to return, just before it turns down to boiler. Let this run to top of tank, then run ½-inch pipe from bottom of boiler to bottom of tank, with check valve near boiler to keep water from backing up when steam is higher than weight of water in the pipe. The bottom of the boiler should be three or four feet lower than the floor of the greenhouse. This will give three or four pounds of steam pressure and let the condensed steam return at the same time. If the pressure runs higher than four pounds the water will just stay up in the tank till the pressure slackens, then it will come to boiler. This is a very simple arrangement and easy to handle and no danger attached to it if you keep your boiler to the high gage with water. J. W. PERRY.

COLEUS THYRSOIDEUS.

When grown under the best conditions, this comparatively new plant forms one of our most distinct and beautiful winter-flowering subjects. Blue flowers are extremely rare, compared with those of some other colors, and consequently this adds much to their value. Coleus thyrsoideus I have seen grown under many conditions, and in some cases one would hardly believe it to be the same plant, so varied has been the coloring of the flowers. At its best, the color is a beautiful blue, but treated under adverse conditions the plants present a poor, weedy appearance, and the flowers are strikingly poor.

Like other coleuses, this is one of the easiest plants possible to cultivate, as it strikes roots most readily, and grows rampantly. A few notes concerning its treatment may, says the Gardeners' Magazine, be of some service to any who have been unsuccessful with it. Though it is easily raised from seed, by far the most satisfactory way is to insert cuttings singly in small pots in sandy compost during April and May, or even later, and place in the forcing-house. Immediately these are rooted, arrange them on a shelf near the glass in an intermediate house. Pinch out the growing points and pot as required, and during the summer and early autumn the plants should be treated as greenhouse rather than stove subjects, giving them all the light and air possible, as the ripener the wood becomes, and the more sturdy the growth, the more beautiful and intense will be the coloring of the flowers.

As winter approaches remove the plants to an intermediate house, a temperature of about 55 degrees suiting them admirably. At that season the plants should be liberally fed with liquid manure. Excellent plants for table decoration may be grown in 5-inch and 6-inch pots by inserting good strong points singly in 3-inch pots early in August, potting them when ready, and growing them in an intermediate house on shelves.

be hastened to completion for planting to roses.

NUMBER OF BLOOMS PER PLANT.

How many flowers per plant ought each of the following roses to bear during a season when grown as they should be and given first-class cultivation: American Beauty, Bride, Maid, Killarney and Richmond?

Although seasons vary, what ought each of the above varieties clear over all expenses per square foot of bench? Also what ought novelties in carnations and standard varieties clear per square foot of bench? I desire only some general idea about the flowers mentioned, assuming that they are grown by experienced men who can put out first quality cut flowers. E. S. B.

Roses which are planted early, having a longer growing season in which to form a plant before the harvest begins, by reason of their greater strength, more extended root area and greater number of flower-bearing eyes, under the same treatment, will produce a much better average, especially of firsts, than those where planting has been deferred till late in the season.

If planted late in May or early in KOKOMO'S KAISERINS.

W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, is famous for his Kaiserins. For many years he has been growing blooms of this rose which have been the envy of all who have seen them. One of the most unusual features is the fact that he has been cutting from the same plants grown under glass for thirteen years. Only once in this long period have the plants been replanted. This was last autumn, and Mr. Coles says it was during his absence in Europe, or he might have let well enough alone awhile longer. The result is that the blooms now being cut are about the finest in the whole life of the plants. They have taken a fresh hold and are producing splendid flowers on stems three and four feet long. The prospect for a summer crop is something to give any grower joy.

Mr. Coles has bought the material for an extension of one house and for one new structure. The extension will be 23x80 and will be devoted to carnations. The new house will be 30x300 and will

June the average cut of all grades should be in the vicinity of twenty-five for Brides and Maids, Beauties twelve, Richmond fifteen to eighteen, Killarney twenty; these to be on their own roots. With expert care, good seasons and everything favorable, the average can be considerably raised.

What amount of money each of the varieties should produce over the expenses of growing and marketing is largely a matter of locality, as coal, water and labor are so variable in different sections of the country. Novelty in carnations have to be experimented with to find out their value, because a novelty which has done well with the raiser and disseminator may prove an utter failure in another locality, even in the hands of an expert. Standard varieties, such as Lawson and Enchantress, should produce from twenty to thirty of the former and from eighteen to twenty-five of the latter to be a good paying crop. RIBES.

KILLARNEY A GOOD ROSE.

Is the Killarney rose inclined to shed the older leaves in winter and have a marked appearance? Is it more subject to mildew than Brides or Maids? B.

This rose, so far as it has come under my observation and from my experience with it, seems to have a good constitution and shows very little of a tendency to drop its leaves, even during the darkest spell of weather. Neither do the leaves show a susceptibility to spot or trouble of any kind and it is, if anything, less subject to mildew than either Brides or Maids. RIBES.

DOROTHY PERKINS ROSE.

The following recently appeared in the Journal des Roses, published at Paris, France:

"We published in the Journal des Roses of September, 1902, a detailed article about Rose Dorothy Perkins at the time of its origination and introduction by the American horticulturists, Jackson & Perkins. In referring again to this variety of Rosa Wichuraiana (which was obtained by hybridizing with pollen from the rose Mme. Gabriel Luizet) it is simply to inform our readers of the popularity which this new rose enjoys in England, as well as Germany, where it is now in fully as great demand as the Crimson Rambler.

"It is a sort that is unique in its class and one that French rose growers will do well to propagate in large quantities as well as to grow in all the show gardens. This rose is of very vigorous climbing habit and of extraordinary floriferousness. It flowers only once during the season, it is true, but the period of blooming is quite late and is often prolonged until September, a time when the majority of climbing roses have ceased to flower.

"The inflorescence of Dorothy Perkins rose, which sometimes completely covers the bush, is produced in panicles of little flowers, borne in clusters of fifteen to twenty-five, according to the strength of the branches on which they are developed.

"It is also a very hardy variety, as we have determined by using it very satisfactorily to cover some stone walls along the track of the Alpine Railway at altitudes varying from 1,200 to 1,500 meters above sea level, and where this rose has withstood perfectly the rigors of the past winter."

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

In trimming galax wreaths much of the character of the piece depends upon the color selection. For the darker flowers, such as red roses, violets, American Beauties, crimson carnations and white flowers, use the green galax. Upon the bronze put Perle roses, Enchantress, Prosperity, Patten and other light, intermediate tints of carnations; Bridesmaid, Golden Gate, Chatenay, La Detroit or Bride roses. In short, use cream, yellow or soft pinks with the bronze and white, red or purple with the green.

With these fancy foliage wreaths a spray or bunch of some kind or other is the best finish. Let there always be a third or half of the wreath upon which no flower or ribbon is allowed to fall. Make the wreath deep and wide, but see that no leaves stand straight up. Stem in bunches of two to four, spread out fan-shaped and of different length stems. Satin ribbon is the best tie. Add no other foliage except that which belongs to the flowers used.

It is an exceptional trade nowadays that does not call frequently for the filling of ferneries. Mixed ferns with asparagus from 2- or 3-inch pots seem to be the favorites. The pteris varieties are especially good, while a small cocos for the center is graceful. Now and again fill the fernery with Selaginella Kraussiana. The latter is not as lasting, but is very beautiful.

Silver, china or bark ferneries can be used as centerpieces for stemmed cut flowers, one in pansies, dark purple with the silver setting being quite attractive. A round bark fernery is a fine setting for orange nasturtiums; add very little foliage except the nasturtium leaves. Single violets alone, or with lilies of the valley, is another good filling for a bark fernery. GERTRUDE BLAIR.

A NOVEL ADVERTISEMENT.

On Fifth avenue, New York, a few days ago, nearly every woman in an open carriage, hansom or automobile, was carrying a jonquil between the pages of a folder that looked like a menu card from some semi-public luncheon. The farther up town one went the more numerous the little spots of yellow bloomed in the stream of conveyances.

At Forty-third street the reason for the flowers was made clear. A florist had a boy in livery posted on that corner whose business it was to present one of the flowers and the advertising booklet to every woman in an open vehicle.

PREPARATIONS FOR EASTER.

[A paper by Hugo Schroeter, read before the Detroit Florists' Club, March 21, 1906.]

Though far from being myself a grower, I want to make a few remarks that I hope will aid the grower in his preparation for Easter. It is the man who grows the stock who has to do the most planning, and now is the time to make notes to assist in the selection of what to grow for 1907.

Lilies should come in for the first consideration, as this is the Easter plant above all others. The number of blooms on a plant or its height have always seemed to me to be merely a piece of good or bad luck, so it is hardly worth while to mention that plants two and one-half feet to three feet high, with from five to eight good blooms in different stages, sell best in this locality. It is also well to have some planted into three-fourths, or azalea, pots, say from three to five plants in a pot. See that they are well seasoned by keeping them rather cool the last week. About twenty-five per cent of the lilies are sold on Wednesday before Easter, and as these are for church use, the tall plants are generally preferred.

Good Sellers.

Azaleas are always good sellers; the dwarf varieties, of which Firefly is probably the best, are also becoming very popular.

In bulbous stock we have always found a ready sale for lavender, pink and white hyacinths; red are a fizzle. In tulips Murillo is the best, with Tournesol a close second, followed by Vermilion Brilliant and Proserpine.

American Beauties in pots sold very well last year, as did Ramblers and Baby Ramblers.

Lilacs, hydrangeas, rhododendrons, daisies, genistas, spiraeas, and a variety of other stock always helps to put a little spice into the business, for although nine out of every ten people want a lily, if you have no variety to show them the lily won't sell, either. I will add that every pot should be washed, and such plants as hyacinths, lilies, etc., properly tied up, before leaving the greenhouse. The wholesale grower who follows this rule will also find a greater demand for his goods than the other fellows.

In regard to the best methods to employ in the forcing, or holding back of stock, I must confess I cannot enlighten you, as I am merely one of those retailers with seemingly nothing else to do but prepare for the disposal of all the money we make at Easter.

The Preparation.

Start right in by buying some nails and lumber; for if you have any temporary benches or shelves to build, get them finished so that on Monday or Tuesday before Easter prospective buyers won't have to bring guides along to assist in sealing lumber piles.

Palms, rubbers, ferns and other plants which do not meet with so much demand at this time should be set aside to give as much room as possible to blooming plants.

While it would be foolish to have all, or even half, of your Easter stock of plants brought into the store or show house the first part of Easter week, it is a good plan to have a nice assortment on hand early. If we all lived up to this plan we would not be so rushed the last days, as very often a customer sees some article that strikes his fancy and, though he was just looking around, places an order at once.

As no doubt you will have some green hands, mark the price on all plants and baskets in plain figures; of course, it is hardly necessary to mark lily plants. Pay particular attention to your show windows, changing the display several times during the week.

In your spare moments, instead of sitting around swapping stories, get a good supply of paper boxes made up; also look over your supply of paper, tags, twine, etc.

Care is Essential.

Boxes containing violets or cut flowers should be arranged with the same care during the Easter rush as at other times. The proper way is to wrap each box to prevent it becoming soiled in delivering, besides affording more protection against frost.

One great item of extra expense on special days is extra help, generally very unsatisfactory help at that, but we must have it; so you would better hustle around now and, if possible, scare up some people who helped you in former years, not only because they will have had some experience, but also because you know just what part of the business they are most suitable for. It is good policy to hire extra help at so much per hour. This will guard you against a lot of kicking and grumbling when it comes to paying off. Appoint someone to keep tab of their time. In hiring extra help steer clear of friends or relatives, as it is hard to get the work out of them.

Just how large an advance order to place for cut flowers you must know yourselves from former years' experience, but place it early. I would advise you not to lay in too many of those green carnations. Don't laugh!

Using Old Baskets.

If you have any baskets lying around from last year, clean them up and fill with suitable plants; this is your one chance to get rid of some old baskets. Also see to it that you have a nice assortment of new baskets, besides a good supply of plaited wax paper and ribbon. Under no circumstances will we bother with crepe paper again; it is unsatisfactory both to yourself and your customer, as the dampness soon spoils all your trouble taken in trimming the pot. The plaited paper is very quickly adjusted and not so easily affected by water. Various colored mats also come in very handy for trimming; by first moistening them they will not break and are much more easily manipulated.

As we are not all in a position where we can afford automobiles for delivering, make arrangements for extra wagons early. See that all your horses are well shod, as it may be slippery weather.

The Shipping Department.

It is absolutely necessary to give a great deal of attention to your delivery or shipping department, as many a good customer has been lost through mistakes in delivering. In fact, here is where really the whole trouble and worry come in at Christmas or Easter. If a card is lost, plants broken, a horse falls down or a driver gets drunk, who gets the blame? The shipping clerk, of course. Leaving the shipping all in the hands of one man who does nothing else for three or four of the busiest days is the only way to have it attended to satisfactorily. This clerk should be some old employe of yours who not only knows the city from A to Z, but who knows how to handle a lot of drivers and errand boys and will give every detail his undivided attention.

We generally manage to have good use for five wagons and three or four errand boys during the holidays, and acting in the capacity of shipping clerk I have adopted the following system:

Arranging for Delivery.

Select some convenient place where all sold articles are placed by the salesmen, and from time to time arrange every variety of plant by itself with the tag in plain view. I have a cabinet made of eight boxes, just large enough to hold the order slips nicely; in appearance it is similar to a spice cabinet, but instead of being labeled "shoestrings," "nails," etc., it bears the following uninteresting labels, "today," "car," "north," "east," "west," "north-east," "northwest" and "special."

Of all the orders to be delivered, say, on Saturday, the slips are put into the today box by the different salesmen as soon as an order is taken for that day, cut flowers and funeral work slips excepted; these are placed in charge of someone appointed to fill these orders, when the slips are checked off and placed into the today box for delivery. Every once in a while I take the slips out of the today box and divide them into their respective boxes, as for instance, 746 Cass avenue would go into the north box, and an express order into the special box.

The Trip.

Now for a trip. Pick about twenty-five or thirty slips out of, say, the east box if you intend an east trip to go next. Find the articles corresponding with your order slips, see that every plant is carefully tied up, card on it and pot trimmed if order calls for it, put all in one place near where you load. As you find an article, check off the corresponding slip, then lay the slips in the order to be delivered and write in route book. In the book I use every other page is tissue, using copying paper; the heavy sheet is torn out and given to the driver. See that each and every article is signed for by the receiver; this will avoid a great deal of worry later on.

The best way is to keep your wagons and boys always on the go. Don't wait for your orders to pile up. A trip of twelve to fifteen stops is much more sure to be delivered properly than one with thirty or thirty-five. A driver naturally gets careless at the end of a long trip, especially in cold or stormy weather.

Keep the different batches of slips fastened together and marked with a number corresponding with the route, so that in case an article comes back you can place your hand right on the proper slip.

Protecting the Plants.

For furthering the safe delivery of plants, particularly lilies, we have had made a number of boxes of 1/2-inch boards, 15x15x6 inches inside measurement, divided into four compartments; these are kept in the wagon, and help to keep plants from falling over, the plants being placed in the compartments.

Go to your hatter and get a load of paper hat boxes; place large trimmed-up pots in them to protect the paper or matting.

It is advisable to wrap a sheet of some soft tissue around each plant to keep it from getting broken, for of what good is all your previous care and art in decorating a plant if it gets spoiled in delivering?

Thanking you for your kind attention, I most sincerely hope that these few remarks will be of some benefit to you all.

GOLD FISH AND GAS.

I want to make inquiries about the use of hydrocyanic acid gas. I have two houses, one 12x85, the other 16x75. The first is occupied by carnations and geraniums. The other is devoted to miscellaneous stock, gloxinias, begonias, rubbers and almost everything that grows. There is also a pond in this house stocked with 100 gold fish. Will it be safe to use hydrocyanic acid gas in the latter house, and in what quantities? The houses are not very close. I am troubled with the white fly and greenfly. Tobacco does not seem to do the work.

J. F. S.

The gas will certainly kill your greenfly and white fly if used according to the formula so often printed in the REVIEW. One application may not suffice, as it will not affect the eggs, which would eventually hatch and quickly breed another swarm of the fly. Whether the gas would be injurious to the fish is quite another question and would take a natural scientist to knowingly discuss. My own opinion is that it would do them no harm; the gas being so much lighter than the water, it would not penetrate or mix with the water.

This reminds me of the long ago, '51 or '52 of last century. There was built at my birthplace a house especially constructed to grow the Victoria regia, the mammoth water lily of the Amazon, and it is worth mentioning that it was in that very house that this giant of aquatics was first successfully grown in Great Britain. The house was thirty-five feet in diameter and the water basin thirty feet. A few gold fish were introduced in the basin the first year and in four or five years they had so increased and multiplied that there were thousands of them, so many that one of the trifling expenses of this beautiful garden was "bread for the gold fish."

It was noticed that when visitors entered the vestibule leading to the basin the fish would come swimming up in shoals of many thousands to the nearest point to the sound, and this gave rise in a small domestic circle to the question, "Can fish hear?" I don't remember whether the question was ever definitely solved, but the frequent discussion of the loaves and fishes will account for the intimate scriptural knowledge in the writer's possession. There was one feature absent, viz., the baskets of fragments left; but as that is the miracle part of it, we will cut it out of ours. There was no fragment left. As the fish were robust and healthy, the two or three loaves were all devoured.

Fish have no external ears, but that is no proof that they have not the sense of hearing. John Westcott has told me he never caught a fish by the ear, but he did tell me that he caught by the tail at Barnegat bay a flounder weighing twenty-seven and one-half pounds. It is just possible that a fish's organ of hearing is located in the tail.

Now, in addition to a slam of the door, we used to advance to the edge of the lily basin and whistle, not any particular tune, but just a plain, uncultivated whistle. Although one old workman maintained that the fish came from the farthest end of the pool faster for "Pop Goes the Weasel" than they did for "Annie Laurie," if you had gone in there and declaimed "Lochiel's Warning" or the "Declaration of Independence," or whistled until you were blue in the face, it would have had no effect on the fish, but the sharp slam of the door caused a vibration of the water, perhaps so slight that it was invisible to the eye, but sufficient to be perceptible to the fish. Fish possess a brain, if not ears and lungs like the higher animals, and when that particular vibration or sensation touched their heads or sides or tails they knew it was lunch time.

I have gone some ways around to explain this question, but hope you will find it as amusing as reading the bowling scores of people you never saw.

Once again, I don't believe the gas will have the least effect on the fish in the water. W. S.

GAVE HIMSELF AWAY.

Gracie—Oh, Mr. Nocoyne, how lovely of you to bring me these beautiful flowers! How sweet they are, and how fresh! I do believe there is a little dew on them yet!

Nocoyne—W-well, yes, there is; but I'll pay it tomorrow.—Chicago Tribune.

VINCENNES, IND.—H. W. Rieman has a field of eight acres of peonies, from which he will in a year or two be cutting heavily for wholesale markets.

A NEW JERSEY VIEW.

The accompanying illustration shows a view from the residence of C. Ledyard Blair, Far Hills, N. J. The approach was planned by Wadley & Smythe and the execution of the plan necessitated the transplanting of 642 American cedars of an average height of thirty-four feet. These trees were moved and established with a loss of less than ten per cent. The hedges and specimen bay trees are of utmost value in the plan.

With the Advertising Man

"Heaven first taught letters for some wretch's aid.
Some banished lover, or some captive maid.
But now we know they're handy for devising Good, up-to-date, effective advertising."

Dealers in almost every line of business—shoes, coal, groceries, meats, etc., are advertising—advertising persistently, but the retail florists seem to be doing the Rip Van Winkle act—taking a twenty-years' sleep. While, of course, there are a few exceptions, they are as scarce as "hen's teeth." Some day we hope it will be different.

Now, the purpose of this department is to give an impetus to this most important and much neglected branch of the retail florists' business.

This column is in charge of a competent advertising man who is also a practical florist—knows the business from the ground up, and what's below the ground as well.

Each week there will be a short talk on retail florists' advertising, as well as friendly criticisms on "ads" submitted.

If you retailers have any "ads" that are not bringing as much business as you think they should, or do not feel that you have the "knack" of putting what you wish to say in proper form, we want you to feel free to consult the writer of this column.

We will make suggestions that will help to pull business, and will show you how to handle your advertising to the best advantage.

Where it is necessary to have special typesetting done, cuts or illustrations made, this will be charged at actual cost, advising you beforehand, so that you can see for yourself just where you stand.

And the best thing about this service is that the part that costs money—the brain work—is performed without cost to yourself.

So send along your "ads," tell us what you would like to do and let's get together, making the spring of 1906 the very best season in the history of your business.

THE BEST PHLOXES.

William A. Peterson notes a rapidly increasing demand for phloxes, and names the following as the best varieties: Independence, tall white; La Cygne, pure white, large petals; Miss Lingard, white with rose center; Beranger, blush pink, very large petals; Le Soleil, clear soft pink; Pantheon, clear light rose, solid color, very large; Amabilis, solid rose red; Coquelicot, brilliant brick red; Ball of Fire, red with darker center; Eclaireur, early purplish crimson, very large; King of Purples, rich shade of dark maroon.

The Annual Special SPRING NUMBER

THE WEEKLY FLORISTS' REVIEW

For Easter, 1906

WILL BE ISSUED ON APRIL 5

It will be in keeping with the best previous special issues of the REVIEW, and that's "enough said."

Advertisers who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity for putting their specialties before the WHOLE trade should

YOU CAN HELP.

Every florist should take enough interest in "the square deal" and in the seed trade to be glad of the chance to help along a long delayed reform. Right now write a letter to your congressmen at Washington. A few words will do. Tell him that you want him to support the effort to end the free seed distribution by the government. The matter will be acted on in a very few days, so write at once.

LEAVES TO A CUTTING.

Will you kindly give me information as to how to make geranium cuttings from the top shoots of young plants? I had an argument with a party who claims that one leaf and heart are sufficient to a plant, while I claim that at least two leaves with the heart are necessary.

E. J.

You are decidedly right; one fully developed leaf and one almost fully developed are much better than one leaf; that is, the geranium cutting will root more surely and quickly with the two leaves than with only one, although we will not say that we have not rooted many thousands with only one leaf. We remember once seeing a lot of cuttings of zonal geraniums that had been entirely denuded of all leaves, although they were strong cuttings. The ignoramus who performed the operation lost the entire lot. They turned black, which was the first stage of rotting.

I am aware that many gardeners will say there is nothing gained by cutting at a joint. With some plants it is not necessary. Salvia or verbena or a tea rose, and many others, will root readily if cut an inch below a joint, but with the succulent geranium it is of consequence. It is much safer and, as it should take no longer to cut immediately below a joint, why not do it?

The principle of this artificial method of propagation, for by seed is the natural plan, is this, without any scientific terms: The cutting without roots is supported by moisture, which it absorbs from the medium into which it is inserted, the same as our cut flowers are kept fresh and beautiful by the water their stems absorb. But very few will send out roots in water alone. Now, in the case of the geranium, the leaves of the cutting collect material from the atmosphere and it descends through the structure of the plant to the roots, in a growing plant. It appears that at a joint the descending material is arrested and excites and forms what we technically call a callous and from this callous springs the root, so without the leaves gathering the essential elements no roots will start.

By a wonderful provision of nature, those plants that are very slow to root from a section of the growth will root from a piece of root, as the bouvardia, or a dormant eye of the stem, as the dracaena. In these cases a different process must go on from that in the leafy cutting of a geranium. If I say any more I shall get out of my depth, but E. J., you are right. The only object in pulling off any leaves is that you can get more in a given space without crowding.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

With a week of such unpleasant weather as has prevailed in the past seven days it could not be otherwise than that the market would be erratic. We have had a week of continuous blizzard and some of the coldest days of the year. On March 19 more snow fell than on any previous day this winter. There has been no transient trade in the local retail stores. An occasional decoration or good funeral order made a spurt. As the same weather conditions have prevailed throughout the territory served by this market, the same business conditions have also been noted. There has been an occasional run of heavy shipping, but in general business has been light.

With a week of practically no sun and with snow falling most of the time one would expect production to be curtailed, but if such has been the result the effect has been nullified by the decreased demand. In fact, there appears to be considerably more stock now in the market than during any recent period. Beauties are the possible exception. There is no oversupply of the longer grades. Short stock, say up to 12-inch stems, is a glut on the market, but the quality is generally very poor.

There is an abundance in the tea rose department. Red is less plentiful than any other color. Some very fine Brides and Maids are seen, also some grand Richmond from ground canes. There are some very fine Chatenay, but this rose is not nearly so abundant as it was in the autumn. Prices have weakened all along the line.

The carnation market shows little change from a week ago. There are very large supplies. White has cleaned out quickly, with Lawson always in stock, possibly because the receipts of it are so much larger than of any other variety. At the end of last week there was a huge accumulation, which was closed out cheaply. Fortunately for the market a few department store orders from out of town relieved the pressure. As stock is again accumulating, a repetition of the process may be looked for this week, with averages at the lowest this season. Growers, however, have no cause for complaint, as they have had better returns than usual all winter.

If anyone has a kick coming it is the violet grower. Not many really fine violets are reaching this market and those of other grades are exceedingly difficult to sell. In Monday's storm an offer of 20 cents per hundred would not tempt a Greek to touch the New York stock. Local retailers seem to prefer the home-grown singles. Bulbous material is not nearly so abundant as it has been. There are increasing supplies of callas and large numbers of Easter lilies, but many of them are short in stem and poor in flower. Some fine sweet peas are seen and sell well.

The green goods market is slightly more active, because of a few store openings which are calling for considerable quantities of asparagus.

Various Notes.

The Wholesale Florists' Association held a meeting Monday morning and adopted by-laws. The following officers were nominated: President, F. F. Benthey; vice-president, C. M. Dickinson; for secretary, John P. Risch and John P. Degnan; for treasurer, E. C. Amling and Leonard Kill; for directors for three years, C. M. Dickinson, E. E. Pieser and Leonard Kill; for two years, N. J. Wietor, C. L. Washburn and John Sinner; for one year, L. H. Winterson, John P. Risch and F. F. Benthey. Annual dues are $24.

E. C. Amling is receiving some very fine pink sweet peas.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is showing blooms of a white sport of Chatenay which originated with George Hopp, of Grand Rapids. They offer the stock of plants for sale and say they would as soon pocket a commission for selling plants as cut flowers.

Henry Rowe celebrated St. Patrick's day by opening his new store at 42 Monroe street, in the Palmer House block. It is decorated in green and white. In the midst of his moving he was given orders for fourteen large pieces for the Montgomery funeral, which kept him at work all night. On the evening of his opening day he had, as usual, the decoration for the annual banquet of the Irish Fellowship Club at the Auditorium. Five hundred guests were each given a shamrock.

Lubliner & Trinz have secured the store at 145 Wabash to May 1. They opened a branch there on Saturday and did a thriving business.

The wholesale houses are all showing portraits of Peter Reinberg with the inscription, "One good term deserves another." There is a strong fight against

Mr. Reinberg because of his vote for high license, but his re-election is certain if those who worked for high license are equally as active in defense of the aldermen who carried out their wishes.

The J. B. Deamud Co. has this month added several shippers. One in particular has a crop of as fine roses as are coming into this market. Alex. Newett, of this firm, is ill with lumbago.

Bassett & Washburn have been trying the new style of fumigating, with hydrocyanic acid gas. It has worked so well that they are preparing to fumigate the whole range of connected houses, a ground area of 168x600. These being high-gutter houses with no partition walls, it is almost necessary to fumigate them all at once. As something like 250 jars of the fumigant will be required, it is a problem how to set them off practically simultaneously and get the men out of the house before there is danger.

The Chicago Rose Co. has received a big lot of caladium bulbs. They have 100,000 fancy ferns in the ice box which are opening up in exceptionally good quality.

G. E. Pieser, secretary of the Kennicott Bros. Co., is on the sick list.

W. W. Randall, of the A. L. Randall Co., is taking his turn at West Baden this week. His brother returned from there a few days ago.

L. Baumann, the supply man, was at his office Monday for the first time in two months. He says he is lonesome without his appendix, but feeling first-rate after his experience in the hospital.

The landscape department of the George Wittbold Co. is figuring on a job which will necessitate the supplying of 360 car-loads of black soil. There is no order too large for the Wittbolds, nor is there anything in a trade way they are not prepared to tackle, from supplying a boutonniere to converting a desert into a garden.

Sam Pearce has seven houses of lilies coming on for Easter. His plants are about the tallest in the neighborhood, but in common with many other local growers his flowers are only fair.

E. H. Hunt's first Easter order was booked March 19 and came from West Virginia.

J. G. Crozier, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., whose recent injury under a railroad train was chronicled, is in town after an artificial foot.

E. H. Hitchcock, Glenwood, Mich., is in town. He has a million ferns in storage here and next year proposes to store practically his entire crop here and establish a wholesale agency.

C. W. Ward passed through Friday evening on his way home to Queens after spending a fortnight in Arizona.

W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, blew in with the blizzard on Monday.

TWIN CITIES.

The Market.

Trade the past week has been only fair, and on account of the heavy cuts of some of our larger growers, it has taxed them to dispose of the stock. The first part of the week, on account of the very cold weather, business was not any too good, but by Wednesday it changed and most of the leading dealers did very well the balance of the week. We have an abundance of stock coming in daily and most of it is very good. Roses have been fine and we have some carnations which would be hard to beat, especially Enchantress. Growers who have not had very good ones are now cutting some of the largest yet seen in this locality. All bulbous stock is plentiful and the prospects are that we are all going to be well supplied for the Easter trade. The department stores are disposing of large quantities, particularly on sale days. The violets which our local growers have been cutting are excellent and very few have been shipped into this market this season; a few of our growers have been very successful in raising them; it seems that they have been either very successful or an absolute failure.

Minneapolis.

Friends of Ralph Latham are glad to see him back at his post. He has been in Indiana, taking the mud baths, which seem to have done him considerable good. He reports good business since his return.

The Rosary reports good business, taking everything into consideration.

They have been carrying a complete stock of all cut flowers, but claim it is hard to get select roses.

Geo. S. Murtfeldt reports an increasing demand and is satisfied with the outlook. His store is indeed a very neat one and well kept up.

St. Paul.

Vogt Bros. are moving into their new location on Selby avenue, and will be able to handle much more trade.

Aug. S. Swanson has been cutting some of the finest bulbous stock brought into this market, particularly tulips.

L. L. May & Co. report trade very good. On Monday their record was twenty-six large floral emblems, a large portion of them being shipped to St. Peter, Minn., to the funeral of the mother of Governor Johnson, of Minnesota. FELIX.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Despite the cold weather and Lent the market keeps firm. The bulk of the business in the retail stores is funeral work, and of this there seems to be a plenty in all parts of the city. There is neither overstock nor scarcity in any one line. The wholesalers, too, report a goodly amount of shipping trade. The growers' talk at present is about Easter, and they have great hopes for big trade at this festival. The dark, cloudy weather of late has kept the blooming stock back. They say there will be plenty of fine stock for the expected heavy demand.

Friday and Saturday there was a demand for white carnations and everybody was busy with the green dyeing process. These sold well. The big parade was postponed a week owing to the bad condition of the streets from the recent snow storm, so next Sunday green carnations will again be seen in abundance on the streets.

Prices remain about as the week previous, only that on Friday and Saturday white carnations went up to $5 per hundred for fancy stock. Of Enchantress, Lawson and other colors the best sold at $3. Roses are more plentiful than they have been for some time, and extra fine stock in Bride, Maid and Ivory are $6 and $8 per hundred. Long Beauties are scarce, shorts plentiful.

Romans and Paper Whites are not nearly so plentiful. Harrisii and callas are in short supply. Good light-colored tulips sell well. Violets are again up to 40 cents a hundred, and not any too plentiful. Lily of the valley and Von Sion narcissi are abundant. More than enough smilax and other greens are in the market.

Various Notes.

F. K. Balthis, formerly of the Missouri Botanic Garden, left last week to take up his residence at Des Moines, Iowa. Mr. Balthis was a member of the local club.

The members of the local Florists' Club are much pleased at the selection of J. F. Ammann as president of the Illinois State Florists' Association. Mr. Ammann has a countless number of friends in the trade who I know are with me in congratulating the association on the selection. A great reception awaits Fred at the next meeting of the Florists' Club, over which he presides. A boom is now on for J. F. Ammann for president of the S. A. F. for 1907.

Charles Juengel had a narrow escape from burning out the past week. The fire was extinguished with damage amounting to only $50, fully covered by insurance.

The city council last Friday night passed a bill for the appointment of a city forester. Such a man should come from the local club.

Arthur Ellison leaves on Thursday for Louisville, to attend the National Bowling Congress. As a member of the Palace team, Arthur expects to capture some of the many prizes.

Slater & Co. have opened their new show house on St. Louis avenue, which replaces the old one, and is one of the attractions on that street. The house was built by Robert Thompson.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club will take place April 12. At this meeting F. W. Ude, Jr., will lead a discussion on "Growing Violets." The other discussion will be by Frank M. Ellis on "How to run a wholesale store, making it profitable and agreeable to both buyer and consignor."

Bowling.

The league team has now bowled seventy-two games. The average of those who bowled over fifty games are as follows:

Player.	N. G.	Total.	Av.
Ellison	69	11,898	172
Beyer	53	8,828	166
Meinhardt	63	10,446	165
Beneke	72	11,846	164
Kuehn	72	11,733	163

The highest three games, Meinhardt, 607. The highest single score, Beyer, 257. J. J. B.

HARTFORD, CONN.—Herbert D. Hemenway has resigned as director of the School of Horticulture. He will be succeeded April 1 by Stanley H. Rood.

MENDOTA, ILL.—B. Katzenwinkle will erect two greenhouses opposite Restland cemetery and expects to be able to fill orders by Decoration day. Mr. Katzenwinkle has been in Chicago for three years, where he was in the employ of August Jurgens, the importer and grower of valley and all kinds of bulbous stock. He also worked at Rose Hill cemetery.

BUFFALO.

Current Comment.

For several years we have remarked that the season of Lent made little difference to our business, but this year there has been a decided decrease. When Lent came in business dropped with the proverbial dull thud, or an equally poetic simile would be, like an oyster on the sidewalk.

There are some branches of our business on which Lent has no effect, but merrymaking of all kinds is tabooed, proving that our citizens are at least observing the external features of piety if not practicing the essence.

W. J. Palmer, at his upper, spacious store, during the automobile show exhibited a floral auto which attracted much attention. It was some seven feet long and four feet high and most faithfully worked out. The body was composed of bronze galax and the running gear and all outlines were worked out with his Red Lawson carnation, and to complete the outfit was the figure of a beautiful girl of 160 pounds.

This week Anderson, in sympathy for the dog show, put up an English setter and we have never seen an attempt of this sort worked out to greater perfection. It was made of white carnations, white and Harry Fenn, which exactly matched the color of the famous sporting dog, liver and white. Last year Mr. Snell, Mr. Anderson's artist, had to deprive his dog of a tail to fill up the usual number of hind legs, but this year he has every appendage covered. We understand that Mr. Anderson's other artist, W. A. Adams, supplies the bark when occasion requires. To make this picture complete I would suggest that the dog should be standing on a field of echeveria to represent a field of turnips and nestling among the echeveria should be a stuffed partridge or grouse.

Mr. Fancourt has called lately in the interest of S. S. Pennock, also Mr. Karines, of Dreer's, and Mr. Keller, of Reed & Keller. Mr. K. is a very jolly gentleman, who makes himself perfectly at home and you soon think you must have known him fourteen years instead of fourteen minutes. Better to pass through the world that way than have a funeral look and manner.

Of more than ordinary pleasure was a recent call from P. R. Quinlan, of Syracuse. One of the real pleasures of our life is the comparing notes with a veteran florist. As is well known, Mr. Quinlan is active in a very extensive business involving large capital and of much larger scope than floriculture. Yet he admits his heart is still with the flowers and he has no pleasure greater than spending a few hours at his model up-to-date new place covering 80,000 square feet. An item that may be of interest was the statement of Mr. Q. that Flamingo was a great success in every way and he does not look for any better scarlet carnation, to all of which we say, "Amen!"

A lawsuit of some interest to florists has just been decided in our county court. Mr. Jensen owns three greenhouses a few feet from the banks of a creek which runs through the northern section of the city. During the severe winter of 1903-1904 there occurred a thaw one Sunday in February. The ice in the creek broke up and piled up against the Hager street bridge, closing the bridge. The ice jam caused an overflow and flooded an extensive area, including his houses. The commissioner of streets was notified and they sent men to dynamite the huge chunks of ice, and the ice passed down the stream, abating the flood, but in blasting the ice lumps of ice were thrown fifty feet in the air and a great number dropped on the greenhouses of Mr. Jensen and broke about 100 panes of glass. By 6 o'clock it began to freeze and by the next morning it was zero and notwithstanding a dozen oil stoves in the houses and all holes stopped with manila paper, the temperature in the houses dropped to 28 degrees before morning and, of course, much damage was done to the plants. The damage done was not refuted, but the judge nonsuited the plaintiff's case, as he claimed the blasting was done by what he called governmental right and the plaintiff had no cause of action. This seems hardly fair to him

The Market.

Conditions remain much as a week ago and for the season must generally be considered satisfactory. There is no great overplus of anything and prices remain fairly firm. Roses, owing to the renewed wintry weather, are not coming so plentifully as was expected and clear out very well at last week's prices.

Carnations, while abundant, sell quite well. Even whites cleared out finely the past week, being in big request for dyeing purposes for St. Patrick's day. Prices vary from $1.50 to $3 per hundred, fancies making $4.

Single violets are not so abundant and some growers must soon throw out their plants. Doubles make up for any deficiency in singles. Sweet peas are plentiful, but the best grades still make from 75 cents to $1 per hundred. Callas and Easter lilies are sufficient for requirements. Quite a few Lilium speciosum rubrum are also seen at present.

Ranunculi, anemones, ixias and other spring flowers are coming from a few growers. Sprengerl, plumosus and adiantum are of good quality and unchanged in price. The trade in pot plants is increasing. There was a big call for shamrocks on Saturday.

American Rose Society.

Indications are for a first-class show March 23 to 25. We hope weather conditions may be less severe at the end of the week, for moving plants. Winter has been given us when we deemed spring was here. Temperatures 10 degrees to 15 degrees above zero each morning and excellent sleighing is a decided change from what we had been enjoying.

The mantel and table decorations promise to be one of the leading features in the exhibition. A good number of entries has been received for these. Walsh's ramblers, of which he will bring a car-load, will again be a special feature. The competition in the American Beauty classes promises to be unusually keen.

The attendance at the banquet on March 24 will be about 175. It will commence at 6:30 and postprandial ex-

Some of the leading exhibitors of plants in the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's show are Farquhar & Co., who have a 400-foot group of bulb-out stock; W. W. Rawson & Co., M. H. Walsh, A. F. Estabrook, Wm. Whitman, Mrs. J. L. Gardner, E. W. Breed, Thomas Roland, Julius Roehrs Co., Lager & Hurrell, H. H. Barrows & Son, E. McMulkin, James Crawshaw and Harvard Botanic Gardens.

A. H. Hews & Co. have increased the value of their special prize to $50 in lieu of $25. They did the same at the recent carnation show.

Club Meeting.

The attendance on March 20 was again very large, about 150 members being present to hear D. Lumsden's practical paper on "Bulbs and Plants Most in Demand for the Easter Trade." A good discussion followed the reading of the paper and a rousing vote of thanks was accorded the lecturer. President Wheeler stated that a club banquet would be held on April 26, to which ladies are invited. There will be an excellent entertainment and dancing and a rousing attendance is expected.

It was reported that the landscape gardening school will open in October. Forty members signified their intention of joining.

There was an animated discussion on heating in which Iliffe, Montgomery, Grey, Elliott and Mathews participated. The Holly-Castle system of artificial circulation was commended.

The Stearns Lumber Co. presented the club with a handsome engraved gavel.

The membership was swelled by the addition of several names. Exhibits were very interesting, in spite of the fact that the spring show was to come only three days later. There were refreshments, as usual, and all present voted the meeting a splendid one.

Various Notes.

Some of the finest Campbell violets and sweet peas we have ever seen are being handled at the Music hall market for Malcolm Orr, by H. T. Capers.

Shamrocks were in heavy demand for St. Patrick's day. Wm. Nicholson sold over 20,000 and S. J. Goddard 10,000.

The Boston delegates to the recent meeting of the S. A. F. in Dayton report a delightful meeting and anticipate in the Ohio city one of the greatest conventions ever held.

The damage to the A. H. Hews Co. plant by the recent fire amounted to over $8,000. A large storage shed, 60x150, with contents was destroyed. It contained, among other articles, 200,000 small flower pots, twenty-five car-loads of hay and large quantities of packing boxes. The fire will not affect the filling of orders by the firm, however.

W. C. Ward, the pansy specialist, has one of the most sought after stands in the Music hall market at present. His pansies, as usual, are of very fine quality.

James Wheeler and W. P. Rich were among the 430 present at the annual banquet of the Worcester Horticultural Society on March 15 and report a delightful gathering.

Fire starting in a barn caused considerable damage to Charles Cummings' greenhouses at Woburn on March 9.

Carbone is showing some fine imantophyllums and amaryllis. He also has splendid ixias and ranunculi.

Doyle has nice Cymbidium eburneum and C. Lowianum and especially well flowered gardenias in 8-inch pots.

Henry M. Robinson has just returned from a tour of the principal New England cities. He finds business generally first-class. His firm is exceptionally busy this season.

Houghton & Clark are showing fine crinums and well bloomed Phaius grandifolius.

Temperatures as low as zero were recorded near Boston on March 19. In New Hampshire readings ran as low as 10 degrees below. W. N. CRAIG.

CLEVELAND, O.—The Standard Pump and Engine Co. is moving into a larger factory, taking in additional capital and preparing to considerably enlarge its output.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Business has shown quite an improvement the past week, and owing to the cloudy weather and snow storms the cut has been light, which has stiffened prices and cleaned the stock up fairly well. St. Patrick's day brought forth many green carnations, roses and tulips, and they all found ready sale at good prices, white carnations being the scarcest flower all week.

Various Notes.

Bate Bros. are cutting very fine, long stem sweet peas and pansies, which find a ready sale at the Cleveland Cut Flower Co.'s store.

Fred L. Gunton, rose grower at the C. R. Williams Co.'s place, will leave April 1 to take charge of Mr. Oliver's place in Bradford, Pa. Mr. Gunton has been with Mr. Williams over four years and will leave many friends behind.

Mr. Fancourt, of Philadelphia, Pa., was in town Saturday, calling on the trade and booking good orders for Easter goods. C.

MADISON, N. J.

The meeting of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society, March 14, was carnation night. We had a full attendance, as well as many outsiders with us in anticipation of a good show. There was no disappointment, for a finer lot of carnations was never staged at one time anywhere. And the society heartily thanks the various exhibitors for their generous responses. Messrs. Herrington, Duckham and Totty were the judges.

F. R. Pierson Co., represented by Mr. Ross, had four vases, one Winsor, and one each of the three new Lawsons, all in grand form. Winsor received a certificate of merit, and the Lawsons honorable mention.

Cottage Gardens showed Alma Ward, Elsa Struss and Robt. Craig; all grand. The first two got certificates of merit. Craig had been certificated before, and fully bore out its previous reputation.

F. Boulon's Long Island Beauty, a real beauty, was much admired and was given favorable mention.

Patten & Co.'s Pink Patten and Mikado suffered in transit and could not compete. The judges would like to see them again.

John E. Haines' namesake was there in grand shape. It received a certificate of merit on a previous occasion.

Guttman & Weber's Victory also had been previously certificated; former judgment fully upheld.

H. Weber & Sons sent Jessica, My Maryland and Mabelle. The first two had previous certification, which was fully maintained now, and Mabelle received honorable mention.

A. B. Davis' Red Sport interested florists very much and received honorable mention; it was in fine form.

R. Fischer had Abundance. Local florists discussed its commercial merits, all to its advantage. It was given a vote of thanks. He also sent freesia Purity, which was in grand shape, and received a certificate of merit.

Our fellow member and essayist, A. H. Secker, staged Flamingo, Enchantress, Harlowarden, Lawson and Prosperity. They were simply superb and added much weight to his essay. A cer-

R. Vince, of our society, showed Fiancee, Dorothy Whitney, Enchantress and a crimson seedling of much promise. He received the congratulations of the judges and was requested to tell how he did it in reference to Fiancee. This variety showed up fine; no split calyx or other defect. Mr. Vince got a certificate of merit on this variety on a previous occasion.

H. L. Hand, of our society, had a grand vase in variety which helped to add dignity to the show. A cultural certificate was given.

Among those who have something up their sleeves in the way of sports and seedlings are W. Duckham, R. Vince, W. H. Thomas, H. L. Hand and Marshall Crissman.

GOVERNOR HERRICK

The New Single Violet

Governor Herrick, is the finest and freest bloomer ever offered for sale, the plants producing over 200 blooms in a season lasting from Oct. 1 to May 14. The color is a rich, dark purple, large open flower, on a very strong stem. It is the best keeping Violet on the market and received special mention at the Boston Carnation Convention after being picked four days and traveling 700 miles before being judged. At Louisville, Ky., the Governor Herrick was one of the sensations of the exhibition.

Prices of rooted cuttings are as follows: Per doz., $2.00; per 100, $10.00; per 1000, $75.00; 5000 or more, $60.00 per 1000. All orders will be filled in rotation, with the finest stock ever sent out. Write me to day for full description of the Governor Herrick.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market last week was not even convalescent until Saturday. Everybody thought it was dead. Even the retailers complained and when the retailer and the undertaker unite in declaring business bad you can imagine what the wholesaler thinks of it. It wouldn't do to express it in the English language. However, as usual, the end of the week demonstrated business was "not dead but sleeping." There was a general recovery and in honor of St. Patrick prices again rose to a respectable level. The sudden drop in Beauties to below 40 cents each for the best was unexpected. The extreme top for violets was 40 cents per hundred, and so on down the list, carnations retrograding with the rest. There was quite a boom in green stuff Saturday. All the shamrocks and imitations sold rapidly. Green carnations were everywhere, many of the 50,000 Irishmen in line at the parade being decorated. Saltford had green lilies, freesia and even violets in addition to carnations and yet following all this spring coloring comes the biggest snow storm and blizzard of the winter. The lamb we were admiring turns out to have been a sleeping lion. All this early spring prophesying has had a shock. All day Monday the snow fell and drifted. Imagine the frost in the auction rooms and the language of the suburbanite who planted seed last Monday. Looks as if the westerners who come to the rose convention will go down on snow shoes rather than by boat. We will have to take back all we said about New York being an ideal winter resort. But it's a good place to spend the summer.

Various Notes.

The florists on Broadway and Fifth avenue have some beautiful spring windows. Forsythia, spiraea and blooming azaleas are most abundant. Double flowering plum is used with good effect. Crimson Ramblers are many and as handsome as ever. The greenhouses are full of them. Hundreds of orders are already booked. The plantsmen are busy day and night with visitors. Many out of town florists are here and have been. Tidy came all the way from Toronto and Ally Salter from Rochester. This week will see them from every city within 500 miles. This is the greatest plant center in the world.

Lent is nearly over. Three weeks more and then Easter. It seems only a little while since the last one. Society is flying back from the land of palms and pines. The weddings of April will be innumerable. Some fifty of them are already announced and the hearts of the bon-ton retailers are glad. Many of the announcements are from the cream of the four hundred. Newport is already assured of an unusually busy season.

A good delegation from New York leaves on Thursday evening for the rose convention at Boston.

Schloss Bros. declare they couldn't do any more business daily and nightly than they are now accomplishing. "Fancy flower ribbons," they say, is their Easter specialty. Joseph J. Schloss is now making his spring tour of New England.

Charles Millang says he will have 5,000 pots and 40,000 cut lilies from John Miesmann, of Elmhurst, for Easter, the best he ever handled, also an abundance of azaleas, genistas, acacias and daisies.

The boom in real estate is continuous on Long Island. W. H. Siebrecht, of Astoria, has just sold a piece of his property bought a few years ago at more than double its purchase price. At the present outlook every florist within twenty-five miles of Long Island City will be a millionaire by 1910.

Arbutus is the latest harbinger of spring. It is here this year earlier than usual. The quality is not yet up to the mark.

Ford Bros. handled some grand Beauties last week, the best they have ever offered. The big ice box displays its daily exhibit of fine carnations, Lawsons especially being at their best, and Enchantress unexcelled.

J. I. Raynor has a grand plant of Croweum on exhibition in his window.

Rose night at the New York Club comes on April 9. Many novelties in roses are expected, Kate Moulton and Queen Beatrice among them. Secretary Young will care for all exhibits and they may be shipped in his care. Benjamin Dorrance, of Dorranceton, Pa., will be the essayist of the evening.

Lion & Co. report a big demand for their specialty ribbon streamers with woven inscriptions, "father," "mother," etc. They have a special Colonial brand of flowered ribbons, orchids, roses, carnations, etc., for which there is a large demand.

Wertheimer Bros. announce new Easter ribbons in violet shower effects in great variety and Japan lily and moss rose ribbons of rare beauty. The florists are York Market Florists' Association at Coleman's restaurant, Canal and Washington streets, Saturday, March 24, at 8 p. m., for the purpose of allotting stands for the coming season. Owing to the association having to hire the market site and pay the city in advance, the directors adopted a resolution at their last meeting, that all permanent stands be assessed $25 in advance, and all other stands be charged $1 per day throughout the season. All former standholders will have a preference at this meeting, but they must be present, or represented, as all stands will be allotted. George Darsley, Jersey City, is president, H. C. PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The wintry weather has shortened the supply of cut flowers to some extent. The demand has improved, business at the close of last week being exceptionally active. It is difficult to say exactly how the bulk of the flowers was used. There were a number of good shipping orders, some dinners, and other entertainments of fair size in the city, and quite a lot of transient business. Funeral orders were sufficiently plentiful to make white flowers more in demand than colored on two or three days. Prices are irregular at times, but everything considered, values on really choice stock of all kinds are well sustained. There are no immediate prospects of an increase of the supply until the beginning of next month.

An Interesting Dispute.

Some years ago, the famous McKean estate, at Fern Hill, Germantown, parted with thirty broad acres to the Midvale Steel Works. These acres have since been covered with the factory building used in the construction of armor plate, rails, etc. During the last few years, it has been noticed that many of the trees on the old place have been dying. Dr. Persifor Frazer, the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's chemist, was engaged to discover the reason why. To aid him came Prof. Benjamin, from Cleveland, and another expert from Washington, D. C. Geo. Wharton Pepper was engaged to care for the legal side of the question. The result of their joint labors is not yet ready for publication. Sufficient to say that 125 fine trees have died since the steel works extension, fifty-five of them during the past year. The list comprises all the varieties of maple, hemlock-spruce, and many other common as well as a number of rare trees. All of them were specimens of beauty. Fern Hill has been ruined as a country-seat. It is a question, however, whether the Midvale Company can be held legally responsible, as the ground was sold to them with full knowledge of the purpose for which it was intended.

Various Notes.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. state that they have received and unpacked six hundred cases of baskets for the Easter business during the past few days. Many of these have already been shipped to their customers.

Oglesby B. Paul delivered an illustrated lecture on "Landscape Gardening" before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society last Tuesday evening.

Alex. Young, for many years gardener in charge of John Wanamaker's place at Jenkintown, died March 14.

L. J. Reuter is sending some exceptionally fine Chateaus to E. Bernheimer.

A. B. Cartledge, senior member of the firm of Pennock Bros., believes that there is a good opening in this market for more choice flowering plants. Mr. Cartledge states that while there is not a large demand for this class of stock, it is at times almost impossible to get even a moderate supply.

Myers & Samtman commenced work on their new range of glass March 1. It is understood that this glass will be devoted to Beauties, with which this firm has been wonderfully successful.

Samuel S. Pennock is one of the judges at the rose show held at Boston this week.

PHIL.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

You may talk about weather good, bad, etc., but the weather we have been having the past week is about the worst ever. Rain, snow and sleet have been mixed up in about equal proportions. The temperature has been as low as 8 degrees above zero. In fact, this month so far has been the worst of the year. The growers report it to be very difficult to keep up heat in the houses and coal piles have been disappearing at a very discouraging rate. These conditions are still with us, but it is to be hoped that this week will see the last of them.

Notwithstanding the bad weather, business has been very fair. There has been a very good demand for all kinds of stock and prices have ruled about as high as at any time this season. Good white roses have been in especially good demand. In carnations, the supply has been very good. The demand was first class, also, and they sold out in very good shape. In some cases the price had to be dropped to move them, but this was due more to the quality of the blooms than to any other reason. Several growers' stock has been showing a decided tendency to go to sleep very quickly. As this always occurs with the same growers' blooms, it is undoubtedly due to methods of growing. It is without a doubt a sad mistake to think that carnations can be grown in a rose temperature. They must be grown cool and any wholesaler will tell you that the stock of a grower who is known to hold to the lower temperature will be sold first every time. The blooms may not be so large and the plants may not produce quite so heavily for the grower, but they have that staying quality which the retailer is looking for and he is not long in finding out such a grower.

Bulbous stock continues to be in good demand. Some fine tulips and Dutch hyacinths are being received in this city from the well known bulb forcers, George & Allan. Their stock has never been better than it is this year. They are rapidly getting their forces into shape for Easter and they promise to have a finer lot of all kinds of bulbous stock for that time this year than ever before.

Some very good lilies, both calla and Harrisii, are to be had and they sell first-class. Outdoor daffodils are beginning to arrive from the south. As yet they do not take very well, but the weather has been against them. A few springlike days and they will sell fast.

The price of good ferns has advanced to $2 per thousand. Other green goods of all kinds are scarce.

Various Notes.

St. Patrick's day was a disappointment to many of the retailers owing to the bad weather, but, nevertheless, those who had stocked up on green dyed carnations reported that the demand for them was first-class and that they sold out clean at very good prices.

OBITUARY.

James Wolfe.

James Wolfe, of Waco, Tex., the pioneer florist of that section of Texas, died at his home Monday morning, March 5. He was 56 years old. The widow, two sons and two daughters survive him. He was born in India, but came from Birmingham, England, to this country while a young man. He was an Elk, a Knight of Pythias, an Eagle and was also a prominent worker in the Business Men's Club and the Texas Floral Society. The business is to be continued by the widow and sons.

James Clark.

James Clark, at one time employed at the United States Botanic Gardens at Washington, D. C., died at his home at White Oak farm, near Burnt Mill, Md., last week. He was a native of Oban, Scotland, but came to this country when 23 years old. He located at Baltimore, where he married and resided until the civil war, when he went to Washington, D. C., and entered the employ of the government at the Botanic Gardens, remaining for thirteen years.

J. N. Gildea.

James Newton Gildea passed away at his home, 1721 Story street, Boone, Ia.,

Saturday, March 10, at 10:45 p. m., after an illness of over two years. During this time he was an invalid, occasionally going out for a ride and meeting his friends. His death was due to a complication of diseases.

Mr. Gildea was born in Bowling Green, Ind., in 1845, and in 1851 he removed to Iowa with his parents. In 1860 he entered the grocery business in Boone, and continued it until 1890, when he took up the florists' business, in which he remained till his death.

He leaves a widow, two sons and one daughter to mourn his loss. He was a man of exemplary character, a Christian gentleman by profession and by works, and died breathing a prayer for the members of his family and his friends.

The business will be continued by Mrs. Gildea.

Letters to the press bureau of the National Council of Horticulture indicate that the experimental press service being sent out by it is meeting with success all over the country, as well as in Chicago, where the Chicago Tribune and the Chicago Daily News, the two leading papers, are printing the articles.

The managing editor of the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald writes: "The horticultural matter you are sending out is very timely, and I think much interest would be taken in it. How long is the service to last, and can we depend on having it exclusively in this field?"

The managing editor of the St. Louis Republic: "We shall use these contributions in the Twice-a-Week edition of the Republic, which has a large circulation throughout the country."

The Spokesman-Review, of Spokane, Wash.; "We gladly give space to the articles on horticulture sent by your press bureau and shall be pleased to receive the supplemental articles."

The Louisville Times: "The Times will gladly publish the horticultural articles you have just sent us. Thanking you for your courtesy, and with best wishes."

Madison (Wis.) Democrat: "The horticultural articles I shall gladly run, both in my daily and readyprints. I suggest you keep them short like the ones in hand. These are excellent, both for length and matter."

As stated in the REVIEW last week, the service has been sent, by James Burdett, of Chicago, to more than a thousand papers, by mailing direct or through various press bureaus, all of which have been glad to handle the matter.

PROFITABLE TULIPS.

For some weeks we have had immense quantities of tulips in Covent Garden market, says the Horticultural Advertiser, and with the excessive supplies the prices have been considerably lower than they were last season. Yet it is interesting to note that special sorts have sold well and maintained good prices. I find it is the best doubles that make the highest prices, and of these, Couronne d'Or is a special favorite. The rich, golden-yellow flowers resemble a Marechal Niel rose, and when they are not too far advanced when cut, they last a long time in water. Couronne des Roses is another favorite. Blanche Hative is a fine white.

Prices and particulars on application to H. M. Totman, Randolph, Vermont.

FOR SALE—1 steam boiler 54 in. diameter, 16 ft. long, 48 4-in. flues with smoke box; all in good condition; this boiler has been bought from the Board of Education and had to be taken to get other material. Also 1 Kroeschell hot water boiler 48 in diameter 14 ft. long used four years, with 400 feet 4-in. flues, in good condition; this boiler is too small for my present plant. August Erickson, 688 W. Foster Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—Greenhouses; owing to other business engagements we offer for sale our nearly new up-to-date first-class greenhouse plant, consisting of three greenhouses 25x100, 21x120, 2x50, all connected to boiler-house 24-28; with one 20-horse-power Hodge boiler and one 50-inch 9-section Richmond boiler; either boiler of sufficient capacity to heat the entire plant and been used two seasons; all fitted up in first-class order for business; will sell as it is, or without the land, to be taken down and removed. For particulars apply to W. H. Tarbox & Son, Fryeburg, Maine.

FOR SALE—Greenhouse plant, in excellent running condition; new boilers (hot water), ample heating capacity and geared ventilation; borough water supply. Charming situation, half mile from depot, in growing town. Plant consists of two ranges, one 7,500 square feet; the other 6,300 square feet of ground enclosed, on lot 130 feet square leaving a vacant plot 50x60 feet, as dwelling site. Between the two ranges is a new mushroom house, latest approved, capacity 60 tons, only eight months old; gave excellent crop this winter. Greenhouses are from three to eleven years old, all of iron pipe construction set in cement. The latest house with no wood against earth, all good for many years yet. The lot, a beautiful sight, is of itself worth $2,000, at a conservative estimate. Plant includes convenient packing room, and cement-floored flower house and a cosy den finished in oak, and radiator heated. If you are interested, make me a call. Am not especially anxious to sell for a year or two, but eventually will occupy a newly acquired property. If this plant sells this year, it must be by May 1st. This advertisement will not appear again. The first person offering me a sum not less than my gross proceeds of this season's output, gets the property. C. S. Swayne, Kennett Square, Pa.

DENVER.The Market.

The Lenten season has not yet caused any abatement in the demand for flowers, with the exception of a small portion of the cut of Lawson carnations. Stock of all kinds is well used up; even bulbous flowers, usually a glut at this time, are little in evidence after the demands of the day are satisfied, while white carnations and light pink varieties are as scarce as at any time this season and their prices are well maintained. Roses are a little improved and the quantity is increasing, but at no time has the supply been more than the demand, American Beauties in long stems being very scarce. Violets were the only thing that was there with the goods.

There has perhaps never been a time in the history of Denver when the city has mourned the death of so many prominent men as since January 1 of the present year. Cattlemen, lumbermen, insurance men, judges and other names might be added to the list, all of which demanded an extra amount of flowers for funeral purposes; so much so there was some tall hustling among the florists to fill their orders.

Lilacs are commencing to come in, but not in large quantities. St. Patrick's day called for quite a little green goods, but not many shamrocks were in evidence; that is, the simon-pure article.

One of the worst railroad disasters occurred last Friday morning on the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, in which twenty people were killed, nearly all being burned beyond recognition after the collision. A greater number of them were Denver people, the funerals of whom are being held today and Monday, all calling for every flower possible on account of it.

Various Notes.

E. E. Petersen has returned from a three weeks' trip east, buying material for the construction of his two new greenhouses.

Recent visitors here were Frank Crump and William H. Evans, of Colorado Springs.

The recent cold snap somewhat shortened the cut of carnations, but N. A. Benson seems to be cutting just as fine Enchantress and Lady Bountiful as ever.

E. S. K.

WATERVILLE, ME.

Rev. H. R. Mitchell, of the firm of H. R. Mitchell & Son Co., has disposed of his interest in that concern to George F. Terry. The company owns extensive greenhouses at Highwood street and Central avenue, and plans have been made for the erection of large additional houses on the company's property in the upper section of the city, as well as the opening of a new store on Main street. For this latter purpose the company has signed a lease with Mrs. Ann M. Pulsifer for the use of the lower store of the Pulsifer block at 144 Main street. The business will be under the management of Frank H. Mitchell. They will do a wholesale and retail business.

STREATOR, ILL.—William F. Timme, formerly with the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., is foreman at Finkler's greenhouses.

COLUMBIA, S. C.—Mrs. J. M. Eison says, "We are only small alongside some of your readers, but we are getting there." Business has been good this winter; there has been hardly any cold weather at all. It has been a hard time to hold bulbs, and there never were better prospects for Easter lilies.

ST. LOUIS, MICH.—David Kleinhans, of Cadillac, Mich., will soon build greenhouses on Saginaw street, three blocks east of the postoffice, which will contain at least 4,000 square feet of glass. Mr. Kleinhans recently made a proposition to the city authorities to the effect that he would establish and maintain a greenhouse for ten years provided he could secure free water for that period. The board of public works recommended that the council enter into a contract with Mr. Kleinhans to furnish him the necessary water at a rate of $1 a year for ten years. The contract has been signed and the work of building will begin as soon as possible.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., W. H. Grenell, Saginaw, W. S., Mich.; First Vice-Pres., L. L. May, St. Paul; Sec'y and Treas., O. E. Kendel, Cleveland. The 24th annual meeting will be held at Toledo, G., June 26-28, 1906.

VISITED CHICAGO:—W. H. Barrett, Adrian, Mich.; W. H. Morrison, Fairfield, Wash.

THE onion set market is firm and the supply getting low. A good spurt is looked for as soon as all the accumulated back orders are shipped out.

S. D. DYSINGER, manager of the seed department of Sears, Roebuck & Co., is reported to have been seriously ill during the past two weeks and is not yet well enough to be at his desk.

THE onion market has failed to recover from the drop it took several weeks ago, and the seedsmen think it will hurt the sale of onion seed and thereby shorten up the acreage of 1906.

THE bean growers report that it is up-hill work to get contracts for the coming year placed with the farmers.
Several new candidates for trouble in the growing line are helping to make the hill steeper.

THE REVIEW prints a great many "Help Wanted" advertisements, some of them offering pretty fair jobs. One in this issue calls for a seedsman capable of earning $3,000 to $5,000 a year in the catalogue trade.

THE Maryland tomato packers are having difficulty in contracting the usual acreage on the eastern shore, the farmers declining the proffered rate of $9 a ton, demanding $12, prompted by the high price in the open market last season.

KNUD GUNDESTRUP, Jefferson Park, Chicago, says, "Looking through our order books for seeds for this season, we find that the amount of orders is nearly double last year's. Another feature is that the orders average much larger than last year."

REPORTS from the mail order seed houses are generally to the effect that the week's business has been lessened considerably by the weather. These temporary lulls, however, are always welcome in that they give an opportunity to catch up and work no permanent harm.

MANY of the market gardeners who had prepared for an early spring find their hotbed plants much in advance of the season, and it looks as though a great many of them will have to get at it to produce another crop of plants.
This will be a benefit to the seedsman, as it means another order for "hotbed stuff."

ON page 1199 of this issue will be found the full text of a bill recently introduced in Congress for the purpose of affording protection in the ownership of horticultural novelties, together with the report or the action of a nurseryman's committee, the opinion of some leading nurserymen and the views of leading seedsmen and florists.

THE extravagant and misleading claims contained in some of the advertising matter now appearing in regard to inoculating material for legumes make it necessary for the Secretary of Agriculture again to call attention to the limitations of the value of inoculation. A recent examination of samples of cultures for inoculating legumes obtained through various seed firms throughout the United States indicates that there has been a slight improvement in the general character of these cultures.

EVERYBODY WORKS.

The seed trade is fully aroused in the matter of the free seed distribution and is giving a demonstration of what may be accomplished by united action. Led by W. Atlee Burpee, everybody is working, and the result is a demonstration of public sentiment which will not fail of effect upon congress. All the leading seed houses are sending out printed matter urging that letters be written to congressmen, and many seedsmen are giving up a large part of their time to the cause. The trade has a whole lot

ANYONE CAN GROW

The Improved Countess of Lonsdale Dahlia

This is by far the most handsome and useful Dahlia of the Cactus type introduced to date. The flowers are large and the color is intense crimson scarlet, lighting up beautifully at night. The flowers, very large, are borne on tall, stiff, erect stems and their profusion is extraordinary. Among the many Dahlia Blooms shipped into the New York Wholesale Market none are more popular with the Retail Florist than the IMPROVED COUNTESS OF LONSDALE. Strong divided field-grown roots. Price—6 for $1.00; $1.75 per doz.; $12.00 per 100.

WANTED

A large seed house is in need of a good man who knows the mail order business. Must be thoroughly posted seed man in every respect, able to handle correspondence, develop mail order system and in general over-see the work. Must be a good trader, and one who knows the source of supply; able to write advertising matter in this line and manage and organize a large department. Salary, $3000 to $5000. No one without previous successful experience need apply. All replies confidential.

cular letters urging editorial support for the movement to cut off the appropriation for free seeds. The big agencies have a strong pull with the country publishers. One of the circulars tells the publishers that "if the distribution were stopped the seedsmen would spend at least twice as much in advertising as they do at present."

Action on the agricultural appropriation bill will be taken within a very few days and promptness must be a characteristic of whatever is done.

A LOCAL paper at Seattle, Wash., says that "the Charles H. Lilly Co. has made all its contracts for cabbage seed for the year. The amount to be handled will be about two carloads, or about forty tons, and the LaConner flats will furnish it all. The price at which the crop will be wholesaled will be 50 to 60 cents per pound, making the total value of the crop from $40,000 to $48,000. The crop is shipped all over the country. For the first time the company is placing contracts for its corn supply for seed purposes in Washington. The company handles on an average of $20,000 worth of all varieties of seeds per month. The seed-producing industry in the northwest shows an appreciable increase annually."

NOTES FROM HOLLAND.

The second month of the year proved no more winter-like than its predecessor, and all bulb fields have had their winter covering removed and thinned out in a hurry to check a too rapid growth of the foliage, which has been showing above ground since the first of the month. In many places these early sprouts had already turned into a tender yellow under the bleaching influence of the heavy winter covering. Fortunately for these, the usual cold snap by the end of February did not make its appearance and thus the destruction of these tender leaves has been avoided. In consequence everything in the bulb fields, for as far as the covering has already been removed entirely, is looking fine. It is almost certain that the Easter holidays will find us without the gay fields in full bloom, which always attract so many thousands of visitors from all parts of the country. Seedsmen are now at their busiest to fill the rush of incoming orders, the early spring weather making many minds forget that the grounds are still in an unsuitable temperature to justify early sowing. As is usually the case in such seasons without frost, the grounds have been water-soaked all the time and need a good dose of sun to put them in the desirable condition.—Horticultural Trade Journal.

EUROPEAN SEED NOTES.

In spite of the pessimistic crop reports, some very good samples of clover are on offer; in fact, for white clovers better samples have not been offered for some years. Prices are stiff. more especially of the vegetable and farm seed departments, most wholesalers report a genuine increase in business done and on hand this season, and most leading stocks will probably be cleaned out by the finish of the season's trade, which will be a welcome change, as of late years it has been a frequent occurrence for considerable quantities to be left over.

It is reported from reliable sources that better trade than for many years is being done by the leading retail houses in the better class and choicest strains of flower seeds.

Some few days back there was held at Northampton, England, a lecture on sugar beet cultivation and methods of successfully running a sugar beet factory. It is announced that a sugar beet factory is to be started there.

The British Isles generally, and the eastern counties in particular, are still suffering from heavy rains, and some portions of the Lincolnshire and Cambridgeshire seed-growing districts are under water and some few crops are totally washed out in consequence. Reports are to hand of continual failures in many of the field crops, and the crop of 1906 will probably be very close to a record one for failures and small yield generally. In the long run, however, this state of things will do no harm, but rather the reverse, having the effect of stiffening prices and putting things on a sounder basis than they have been for some years past.

Among the roads which have or will run these trains are the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Illinois Central, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Kansas City Southern, Union Pacific, Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Canadian Pacific. While the subject matter of the lectures varies on the different lines, there is a common endeavor to increase the farmer's productivity. How and when to select the most productive seed, rotation of crops and care of the soil, are the most important topics. In some cases where a wide region is given to one product an effort is made to interest the farmers in other plants in order to prevent exhaustion of the soil and complete failure of the territory when climatic conditions prove unfavorable to the one crop. A rostrum and stereopticon sheet or blackboard at one end transform a coach into a lecture hall, and the lecturers are the instructors from the agricultural college of the state. The arrival of the train is advertised well in advance so that the stop need be only as long as the lecture requires. The train is side-tracked wherever a sufficient audience may be expected and at intermediate points some roads pick up the farmers, carry them to the lecture and then give them free transportation to return home, a feature which adds greatly to the popularity of the undertaking. This good-will on the part of the farmers is one of the ends sought. At first they did not take kindly to the idea of being taught how to farm and much lecturing was being done to empty seats, but the idea has become immensely popular and frequently lectures have to be repeated several times at a stop to accommodate all comers.

DAVENPORT, IA.

The Tri-City Florists' Association at its regular meeting March 12 at Fejervary park elected the following officers for the coming year: President, John Temple, Davenport; vice-president for Davenport, Harry Bills; vice-president for Rock Island, Henry Gaethje; vice-president for Moline, William Knees; secretary, H. G. Bryant, of Davenport; financial secretary, Theo.
Ewoldt, of Davenport; trustees, Henry Pauli, Ed Totter and Julius Staack.

Peter Becker, of Moline, was elected to membership in the association. During the business session it was decided to raise the yearly dues of the association from $2 to $4.

The program consisted of an interesting and instructive paper sent by Louis Wittbold, of Chicago, on "Mechanical Watering for Greenhouses," and a general discussion of the subject "Would the Parcels Post Benefit the Small Dealer and In What Way?"

At the conclusion of the program refreshments were served.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.

A company has been incorporated with $20,000 capital for the wholesale growing of roses and carnations. Dr. Edward Reiss is president and general manager; Judge C. M.
Fortune, secretary and treasurer. Henry Kranzke, florist for the Sisters of Providence of St. Mary's, will be grower. Three greenhouses will be built in the vicinity of Fifth avenue and Nineteenth street, where ground has already been procured.

Mr. Kranzke has had thirty years' experience in growing roses and carnations in this country and in Europe. It is the intention to grow only roses and carnations at first, but in a year or so add the growing of violets and chrysanthemums for the wholesale trade only.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

Snow every day from Sunday until Saturday and the most disagreeable weather we have experienced this winter has not helped business any and, as a result, stock of most kinds accumulated with the wholesalers. This was especially true of violets, as it seems they are the only flowers worn on the street in this city, and when we have such weather as the past week brought us the violet feels it most.

Various Notes.

Geo. L. Huscroft, landscape gardener for the Pan Handle Railroad between Pittsburg and Columbus, went over the road last week in a special train with a number of the officials, getting a line on the work at the various stations for the coming spring. Most of their work was done in a violent snow storm, but arrangements had been made some time before and they could not stop for the snow. The Pan Handle is giving more attention each year to beautifying the stations, and Mr. Huscroft is the right man in the right place.

Phil Langhans, secretary of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., recently visited Jos. E. Bonsall, Salem, O., who is one of the growers who supplies the Cut Flower Co. with summer stock, lilies, roses, etc. He was much pleased with the appearance of his houses and the stock in them, which is grown without artificial heat. There is a range of connected houses, about 45,000 square feet, and the glass is a very heavy, 3-6-inch ribbed glass which he had never seen used before for greenhouse purposes.

John Wyland (Uncle John), of Allison Park, is to add a range of new houses the coming summer for carnations.
Uncle John has been one of the successful growers and, like all the others, talks about getting out of the business with one breath and lets a contract for more houses with the next.

If Pittsburg keeps on building she will soon be independent of outside growers for her stock; so far this season we have: South View Floral Co., range of six houses for cut flowers; Pittsburg Rose & Carnation Co., three or four houses, 450 square feet, for cut flowers; John L. Wyland, a block of houses for cut flowers. No doubt there are, or will be, others by the time spring comes.

I have heard repeatedly that the thing we most need in this vicinity is a man who will put up a block of houses within easy reach of the city, to grow ferns, palms and blooming plants for the holidays. Of course, we have men here who do this now, but it is generally conceded that this is the branch of the business in which there is the best opening and, as the demand is constantly growing, there will be money for the man who starts at once.

E. C. Ludwig, who some time ago bought a property on East Diamond street, and put it in shape for a store and home, is now having trouble with himself, as some real estate people want his building and are willing to pay a nice advance in price to get it, but Ernest cannot make up his mind to part with his home, even at a good profit.

HOO-HOO.

LINCOLN, NEBR.—M. E. Wright has removed here from Humphrey, Nebr., and is now foreman at Hurlburt's Nurseries.

PACIFIC COAST.

THE California Rose Co., of Los Angeles, Cal., has purchased growing grounds at Pomona, thirty miles east of Los Angeles, and is moving the entire plant there. They state that they have the best soil and general conditions there to be found in southern California.

PASADENA, CAL.—Chas. Hess, head gardener for the Raymond hotel, has resigned his position and will spend several months at Searchlight and other new mining camps in Nevada. He has great hopes of making a good strike. He has been there before and knows the country fairly well. He intends to visit his old home in the east before he returns to the coast.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The miserable, rainy weather we have had for the past two weeks has had a very depressing effect on business in the florists' line. This, together with the fact that we are now in the middle of the Lenten season, has caused a very poor demand for stock of all kinds, with the exception of white flowers for funeral orders, for which there has been the usual sale.

Carnations are becoming very plentiful and the prices are gradually lowering. Roses hold their own, and from appearances there will be no change in the wholesalers' rates for several weeks. Bulbous stock is well over, except some late daffodils and freesias. Easter lilies are in fair supply and demand and cost the stores from $2 to $3 per dozen; violets are about out of season, and a few more days will make them very scarce.

Fruit blossoms and wild flowers are coming into town in large quantities and are being much used in decorative work. Valley is in large supply and in fair demand. Quantities of wild ferns are taking the place of tame maidenhair for the present.

Various Notes.

Gustave Fleck, Oakland, died March 15, aged 62 years. He was an old resident and a native of Germany.

A. Mann, Jr., reports a heavy demand for galax leaves, of which he has sold several hundred thousand during the past few weeks.

L. McLean, of San Mateo, is laying out the extensive grounds of W. L. Kauffman at that place.

Joseph Lewis, a pioneer nurseryman, died at Hayward, Cal., and was buried March 15. He was 60 years old.

C. A. Barrett, of Berkeley, has a splendid lot of Easter lilies in line for Easter cutting. He will erect several large houses for the coming season's planting.

Thorsted & Co., of Fruitvale, are cutting heavily of Enchantress and Lawson at present. Their stock is in splendid condition.

The continued rainy weather has interfered greatly with the demand for outside stock in the nurseries and it will be too late for planting many kinds of deciduous trees when the ground is dry enough to work.

E. W. McLellan & Co., of Burlingame, are handling considerable outside stock for private planting in their neighborhood.

Carnation Cuttings

Red Lawson—We offer a large stock of this variety in splendid condition at $3.50 per 100; $30 per 1000. Variegated Lawson—$4 per 100; $35 per 1000.

SOIL VARIATIONS.

The Gardeners' Problem.

The great variety of soils found on this coast is often a puzzling feature to the landscape gardener, and the proposition of whether certain plants or trees will thrive and flourish in some particular kind of soil many times becomes quite a problem. I think it is safe to say that our natural soil is made up about evenly of patches of clay, sand, adobe, both yellow and black, and deposits of black and yellow alluvial sediment. In a section where sand happens to be the only soil to be had, and we have miles of such territory in this vicinity, there is always much difficulty in getting a satisfactory growth of heavy feeding plants or shrubs, and the exacting public usually lays the inability of the gardener to produce the impossible to his want of knowledge. With roses this is especially noticeable, and the well-known fact that it is impossible to grow them with any degree of success in anything except heavy soil is not taken into consideration. On the other hand, considerable garden space is devoted to carnations; where the natural soil tends toward the black adobe they are never a success and the gardener is usually blamed in return.

Soil for Hardy Shrubs.

Hardy shrubbery of all kinds succeeds best in heavy soil, and it makes little difference whether it is of the black, yellow or red variety, so long as the ground is kept worked on the surface for the first season or two, or until the plants get well established. As we have little or no rain during our summer months, it is necessary to cultivate such soil several times as soon as possible after winter rains have ceased; afterwards a good mulching of manure is of benefit, but only as a covering, for all our native soils of the adobe variety are quite rich enough to sustain any gross feeding, hardy stock, provided they are not allowed to dry out on the surface, in which event they retain their moisture a whole season. Such ground, however, is not ordinarily a success for the growth of annuals or soft wooded plants, and to put it in shape for such purposes liberal quantities of sand should be spaded in each season. Straw or manure does not fill the requirements in this occasion, as, after they become rotted, the soil runs together as before and the tender roots of annuals and such like are generally destroyed. Where there is an excess of gravel the soil is usually poor, unless there is a plentiful deposit of black sediment, and in such cases vegetation of all kinds usually does well, but we do not find that such deposits are the rule in a majority of cases, being confined principally to the river bottoms and overflow alluvial deposits.

Sandy Soil.

Soil that is naturally sandy does very well for the growing of small soft-wooded stock, provided it is well manured, which has to be done several times each season to have any lasting effect. Plenty of water is also necessary, as sandy soil is a very great consumer of moisture and there is never body enough in it to hold anything upon which the roots can feed. A better plan where the soil is sandy is to spade in plenty of adobe or clay, if such is to be had. This, to a certain extent, seems to make up the deficiency and the results from its use are more satisfactory than from anything in the line of a fertilizer for the growing of ordinary garden plants. CANNA SEED.

Will you tell me how to treat canna seed so it will be sure to grow?

L. N. B.

There is no known way to make sure of canna seed growing, or any other seed, for that matter. Like many of our gardening operations, we know the conditions most favorable to germination and can follow these faithfully and simply, but beyond that we cannot go. There is a mysterious latent force which comes into action when the seed vegetates, over which we have no control, and all the science and devices are powerless if the spark of life is not there—if the little dry atom called the germ is lifeless.

Canna seed should be gathered in the fall as soon as ripe and sown at once. Then a large proportion will grow. If left until spring a much smaller percentage will grow, and if eighteen months old you may as well sow No. 1 bird shot and expect it to produce cannas. This is all right as advice for the future, but useless for the present moment. Soak the seed twenty-four hours in hot water. Let it be nearly boiling. Then take each seed, hold firmly with a pair of small pinchers and with a strong knife slice off a small portion of the hard covering of the seed. This allows the moisture to penetrate the seed and start germination. If the sand in your propagating bed is kept at 70 degrees, then sow the seed in a drill one inch deep across the bed. You can sow in a flat of sandy soil and place the flats a few inches above some hot-water pipes. If sown in your propagating bed, look out, as the little tender growth of the canna is susceptible to creeping, spreading fungus. W. S.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

Pres., E. Albertson, Bridgeport, Ind.; Vice-Pres., Orlando Harrison, Berlin, Md.; Sec'y, Geo. O. Seager, Rochester; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester. The 81st annual convention will be held at Dallas, Texas, June 13-15, 1906.

M. STEIN, formerly at Loudonville, N. Y., is now located at 373 Broadway, New York City, trading as the Wulle Nursery Co., representing a number of European firms.

THE southern nurseries, which are now at the height of their season, especially those in the southwest, report an activity which promises to make the spring business the best so far recorded by a considerable margin.

G. ONDERDONK, the veteran nurseryman, who has spent thirty-five years in the trade in Texas, says the southwestern section of the state was never so prosperous as now and that trade prospects were never better.

J. T. LOVETT, Little Silver, N. J., has recently issued a very complete catalogue of hardy perennials, a novel feature of which is that the book is introduced by several pages on the "Value and Uses of Hardy Perennials." Planting plans for borders for walk and lawn are another excellent feature.

ON page 1199 of this issue will be found the full text of a bill recently introduced in Congress for the purpose of affording protection in the ownership of horticultural novelties, together with the report of the action of a nurseryman's committee, the opinion of some leading nurserymen and the views of leading seedsmen and florists.

DISEASES OF THE APPLE.

The diseases of the apple which have been classed under the name crown-gall have, during the last few years, attracted much attention, due partly to an increase of these diseases and partly to the enacting of more stringent state laws governing the shipment and inspection of trees, says George C. Hedgcock, in a bulletin of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

A series of investigations into the nature of crown-gall upon the apple, pear, raspberry, peach, almond, grape, rose and other plants has been in progress for some time in the Mississippi valley laboratory of the Bureau of Plant Industry at St. Louis, and also at other points in the Mississippi valley. It is not to be assumed, however, that such diseases are more common in this locality than in some other portions of the United States. Apple crown-gall and hairy-root have been found in all nurseries that have been examined in various portions of the country.

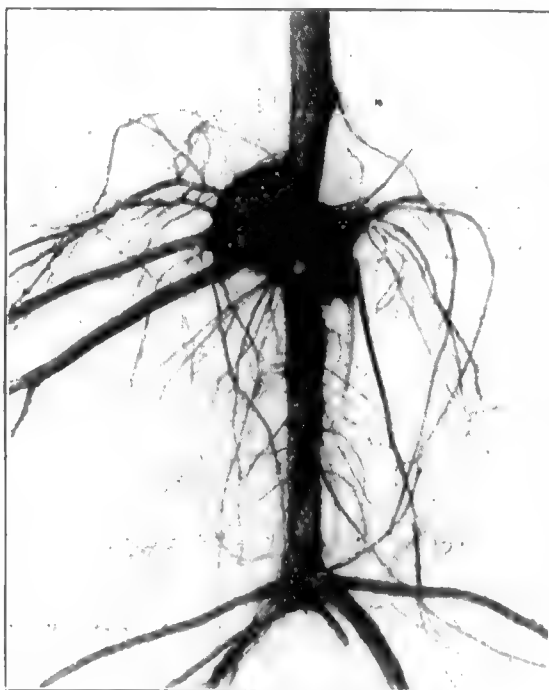

The preliminary report is sent out, not with the intention of giving the results of all the investigations, but for the purpose of calling the attention of apple-tree growers to the different diseases hitherto known as apple crown-gall, and to endeavor to interest them in the collection of data regarding the predisposition of varieties to these diseases.

The investigations have resulted first in separating apple crown-gall into two diseases, which are considered distinct. The disease now designated as crown-gall is a callous-like gall growth of hypertrophied tissue following wounds on some portion of the root system of tree, which rarely occurs above the ground on parts of the trunk or limbs.

The malady now called the hairy-root disease is evidently the same as the one first given this name by Stewart, Rolfs and Hall in Bulletin 191 of the New York State Experiment Station. It is characterized both in seedlings and in grafted or budded trees by a stunted root system, accompanied with an excessive production of small fibrous roots, often originating in clusters from the main root, or tap-root. Galls often occur in connection with hair-root, but these are a result of wounds rather than a form of this disease. Seedlings of the orchards and nurseries as to the effect of these diseases upon the life and fruitfulness of trees. Any information as to the locality of orchards in which diseased trees have been planted will be highly appreciated. In the Bureau's crown-gall orchard there are more than 200 trees diseased with the hard type of crown-gall, and 200 healthy trees of the same grade planted under similar conditions. After two years' growth six of the crown-gall trees and nine of the healthy ones have died. No difference in the growth of the trees is noticeable. However, it cannot be assumed from the results so far that, on the one hand, the disease may not yet shorten the life of the trees, or, on the other, that the trees may not entirely overcome its effects.

hairy-root type, unless wounded, remain free from galls.

Apple crown-gall is of two types. A hard, callous form is common on grafted trees at the union of the root and scion, and at any other point of the root system where wounds occur in either the cultivation or transplanting of trees. The results of extensive inoculations with this type have failed to prove that this disease is of a contagious nature.

A second type is a soft form more common on seedlings, occurring more rarely on grafted trees. These softer galls resemble those of the raspberry and peach, in that they are soft and often rot off. It is not certain, however, that they, like the latter, are replaced the following year by a new gall growth from the adjacent live tissues of the host, nor is there proof yet that they are of a contagious nature.

Careful data are being collected from

A tree having crown-gall on its roots, however, can never be correctly graded with a smooth-rooted tree.

Nurserymen are advised to be careful in the selection of seedlings for grafting and budding. All rough, warty or galled seedlings should be thrown out, for most of them will form rough-rooted trees. Seedlings with tufted or hairy roots should also be rejected, for these, as shown by the experiments, develop into hairy-rooted trees with a very deficient root system. The hairy-root disease, as it appears from the results of two years' experiments, is not contagious. It is hoped in the near future to be able to offer some practical means of reducing the percentage of trees affected with these diseases in the nursery.

The hearty co-operation of nurserymen and orchardists in securing data is desired. It is hoped to secure the help

Hardy Perennial Plants

WE are making a specialty of Hardy Perennial, or Hardy Herbaceous Plants, and have a very large stock of them, particularly in Hollyhocks, Anemones, Columbines, Irises, Gaillardias, Larkspurs, Sweet Williams, Hardy Pinks, Foxgloves, Phloxes, Oriental Poppies, Pyrethrums and Veronicas. Many Florists and Nurserymen, who have a local trade, reap a double profit from Hardy Perennials by making a home planting—a profit from the flowers they produce and one from the sale of plants. By having Hardy Perennials in flower to show their patrons, they are enabled to greatly increase sales, and the increase from the plants themselves is frequently many fold.

URBANA, ILL.

The trustees of the University of Illinois called J. C. Olmsted, Brookline, Mass., into consultation in connection with certain improvements to be made in the campus. Mr. Olmsted was at Urbana March 10, and that evening talked to an audience of 200 people in the physics lecture room on "Landscape Gardening." The talk was informal and in it the speaker told of some of the general principles, but dwelt more especially on the relation of landscape architecture to universities.

In speaking of the laying out of universities Mr. Olmsted called particular attention to the fact that most boards of trustees fail to look far enough ahead. They are inclined to look ahead a few years, but should anticipate the needs of half a century. The important things in the early days of a university are to secure enough land, to erect uniform buildings and to build on a common axis or on parallel axes.

There is little to criticise about the plantings on university grounds because there are none. In closing Mr. Olmsted said: "Whatever men in charge may do to maintain the attractiveness of the grounds, a great deal depends upon the good will and thoughtfulness of the students and professors. Every one must consider it his duty to refrain from injuring the turf. Your grounds are particularly neat and attractive, and there are not many universities of this size where I have found this to be true."

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—S. Thompson, of Thompson & Co., the greenhouse builders, has been away from business, owing to sickness, but is convalescing.

GLENCOE, ILL.—Mrs. H. C. McReynolds and Miss Nina F. Howard, as proprietors of the Glencoe Violet Farm, are meeting with success in their commercial violet growing enterprise. Stock was originally imported from the Hudson river district.

URBANA, ILL.

The trustees of the University of Illinois called J. C. Olmsted, Brookline, Mass., into consultation in connection with certain improvements to be made in the campus. Mr. Olmsted was at Urbana March 10, and that evening talked to an audience of 200 people in the physics lecture room on "Landscape Gardening." The talk was informal and in it the speaker told of some of the general principles, but dwelt more especially on the relation of landscape architecture to universities.

In speaking of the laying out of universities Mr. Olmsted called particular attention to the fact that most boards of trustees fail to look far enough ahead. They are inclined to look ahead a few years, but should anticipate the needs of half a century. The important things in the early days of a university are to secure enough land, to erect uniform buildings and to build on a common axis or on parallel axes.

There is little to criticise about the plantings on university grounds because there are none. In closing Mr. Olmsted said: "Whatever men in charge may do to maintain the attractiveness of the grounds, a great deal depends upon the good will and thoughtfulness of the students and professors. Every one must consider it his duty to refrain from injuring the turf. Your grounds are particularly neat and attractive, and there are not many universities of this size where I have found this to be true."

St. Louis, Mo. S. Thompson, of Thompson & Co., the greenhouse builders, has been away from business, owing to sickness, but is convalescing.

GLENCOL, ILL. - Mrs. H. C. McReynolds and Miss Nina F. Howard, as proprietors of the Glencoe Violet Farm, are meeting with success in their commercial violet growing enterprise. Stock was originally imported from the Hudson river district.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Lent has somewhat shut down on parties, etc., but funeral work keeps things pretty well moving. Roses are of better quality. Carnations also are of better quality and just about meet the demand. White jumped from $3 to $4 and $5 last week, but soon dropped after St. Patrick's day.

Callas and longiflorum lilies are quite plentiful, as are white snapdragon. Violets bring 75 cents per 100.

Various Notes.

August von Boeselager, of Mount Clemens, has a seedling carnation that has them all beat for size, the flowers measuring fully four inches across. It is of the Harlowarden color, flowers good shape with a fringed edge, fine calyx and good stem.

The opening of the new Phoenix Club created a great demand for violets March 15.

Harvey's span of greenhouses at Orion, Mich., is being enlarged. Ground has been broken for four houses, each 25x100 feet and two houses 20x100 feet, with all the latest improvements.

So far as the selling of green carnations is concerned, St. Patrick's day was a failure, hundreds of them being thrown on the scrap pile Monday. The growers make a great mistake in holding back their white carnations to be colored for March 17, as the demand nowhere near met the supply of spoiled carnations.

Oxalis, commonly called shamrock, sold very well; in fact, for some unknown reason there seems to be a scarcity of this plant each year, probably because it is so easy to grow. Plants in a 2½-or 3-inch pot sell readily for 15 cents to 25 cents at retail.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

Since the beginning of the month the weather has been mild enough to start everybody planting gardens and all the markets in town have been lively with the spring plant trade. The supply is large with every florist, but by the time the demand ceases everyone will likely be well sold out. Good, strong, well flowered geraniums retail easily at from $2 to $3 a dozen.

Roses have been in good demand at from 25 cents to 30 cents for one-year plants and as high as 50 cents for large two-year bushes. We would say that our one-year-old roses are several times larger than the so-called two-year-old roses offered in the north.

Various Notes.

At the last meeting of the New Orleans Horticultural Society the most important discussion was on the show next fall. Our last one was enough of a success to give us encouragement for another. It was unanimously decided to have one sometime next November.

A communication from J. A. Wilson, editor of the Nut Growers' Association paper published at Poulan, Ga., was read by P. Abele. It was on the proper way to bring together the southern florists and start a southern convention. Montgomery, Ala., is suggested as the best place for the first meeting. The paper was lengthy and full of practical and sensible advice.

E. Baker was presented with a beautiful armchair, a donation from the members of the society in recognition of his good services during its last show.

John Eblen was induced to keep on giving his good services as treasurer of the society, a position which he has so well filled since the organization.

A. Allost came for the third time with his annual invitation to the members to partake of a dinner on the day following Easter at his place, the Rose Villa, on Gentilly road.

Richard Eichling, grower for Rehm, had some fine specimens of ground orchid and extra good plants of double German hyacinth.

H. Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., was lately a visitor in town. M. M. L.

Some People have taken our advice as published in these columns recently and are buying My Maryland for trial. We reiterate here—if it succeeds with you as it does with us, it will prove the best white carnation you ever grew. Despite the variety's apparent failure in several places, we strongly advise all growers to give it a trial. We have been frank about its faults as developed in other places. We doubt if these will develop in many places.

Jessica we believe, will succeed generally and will prove to be the best red and white variegated ever disseminated. Few varieties show as strong constitution as this one does and it is a wonderful producer. Extra fine stock of both varieties ready now. R. C., $2.50 per doz.; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000. BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Business the past two weeks has continued very satisfactory, and the past week we have had real winter weather—hail, snow and rain and very little sunshine. The effect has already shown on roses and carnations, of which there was a shortage last Saturday. The supply of good carnations is far less than last year, and prices are also better; the general quality of carnations this year is only fair, with the exception of Enchantress, which come in very fine.

Roses have been pretty good all winter and some very choice stock can now be had at the Baltimore Florists' Exchange.

Callas and southern jonquils are very plentiful and hard to move; other bulb stock goes fairly well.

Club Meeting.

The following officers were elected at the last meeting of the Gardeners' Club: William Lehr, president; Charles L. Seybold, vice-president; J. J. Perry, secretary; George Talbot, financial secretary; Frederick G. Burger, treasurer; Charles M. Wagner, librarian.

After the election seventy of the club members and guests went to the Hotel Lexington, where the banquet was an enjoyable event. The toast-master was E. A. Seidewitz, and those responding to toasts were President-elect Lehr, Robert Craig and John Burton, of Philadelphia, on "The American Beauty."

New Geranium ORA D. HILL

We claim for this that it is better than any other geranium on the market. It is semi-double, cerise red, a very free bloomer and grower; easiest to propagate of any geranium grown; extra good bedder and house plant; good, strong, 2¼-inch stock, $2.00 per dozen, $15.00 per 100. Can ship all orders the day of receipt.
